DARROW URGES SOCIALISM, NRA DOOM

Today

Mrs. Kirk Comes.
She Brings Diana.
Diana Brings Her Book.
Departs With Two Dimes.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

LOS ANGELES, May 21. THE LOS ANGELES Examiner sent this message:

"Mrs. Jimmy Kirk, wife of 'the brains' in the Gettle kidnaping plot, would like to see you."

Mrs. Kirk came, a sad, worried young woman, bringing her little two-and-one-half-year-old girl, Diana, a beautiful child. Thanks to the kindness of providence and the Weissman gemmule theory, that little girl and her mother need not worry about the old text and the sins of the fathers visited upon the children even unto the third and fourth generation.

DIANA HAS BLUE velveteen trousers and large dark blue eyes to match, a white shirt waist, a belt with a little silver buckle, very fair, light curly hair and a complexion, pink and white, that if it could be transferred, might be sold in Hollywood for enough to provide forever for Diana and her mother.

You say to her mother:

"Your little girl looks like her father."

Diana corrects you:

"I look like mamma."

She carries a large book entitled "The Night Before Christmas," which tells how "nothing was stirring, not even a mouse" and has big pictures, including one that shows a large pig with black spectacles uttering wisdom.

This book she pushes at you, commanding:

"Read."

Unless you read there will be no peace, and if you do read you cannot talk to the worried mother.

Inspired memory of your own four small daughters, you hand the young lady the Los Angeles Examiner, turning to the comic page. The mother asks nervously:

"There is no picture of her father in prison in that paper, is there?"

To make sure you tear out the comic page, and Diana immediately puts the "night before Christmas" aside to lose herself in the adventures of Jiggs and Maggie, Barney Google, Tillie the Toiler, and other international characters.

WHEN THAT page is exhausted you tear off the comic page of the Los Angeles Herald and Express. Again lost to the world and its cares, the young lady devotes her intellect to "Krazy Kat and Ignatz Mouse," "Popeye," "Polly and Her Pals." These exhausted, she suggests that a penny would be in order. Her mother's rebuke, "You must never ask for money," leaves Diana unmoved. She secures a dime and says, "Mamma, I got a nickle," loses her dime under the sofa, can't find it, secures another dime in time to prevent tears, finds the one lost, and triumphantly holds up two.

HUMAN BEINGS have changed in one respect for the better.

Once having caught a criminal like Kirk, the kidnaper, justice destroyed not only him, but his whole family with him for "revenge" and to inspire terror. You would not find any human being with any feeling but pity for that helpless child, and the worried mother, whose husband is sentenced to jail for life.

Three things interest the child's mother, who tells you:

"I have very little education, and no money. I don't know which way to turn, to earn a living for the baby and take care of her at the same time."

Next she says:

"Jim wouldn't hurt anybody, I don't care what they say, and he did not hurt anybody. Do you think he will be paroled?"

You must reply discouragingly, for the United States government has stepped in with a charge of using the mails to extort money, and United States law is inexorable, forty-two years in jail, the penalty for the crime charged, actually MEANS forty-two years in jail.

Any woman will easily guess the third interest that occupies the mind of the imprisoned kidnaper's wife. She says:

"I read in the paper that you saw my husband in the Los Angeles jail. You also saw that girl that they say has been with him, didn't you? Please tell me about her."

Every woman knows what the wife who has been living in San Francisco with her child and, of course, knew nothing about any kidnaping, wanted to know about "that girl."

"How old is she? What did she look like? How does she dress? What does she say? How does she act? What did she say about my husband?"

YOUNG DIANA, having exhausted the comics and tired of counting her two dimes, must go home, and her mother takes her, escorted by a kind-hearted Los Angeles Examiner reporter. The mother is especially anxious to go to San Quentin Prison to see her husband.

"They tell me I can see him."

But his automobile is held by the police. There is $269 unpaid on it. She has been told that she might sell it for fifty dollars, enough to take her to the state prison.

A man, standing by, hands her what money he has, enough to take care of the child for awhile, the money to be repaid when convenient.

BANDITS RAID BANK, GET $8,000

Cashier, Teller Covered By Three Robbers At Avonmore

AVONMORE, Pa., May 21.—Two bandits, armed with a sawed-off shotgun and pistol and driven by a Negro chauffeur, held up the First National Bank of Avonmore today and looted the vault of between $8,000 and $10,000 in currency.

The robbers worked so smoothly that they were speeding out of town with their money bags before this quiet little community realized there had been a holdup.

State police and county police throughout Western Pennsylvania at once set up patrols along all highways, as the bandits fled westward toward Pittsburgh.

'THIS IS STICKUP'

Thomas Couch, cashier, and T. T. Townsend, teller, were alone in the bank when the two gunmen entered, one carrying the shotgun and the other a pistol. Recounting the holdup, Townsend said:

"The leader calmly announced 'this is a stickup' and ordered Couch and me to lie down on the floor.

"While the man with the shotgun stood over us, the other man went around the cages into the vault and scooped up all the money in sight.

"Then, still warning us not to move, the two fled outside where the Negro was waiting in their car and sped off.

"They got all the currency we had on hand, between $8,000 and $10,000."

Townsend, asked if either of the gunmen could have been Americas' arch-criminal, John Dillinger, said the men were too small for Dillinger. They were described as about 5 feet 6 inches tall, and around 30 years old.

PITTSBURGH LICENSE

Witnesses said the license number of their car, a small sedan, was Pennsylvania 32539. This number had been issued to J. Ferraro, of Center avenue, Pittsburgh. At his home, it was said his plates had been stolen in a downtown parking lot two weeks ago, and that new plates had been issued to him last week.

A filling station operator at Saline, five miles from Avonmore, reported seeing a car believed to have been the bandits' speeding toward Pittsburgh.

The bank, whose president is T. P. Sturgeon, is the principal bank of Avonmore, a community of 1,240 population.

Yes! No Dillinger In This Holdup

RUSH RUN, W. Va., May 21.—Two men (neither Dillinger) robbed George White (not the Ohio Governor) of $32 on the Ohio River highway today. They used a police cap and a red lantern to halt White, Steubenville produce man.

Pinchot Drafting Roosevelt Greeting

HARRISBURG, May 21.—(INS.)—Jovial and working in shirtsleeves, Gov. Gifford Pinchot returned to the executives offices today to write his Memorial Day speech to introduce President Roosevelt at Gettysburg.

The Governor banned political discussion.

Steedle Judge Orders Vote Trial Jury To Acquit Five

The federal government's efforts to reach the higher-ups for election frauds in Allegheny County were given a decisive setback today when Attorney B. Robert Averbach and four others were, in effect, acquitted on conspiracy charges.

Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker directed the jury to bring in acquittal verdicts for Averbach, who has long been one of the legal mainstays of the Republican organization; Attorney John J. McGrath, Burton J. McKee, real estate man and Frank Miller and August Weisser, Stowe Township policemen.

7 PLEAS REFUSED

At the same time the court refused to direct a like verdict for Dr. Joseph G. Steedle, the McKees Rocks Assemblyman, and the six other defendants — Squire James J. Westwood, Squire Paul N. Franks, of Scott Township; Wallace Ray, clerk in the County delinquent tax office; Robert S. Haus and Thomas Saunders and

BOMB HURTS 2 AT CAPITAL

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Two men were injured, one critically, today when a bomb sent through the mails exploded in the main post office.

The hand of Myrton Genung, a clerk, was blown away when he opened the package containing the infernal machine. His condition is critical.

Encased in a large volume entitled 'Life Among the Lowly," from which the pages had been cut, only the fact that the package was improperly addressed had kept it from being delivered. The addressee was not revealed. It was sent from New York.

Kay Francis Hurt 'Breaking In' Home

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 21.—(INS.)—Kay Francis, screen star, hoped to be able to return to work today after having been severely cut in an accident Wednesday night.

Miss Francis took her pet dachshund for a walk Wednesday night and returning home was unable to arouse the maid. She smashed the door with a stick and reached inside to turn the lock. A jagged piece of glass caugt her arm, severing one large artery and three small ones.

Electoral College Ban Voted Down

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(INS.)—The proposed Norris constitutional amendment abolishing the electoral college was defeated in the Senate this afternoon when it failed to win the two-thirds majority necessary for submission to the states.

Coyne 'Fix' Try Laid To M'Nair

James P. Bailey, dismissed city assessor, told City Council this afternoon that he was fired by Mayor McNair because he refused the request of the Mayor and his secretary, Theodore L. Moritz, to change his testimony before the federal grand jury in the defense of Senator James J. Coyne, who is to go on trial Wednesday in a vote fraud case.

Bailey appeared before Council shortly after it had passed a resolution demanding an investigation into the discharge of Bailey by McNair.

The resolution, presented by Councilman John H. Huston, called attention to reports that Bailey's discharge was for political reasons.

Bailey told Council that he was fired by Mayor McNair because he refused a request made to him by McNair and Moritz, to change his testimony to favor Coyne.

Extradition Of Davis Favored

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, May 21.—Deputy Attorney General Lee Edwards today recommended to Gov. Gifford Pinchot that he extradite Tom Davis, Pittsburgh high school student, to Illinois where he faces indictments for robbery and assault with intent to kill.

Edwards made his recommendation after a hearing on the request of Illinois for the return of Davis which was protested by Attorney R. B. Ivory, Jr., counsel for the youth.

Young Davis was acquitted recently in Pittsburgh on a charge of murdering State Highway Patrolman Herbert Brantlinger. Following Davis' acquittal, Illinois asked Pennsylvania to extradite Davis back to the western state.

Firemen Fight Blaze In Pitt Cathedral

Firemen were called to the Cathedral of Learning in Oakland early today to extinguish a small lumber blaze on the roof of the fourth floor. No damage was caused to the building, which was thrown open to public inspection for the first time yesterday. Cause of the fire was unknown.

Dock Workers End Strike in New York

NEW YORK, May 21.—(INS.)—Settlement of a strike of longshoremen on the Clyde-Mallory Line piers here was announced today by Joseph P. Ryan, president of the Internatonal Longshoremen's Union. Ryan did not disclose the terms of the agreement, but said the men would return to work late today.

Market House Fire Damages Meat Stand

A motor in the meat stand of W. O. Baetz, in the Allegheny Market House at Federal and East Ohio streets, caught fire early today. Damage was estimated at $25.

Pallbearer Dies At Funeral Of Friend

Death came today to John Bruy, 42, of 7236 Race street, as he was waiting to serve as pallbearer for a friend.

He collapsed while sitting on the porch of the home of Michael McGrail, 62, of 668 Maryland avenue, a fellow-employe of the Pennsylvania Railroad, who died several days ago.

The Rev. Howard Carroll, of Sacred Heart Catholic Church, hurried to the McGrail home and administered last rites to Bruy a moment before he succumbed. His death was attributed to heart disease.

Father Carroll later assisted at high requiem mass for McGrail in Sacred Heart Church.

FATHER COX REJECTED AS 'JUDGE'

BULLETIN.

Council by a five-to-four vote today refused to confirm the appointment of Father Cox as a police magistrate.

Mayor McNair today tossed another surprise package into Council's lap by naming Father James R. Cox a police magistrate.

The Mayor announced the appointment in a letter to Council.

On motion of Councilman William A. Magee, Council referred the communication to the Public Safety Committee. Council's confirmation of such appointments is necessary.

WILLING TO ACCEPT

There was a laugh from spectators in Council chambers when the Mayor's letter was read.

A few minutes after the appointment was announced Father Cox, who is pastor of Old St. Patrick's Catholic Church, told the Sun-Telegraph he would accept the position.

The priest, who is founder of "Shantytown," home of the homeless, would succeed Magistrate Charles J. McCall, if confirmed.

FRIEND OF MAYOR

McCall "resigned" last week. Reports had it the Mayor was displeased with McCall's reputed failure to deliver a bigger vote to His Honor's gubernatorial candidacy.

Father Cox said:

"If it's approved of course I'll accept. I appreciate the honor very much. My notion of such an appointment is that I've been associated with people all my life."

Father Cox and the Mayor have been friendly ever since, a few months ago, they had an argument.

McNair proposed to have Father Cox's "Shantytown" destroyed and described it critically.

But the two came out of the exchange good friends.

In fact, the Mayor persuaded the Board of Education to turn over to the Shantytown inhabitants a school in the Strip.

French on Mound Against Quakers

BAKER BOWL, May 21.—Still reeling from the effects of their bad defeat of yesterday, the Pirates, of Pittsburgh, faced the Phillies this afternoon in the second game of the series. The Bucos were walloped, 16 to 4, yesterday as they made their season's bow here.

Larry French warmed up to tackle the home team in the second clash of the three-game series. Ed Holley was primed to pitch for the Quakers.

Doctor, 'Hex' Foe, Found Dead By Gun

YORK, Pa., May 21.—(AP.)—Dr. C. W. Ensenhower, 61, who led a medical society campaign against pow-wow doctors and "hex" healers several years ago, was found dead today. A bullet had pierced his head; his hand clutched a pistol.

The campaign was conducted after the slaying of Nelson Rehmeyer, to which three youths confessed, saying they wanted a lock of Rehmeyer's hair to break a "spell."

Calls Wynekoop Plea 'Race With Death'

CHICAGO, May 21.—(INS.)—In what the defense termed a "race with death" Attorney W. W. Smith today filed a bill of exceptions to the conviction and 25-year sentence of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop for the operating table murder of her daughter-in-law, Rheta Gardner Wynekoop. The 63-year-old physician, her attorney said, has lost 17 pounds at the state reformatory in Dwight, Ill., and her condition is "very weak."

JOHNSON FOR OUSTER OF FOE

Recovery Head Scores Report as Unjust And Useless

By EDWARD O. MAYL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—President Roosevelt was faced today with demands for scrapping his pet recovery program, or of discarding the National Recovery Review Board, set up by him to protect the interests of the "little fellow."

Recommendation for the abolition of the NRA and the substitution of socialism was made by Clarence Darrow, chairman of the board, while the scrapping of the board was demanded by Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of the President's National Industrial Recovery Act.

There will be a second report before the board automatically goes out of existance on May 31. Whether this second report will be answered by Johnson, as was the first, has not been determined. The Darrow board will continue to hold hearings and go into various industries to collect data.

Darrow, with William O. Thompson, his old law partner, after three months' investigation, found the NRA fosters monopoly and declared America is faced with the choice "between monopoly sustained by government, which is clearly the trend in the NRA, and a planned economy, which demands socialized ownership and control."

ANTI-TRUST LAWS

The entire board found:

"A return to the anti-trust laws for the purpose of restoring competition, we believe to be one of the greatest needs of the time."

Johnson asked the dissolution of the board, saying:

"It is of no service to anybody—it is a political sounding board.

"In view of its fixed prejudices and partisanship and its unfair methods of taking and reporting

Darrow NRA Report May Be His Last Job

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(AP.)—The sizzling report on NRA that Clarence Darrow laid on President Roosevelt's desk may be the veteran lawyer's last big job.

The picturesque old warrior, now in his 78th year, is expected to shun active work from now on. This was made clear last night when a source close to Darrow, speaking authoritatively for the lawyer, denied that he would take over the defense of Samuel and Martin Insull.

Man, Wife Held In Fatal Stabbing

A Negro couple were under arrest today in connection with the fatal stabbing of a Negro at Orion street and Webster avenue last night. The victim was identified at the Morgue as Otto Graham, 24, of 771 Bryn Mawr road.

BELL DISMISSES MRS. CLARK

Mrs. J. Wood Clark's defiance of Mayor McNair by appearing on the ticket at last Tuesday's primary as a candidate for vice-chairman of the County Democratic Committee, resulted today in her dismissal as head of the Division of Accounts and Permits in the Department of Public Safety.

A. Marshall Bell, newly installed Director of Public Safety, who dismissed Mrs. Clark, immediately filled the vacancy, naming Robert Brown, for 19 years chief clerk in the department, to succeed her.

Mayor McNair had previously said that Mrs. Clark, successful at the polls Tuesday, probably would be exempt from his ruling against city employes holding official party leadership. He said:

"You can't be too urgent with a woman. They don't know politics like men do. After all, it's up to Director Bell."

Bell, in announcing Mrs. Clark's dismissal, said he approved of the Mayor's policy.

DARROW CHARGE DENIED HERE

Coal men of Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania—big and small—defended the NRA code of their industry today, denying the big fellow has the advantage.

Independent steel company officials said the steel code operates to the benefit of the small producers.

Some independents of the motion picture industry, on the other hand, attacked the theater code.

Ice dealers and manufacturers expressed approval of their code.

The opinions were given by representatives of the industries here after the various codes were assailed in the report of the National Recovery Review Board, headed by Clarence Darrow, largely on the ground that the codes tend to create monopolies in favor of the big companies.

The responese from the coal industry was a spontaneous indorsement of the bituminous coal code, and smaller operators were quick to praise the Western Pennsylvania Code Authority.

The Darrow report recommended specifically that the subdivisional code authority be dismissed for "malfeasance in office."

Scotland's Sea Monster Landed by Fisherman

International News Service.

LONDON, May 21.—The mystery of the famed monster of Loch Ness was believed by many to have been solved today as the result of the capture of a strange sea creature by a fisherman in Moray Firth, Scottish bay just a few miles away from Loch Ness.

The captured specimen was 13 feet long and one foot wide. It was of a silvery grey color and had a thin, sharply-pointed head and large eyes. It correponded in many respects with the detailed descriptions of the Loch Ness monster given by more than 100 persons.

Those who believed the Loch Ness monster finally had been captured pointed out that it could have made its way from Loc Ness, the two bodies of water being joined by a canal.

Experts said the captive was a specimen of the regilecidae family, possibly being an oar-fish.

Storm Clouds 'Cool Off' Sweltering City

At Neville Island .39 inch of rain fell while in West View hail accompanied a thunderstorm. Observer W. S. Brotzman was informed.

Showers and thunderstorms are predicted for tomorrow. Brotzman said conditions were such that they might occur any time late today or tonight.

The mercury dropped from 85 to 71 as the sun's rays were obscured. Earlier the weather man indicated the thermometer would reach the record for this date of 92 in 1911.

The drouth for the first four and a half months of 1934 is the most severe in the histotry of this district, the records show. Only .44 inch of rain has fallen here this month. The deficiency since January 1 is 5.69 inches.

NATIONWIDE STRIKE THREATENS GIANT STEEL INDUSTRY

UNION DEMANDS RECOGNITION BY BOSSES

Feeling Tense in Mills As 100,000 Workers Present Plea

With the possibility of a nationwide strike looming large in the background, representatives of nearly 100,000 steel workers today presented simultaneous demands to between 150 and 200 steel mills for union recognition.

The demands were being made in all mills where the workers are organized under the banner of the old, conservative Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin workers.

Formally presented by registered mail or by delegations, the workers demand recognition of the fact that "their lodges have been formed for the express purpose of bargaining collectively on all matters of wages and working conditions." They request an answer by June 10.

WORKERS TENSE

No lodge in the association will be permitted to sign an agreement unless all other lodges in the association are assured of similar treatment, International President M. F. Tighe pointed out.

Many mill operators were conferring with the union men reguarding the effect of the move on their present contracts should a strike result.

Tenseness in the industry among the workers, many of whom have been dissatisfied with the Weirton situation, was increased today as the workers girded themselves, they say, for a general strike, if necessary, to win their demands.

Largely because of the Weirton situation, the present action was decided upon by the association at its convention held here recently.

PLAN DEMONSTRATIONS

Determined to prevent a repitition of that condition where one lodge of their union was out on strike while other lodgemen went on working, the convention decided that union recognition must be given to every lodge.

Demonstrations and mass meetings were being planned in Monessen, Duquesne and other towns in the district by the steel workers. The international headquarters has no "official word" of these meetings, Secretary Louis Leonard said.

Riding along on the momentum of the Amalgamated's move, the Steel and Metal Workers' Industrial Union distributed circulars calling for a mass meeting tonight at Slovak Hall, McKeesport. The group was urged to hear James Egan, national secretary of the union, and one-time Communist candidate for Mayor of Pittsburgh.

RIOTING FLARES IN STRIKE

MINNEAPOLIS, May 21.—(AP.)—Eleven policemen and 10 strikers were knocked down in renewed rioting today as the police sought to reopen commercial truck traffic, paralyzed since the strike began last Tuesday. One policeman was stabbed.

The fighting had 300 of the pickets' side against nearly 100 policemen as a movement of trucks was attempted.

Congressman Francis H. Shoemaker (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota, was taken into custody at the city market place where he was mingling with the crowd of police and striking truck drivers.

SINGER, DANCER ELOPE TO W. VA.

An elopement to Wellsburg, W. Va., climaxed the 6-week-old romance of Richard (Mike) Peyton, 18-year-old night club singer and Miss Lillian Newton, pretty tap dancer, today.

The dancer, 17, lives at 223 Kennedy avenue, and young Peyton lives at 1043 Lakewood avenue. He sings at his brother's club, Eddie Peyton's on the Steubenville Pike.

Peyton's mother, Mrs. Margaret Peyton, on hearing of the elopement, which followed a night automobile ride to Wellsburg, said:

"I heard they were married. I have not met Richard's girl yet but everybody tells me she is very nice."

The director's action was in line with his announcement that one of his first acts in assuming charge of the department would be to "throw out" politics.

"When Mr. Robert Brown's resignation was asked for, I did so with regret and told him so. My reason for doing it was because I felt it very important to have in the position as chief clerk a man who is entirely familiar with my ways and a thorough experience in working together in the past.

'SAVING TIME'

"With many important things pressing for consideration, I did not want to lose any time getting accustomed to a new assistant.

"I have now appointed Mr. Brown to take charge of the division of accounts and permits to replace Mrs. Clark. It was also with regret that I dismissed Mrs. Clark, but I am in full sympathy with Mr. McNair's attitude of disapproving the holding of political positions while in the employ of the city, and that is the policy of this department."

Mrs. Clark's husband is clerk of the Federal Court in Pittsburgh.

She long has been active in Allegheny County political circles and in 1933 she was appointed by Gov. Gifford Pinchot to the Pittsburgh Registration Commission, on which she served as secretary.

Harry A. Eigenrauch, Jr., of 5541 Beeler street, unsuccessful candidate for state senate on the Democratic ticket at the primaries, was appointed a clerk in Traffic Court today by Mayor McNair. He replaced John Dorgan who had filled the position since 1930. The job is not under civil service.

'Phantom Cutter' Mars 40 Windows

HALIFAX, May 22.—(AP.)—The "phantom glass-cutter" is at it again. Two weeks ago he he scratched many downtown windows, ceasing his activities when police began to watch for him. But now he has resumed his work with a diamond or glass-cutter and has marred 40 store windows in the shopping district, causing damage estimated at more than $3,000.

the help of her little girl, to earn enough money to take care of them both for awhile.

He suggests:

"If you walk on the stage, all dressed in black, holding that beautiful little child by the hand, and tell the audience that you are trying to provide for her, the public will be interested."

The mother says:

"I don't think that would be fair to the baby."

And they walk off, the little girl with the Santa Claus under her arm, two silver pieces tightly held in one hand, the other hand in that of her unhappy mother. Had her father been Satan himself, you would wish the child might never know it, and that she might live happily and experience only kindness—a great deal to hope in this world.

When she has gone, you do not see or think of the kidnapers. You see only the blue eyes underneath the questioning, wrinkled forehead, and hear the little voice:

"I look like mamma."

U. S. REVERES LAFAYETTE

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt placed a sword associated with the memory of Lafayette beneath a portrait of Washington in the White House today.

This gesture of a nation's gratitude followed a stirring observance yesterday of the one hundredth anniversary of the death of the French marquis who fought for American liberty.

The President brought the sword with him yesterday to a joint session of Congress, convened to honor Lafayette's comrades of the Revolution. It was presented to Mr. Roosevelt recently by Count Rene de Chambrun, direct descendant of the famous Frenchman.

Roosevelt to See Son Row for Harvard

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(INS.)—President Roosevelt will attend the Harvard-Yale boat race on June 22, it became known today. His son, Franklin, Jr., recently won a regular berth on the Harvard crew.

The President also will deliver the fiftieth anniversary address at Groton, where his youngest son, John, is a student.

CODE MEN CALL COAL MEETING

Nearly a thousand retail coal merchants are expected to attend a hearing called today by R. W. Kiser, chairman, and L. I. MacQueen, secretary of the Pittsburgh district code authority, Retail Solid Fuel Industry, to determine if price-slashing and cut-throat competition have created an emergency within the retail coal industry here.

The hearing, at which factual evidence may be submitted, will be held in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium at 10 a. m. Thursday.

MacQueen reports:

"We are advised that coal for household use and light manufacturing plants, in some instances, is being delivered at a price which is only 10 cents above the cost paid at the mine. If this is the case, it is our opinion that no retail merchant can sell coal at such prices and maintain our code of wages and hours."

Man Who Eluded Raiders Found Dead

YORK, Pa., May 21.—(AP.)—The body of George Whitehill, 35, of near Etters, who fled through the woods as state agents raided a still at his home on May 8, was found near a stream about a half-mile from his home. Coroner L. U. Zech said death was due to acute alcoholism.

BULGARIA NOW IN HANDS OF 'BRAIN TRUST'

Fighting Reported in Macedonia in Wake Of Bloodless Revolt

SOFIA, May 21.—(AP.)—A "brain trust" with a pronounced Fascist complexion pointed Bulgaria toward a new deal today.

Riding into power in a bloodless, bulletless coup d'etat Saturday, Kimon Geuorgueff and his "Zveno" non-partisan group had won general acclaim today with promises to balance the budget, re-establish credit, raise the cultural level of villages and make credit accessible to farmers.

Only from Macedonia came rumors of opposition to the new order. There has been a strong revolutionary sentiment among Macedonians, with autonomy as their goal.

The semi-official newspaper Vreme today reported that fighting had broken out between the Bulgarian army and the Macedonians in the Petrichki and Chustendil districts. It admitted however, that it had no confirmation of the report.

The new government is flatly opposed to any step toward Macedonian autonomy, and in this sentiment is allied with Greece and Jugoslavia. It is among these three countries—Bulgaria, Greece and Jugoslavia—that Macedonia is divided.

One of the first jobs facing the new Premier-Dictator is the formation of a legislative body, the Parliament having been dissolved by decrees of King Boris.

The "Zveno" membership includes several professors, writers and other professional men, as well as leading army officers. The Premier himself falls in the latter group. He emerged from the World War a lieutenant-colonel. During the war he lost an eye.

POLAND FIGHTS FRANCO-SOVIET ALLIANCE

Russia's Bid for Safety On European Frontier Strikes Snag

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT
International News Service.

GENEVA, May 21.—Poland's strenuous objection to permitting Soviet Russia to use European nations as catspaws to hold Germany in leash while she settles her quarrels with Japan, arose today as an obstacle in the path of Franco-Soviet accord, International News Service learned from authoritative sources.

Rupture of Poland's traditional close alliance with France and an open rapprochment with Germany were possible steps envisioned in Polish circles if the Franco-Soviet mutual assistance pact now in process of negotiation becomes a reality in its present form.

POLAND'S THREAT

Russia's scheme for a pact with France is regarded by Polish diplomats as in effect an alliance. They view it, also, as a "policy of encirclement," which would create for Russia a united front in Europe against Germany which would leave the Soviet free from danger of a European attack should her military forces find themselves occupied along the Asiatic front.

Such a task is regarded by the Poles, it was learned, as thankless and Poland is unwilling to share it. Withdrawal from the League of Nations and a policy of close co-operation with Germany was regarded as preferable.

SOP TO POLAND

As a sop to Poland, it is understood, France is ready to support a move to obtain a permanent seat for Poland in the League Council. It was indicated in Polish circles, however, that this would not appease the Warsaw government.

The Franco-Soviet-Polish situation shared lively interest in league circles with the progress of the movement in Washington to control exportation of arms. It was the viewpoint here that the action of President Roosevelt to restrict arms shipments opened a perspective for a new line of disarmament discussion, which would distract attention for the European arms deadlock and the effort to recreate the old pre-war balance of powers.

LEAGUE ASKS U.S. ARMS STAND

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(AP.)—Secretary Hull said today the State Department had received a telegram from the League of Nations Council requesting information of the attitude of the United States toward prohibiting foreign exports or re-exports of war munitions to Paraguay and Bolivia.

Hull explained the league had named a council of three members to give special attention to the Chaco dispute and the proposed arms embargo.

The United States has not answered the league's communication, Hull said, but Hugh Wilson, American minister to Switzerland, has informed the council of President Roosevelt's munitions message and of the introduction in Congress of the resolution which would authorize him to prohibit sales of the munitions in this country to representatives of either warring republic.

A definite promise of co-operation in any international embargo cannot be made until Congress adopts the resolution. Action is expected immediately.

CHACO READY FOR BIG DRIVE

ASUNCION, Paraguay, May 21.—(AP.)—Paraguayan men and guns were thrown into position along a 25-mile front today in preparation for a great offensive against the most important Bolivian stronghold in the Gran Chaco, Fort Ballivian.

Bolivian forces opened hostilities yesterday with a surprise attack but were repulsed with the loss of 200 men.

Well-informed sources believed the projected engagement will prove the crucial battle in the warfare over the Gran Chaco jungle border region.

After sweeping over all Bolivian forts throughout the Chaco, the Paraguayan high command has concentrated approximately 40,000 men divided into four units in the last forests of the Chaco.

In strongly entrenched positions ranged before the important fort Bolivia has more than 15,000 men and heavy reinforcements of young men and reserves now in training were expected shortly.

Woman Soldier Plan Defeated in Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 21.—(AP.)—A proposal to make women subject to call to arms was defeated today by the national assembly which is drafting a new Brazilian constitution.

Weather Conditions

A low of considerable intensity (29.64 inches) at Port Arthur, is centered over Western Ontario and extends down over the Mississippi Valley, while high pressure is located over the southeastern states and over the Northwest. The highest pressure reported in the Northwest is 3.28 inches, at Calgary. This high is causing a change to much cooler weather over the Northwest. Minimum temperatures of 40 degrees and lower occurred this morning over the Canadian Northwest, and the cool weather extends as far as Wisconsin. High temperatures continues over the eastern states. The low pressure is producing light scattered showers over the Northwest, and there were scattered showers over the southeastern states.

EXCHANGE BILL TRUCE SOUGHT

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Weary of their long deadlock, conferees on the stock market bill today sought to reconcile the differences between the Senate and House measures.

Fortified by the indorsement of the President, the House conferees continued to hold out for regulation by the Federal Trade Commission and for a 45 per cent fixed margin.

Senate conferees insist upon control by a separate commission, to be appointed by the President and for allowing this body to designate all margin requirements.

Senator Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, who resigned from the Senate Banking Committee because he was not made a conferee on the measure has announced he will make a speech concerning the stock market bill negotiations when the conferees report to the Senate "or sooner."

CHICAGO YARDS OPEN DESPITE BIG FIRE

Large Packing Houses, Safe From Flames, Open as Usual

CHICAGO, May 21.—(AP.)—The charred body of a man was found in the ruins of Chicago's stockyards today as crews of workmen groped through the debris of Saturday's $8,000,000 fire preparing the way for rebuilders.

Through acres of hot ashes, into heaps of bricks, skeletons of old landmarks and twisted steel girders the explorers dug, hunting valued documents and property that might have survived the holocaust, and hoping the loss of human life would not grow.

The one known victim was Isaac Means, 60-year-old watchman who discovered the first flames in the cattle pens near the Forty-third street viaduct. The charred body was found less than two blocks from the point where Means shouted to other workers:

"It's a fire."

So quickly did the blaze spread on the wings of a brisk southwest wind, that Means was overtaken and burned to death before he could make his way out of the labyrinth of livestock corrals.

BUSINESS AS USUAL

One other death was attributed indirectly to the disaster—Walter Burnfield, 33, dropped dead of excitement as he watched the flames.

The great packing plants of Swift, Armour, Morris and Wilson were never endangered as the hot breeze fanned the fire eastward and away from the big processing houses, flanking the acres of open pens on the west.

These packers, little affected by the blaze, were operating today and even the banks that were reduced to ruins announced business as usual in temporary quarters.

Trading on the country's leading livestock exchange started a little late, but the morning arrivals of livestock were only slightly fewer than was anticipated in Saturday's official estimates. The estimated receipts of hogs, put at 29,000 in advance, were reduced to 26,000; cattle receipts dropped from an estimate of 15,000 to 12,000, and sheep — their pens untouched by fire—dropped from 14,000 to 5,000.

1,100 INJURED

The Red Cross said it had treated 1,100 persons for injuries during the feverish battle to check the spread of the flames, but less than a dozen were hurt seriously.

Chief sufferers were the cluster of buildings at the Halsted street entrance to the yards, including the old Livestock Inn, the Exchange Building, the great Exposition Hall where annual livestock shows have attracted thousands, the Drovers Daily Journal Building, the two banks and a number of shops, homes and tenement houses lying on the fringe just east of Halsted street.

LINDY STILL SHY 7 YEARS AFTER

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—The seventh anniversary of the first—and only—successful New York-to-Paris solo non-stop flight found Col. Charles A. Lindbergh still publicity-shy today but the other half of "We," grounded for life, continued as the center of public attraction at the Smithsonian institution here.

Suspended between floor and ceiling of the Aircraft Building, the gallant little "Spirit of St. Louis" has resisted successfully the ravages of time. It is ready, in fact, to fly tomorrow if that were necessary.

No act of wanton vandalism has touched the craft since it was placed in the museum six years ago. It is suspended by cables just high enough to keep it out of reach. Yet at a height that does not preclude minute inspection.

Nazis Confiscate Catholic Newspaper

BERLIN, May 21.—(AP.)—Yesterday's issue of The Catholic Church Newspaper for the Bishopric of Berlin was confiscated by the government. It contained statements allegedly harmful to the state regarding a reported delay in investigating an atack on a number of members of the Hitler youth movement at Marienburg on April 14.

Steel Must Liberalize Labor Policy, NRA Says

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Barons of the steel industry will be forced to accept six new provisions to operate under President Roosevelt's Blue Eagle after May 31, it was indicated today. Among the concessions demanded by NRA officials is a modification of labor clauses, favoring workers regard of their affiliations.

The threat of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers to walk out on June 15 unless this branch of the American Federation of Labor is recognized by the industry, so far has not been officially delivered to the recovery administration, but the demand is being given recognition in the pr[illegible]

In addit[illegible]nces-sions, so far unpublished by the NRA, the administration is demanding the discontinuance of certain discounts, a modification of prices dependent upon the age-old system of basing points, the adjustment of prices in relation to lake and rail transportation charges, and an improvement in the administration of the code proper.

In the discussions between officers of the Iron and Steel Institute and Donald Richberg, chief counsel for the NRA, the matter of the time element of the code extension has not been dwelt upon, but it was learned the administration is hoping for an extension of at least one year for the continued code.

Pope Condemns German 'Pagan Movement'

VATICAN CITY, May 21.—(AP.)—Pope Pius XI, speaking to 5,000 German pilgrims, yesterday vigorously condemned what he termed a pagan movement in Germany.

The remarks were made in the course of a colorful ceremony which elevated to sainthood a humble lay brother who for 40 years had been doorman at a German Capuchin monastery. The canonization of the doorman, Conrad of Parzham, took place at St. Peter's in the presence of 19 cardinals and a number of German bishops.

The Pope said:

"The life of Conrad of Parzham is an admonition to all those who have wandered far from the [illegible] and seek to restore and magnify with phrases the practices and customs of paganism; and who repudiate Christian doctrine which alone can recall them to virtue, civilization and the true processes."

The bells of Rome's 500 churches rang out as the name of the simple doorman, whose earthly name was Johann Birndorfer, was added to the calendar of saints.

PRELATE RAPS 'SEXY MOVIES' BEFORE K. C.

Urging Catholics to ban "sexy movies," which make sin attractive in a setting of luxury, Monsignor Joseph M. Corrigan, state chaplain of the Knights of Columbus, told the annual state conventon of the lodge today that the church is preparing to publish an approved list of motion pictures for members of the church to attend.

Monsignor Corrigan said it would be illegal for the church to publish a list of banned movies, like its "index expurgatorium" for literature, but he said the church would announce a list of approved pictures.

The convention opened this morning with a pontifical mass celebrated in St. Paul's Cathedral by Bishop Hugh C. Boyle. Five hundred attended the initial session in the Duquesne Council Home, Fifth and Bellefield avenues.

Mayor McNair, in an address of welcome to the delegates, warned them not to be misled into buying any relics while they were here. He said:

"Henry Ford just purchased the Foster home which was a fake.

"The Mellon Institute is just across the street, but Andy was not born there, so don't buy it.

"As for my addressing you, I'm a little confused as to my own denomination.

"I was once president of the Luther League, so the Lutherans claim me. Some of my relatives are Mennonites, and they also claim me. My wife is an Episcopalian, and so she claims me, too."

The convention will end tomorrow night with an election of officers.

MISSING CHILD FOUND IN BUSH

MOOSEHORN, Man., May 21.—(AP.)—Suffering severely from exposure, four-year-old Betty Wolfrum was found yesterday in rainsoaked brush country near the farm of her father from where she disappeared six days ago.

In the belief that the child might have been kidnaped as she lay asleep in a carriage on the porch of the family home, Royal Canadian Mounted Police began an investigation into activities of a score of persons.

Mrs. Wolfrum expressed the belief Betty had been kidnaped by unnamed persons in revenge.

SCHOOL DENIED JUNE ROBLES

TUCSON, Ariz., May 21.—(AP.)—Denied permission to return to school, June Robles had to amuse herself with playthings at her home today while the trail of her kidnapers was sought by officers.

The 6-year-old girl, rescued a week ago from kidnapers who held her 19 days, has not recovered sufficiently from the ordeal of being buried in a tin box in the desert to return to her classes, her father, Fernando Robles, said yesterday. Previously it had been announced she would return to school today. The father said:

"As soon as the cruel kidnapers are apprehended, and she is no longer needed to identify them, we plan a long vacation on the coast."

An anonymous letter from Chicago directed searchers to her hiding place and the letter remains one of the important clues in the case in which authorities indicated progress is being made.

Dogs Ordered Off South Side Streets

Citing that 28 persons had suffered dog bites in the last three weeks, Police Inspector Charles Dye yesterday issued a warning to dog owners to keep their dogs off the streets.

Five children in the precinct were bitten by dogs yesterday, it was reported.

Man, 50 Found Dead In McKinley Park

The body of a 50-year-old man was found in McKinley Park late yesterday, a victim of a heart attack, according to a morgue autopsy.

He was identified last night as Richard Fuhlman, of Oakland, salesman for the Pittsburgh Valley Bottling Company, 1904 Bedford avenue.

DOCTOR SLAIN BY DEPUTY

DETROIT, May 21.—(AP.)—Dr. D. W. Johnston, Jr., Wayne County medical examiner, was shot and killed early this morning by a special deputy sheriff in nearby Macomb County while the physician was seated in an automobile with a young woman.

The deputy, Matthew Berger, a farmer living near the intersection of Twelve Mile road and Schoenherr road, where the shooting took place, told Sheriff George T. Smith, of Macomb County, he fired accidentally.

Miss Anne Nixon, who was with the physician, said the shots were fired without warning, but the deputy said he fired two warning shots after approaching the car on a report that "there was a lot of noise" coming from it.

DEATH TOLL 16 IN WEEK-END AIR CRASHES

Associated Press.

Sixteen persons fell to their deaths in airplanes over the week-end.

A man, believed to have been David H. Salkind, of Morristown, N. J., and an unidentified woman were fatally injured today when their airplane crashed near Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Mortimer Riley, 21, of Hewlett, Long Island, N. Y., died at Sherman, Tex., today three hours after the plane in which he started a cross-country flight from Dallas with W. M. Curry, 22, of Wichita, Kan., crashed near the Sherman Airport.

Four were killed at the Tulsa (Tex.) Airport when a plane piloted by Harry Lynch, of Wink, Tex., crashed before a crowd witnessing dedication of the field. The victims were Lynch, two 12-year-old boys, Bruce Anderson and Bobbie Sesler, both of Wink, and Willie Ravel, 28, of El Paso, Tex.

Lieut. Frank J. Findlay, 30, of Detroit, and Private George J. Scott, 27, of the 17th Pursuit Squadron, died in flames near Port Huron, Mich. Their Selfridge Field plane fell and burst into flames just after a take-off. Findlay was a reserve officer with inactive status.

A plane borrowed without the owner's consent crashed and burned near Muscatine, Ia., killing Maynard Lukavisky, 20, of Muscatine, a student pilot, and James Henick, 23, of Fort Des Moines.

An accident near Lincoln, Neb., killed Orrin O. Jones, of Litchfield, Neb., and James V. Meade, 19, of Oakridge, N. J. Jones was teaching Meade to fly.

Three Washington (D. C.) men were killed in a fall into Chesapeake Bay. The body of William C. Power was recovered shortly after the accident Saturday, but the bodies of the other victims, Ralph H. Bangs and Malcolm B. Zahn, were not found until yesterday. Bangs was the owner and pilot of the plane.

Farewell Dinner For Rabbi Glazer

A farewell dinner for Rabbi B. Benedict Glazer will be given tomorrow night at the Concordia Club by the Sisterhood and Men's Society of the Rodef Shalom Congregation. Rabbi Glazer will leave Pittsburgh within a week to study conditions of Jews in Eastern Europe.

Returning to New York on August 1, he will become assistant to Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson, rabbi of Temple Emanu-El, New York.

HOUSING GROUP WARNS ON PROJECTS

President Roosevelt's new home building and home repair program may possibly be used to perpetuate sub-standard housing and slum areas unfit for reconstruction, the Pittsburgh Housing Association warned today.

In a letter to Frank C. Walker, National Emergency Council director, the association points out that the program needs to be safeguarded against the inclusion of projects which will "pyramid unwarranted slum values."

Primary safeguards the association recommends include:

1—Federal credit should not be used for reconditioning individual dwellings located in industrial or commercial districts, the future use of which can never be regarded as residential.

2—Further expenditures should not be made on individual dwellings located in areas recognized as slums, areas marked for clearance or large scale rehabilitation.

3—Loans should be confined to houses where the investment will result in a positively fit dwelling. This should require the setting of minimum standards for housing.

Foster Home City Owned, Kin Says

A nephew of Stephen Collins Foster stepped to the fore today to contend Henry Ford didn't buy the noted composer's birthplace when he purcheased an old frame dwelling at 3414 Penn avenue.

William B. Foster, 44, a city assessor, says his father and the composer were brothers, that he has checked all available records and has determined that the Foster memorial at 3600 Penn avenue, maintained by the city is the site of Foster's birthplace.

He said:

"I can show by records in court that the home kept by the city is on the site of the original homestead. I'm not guessing—I have the facts."

Assesor Foster was to present his data to a delegation of clubwomen scheduled to appear at Mayor McNair's office late today.

CURIE RADIUM AIDE DIES

DENVER, Col., May 21.—(AP.)—Henry T. Koenig, 42, who was said by friends to have worked with Mme. Curie, discoverer of radium, died yesterday.

Koenig, a chemist, spent several months in 1922 and 1923 at Olen, Belgium, working on radium ores brought there from the Belgian Congo. He was for many years associated with the Radium Company of Colorado.

He was a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh and held a postgraduate degree from Princeton. The body will be taken to Pittsburgh.

Henry T. Koenig, chemist who died in Denver, was graduated from the University of Pittsburgh, with the degree of bachelor of science, in 1912.

PRESBYTERIANS TO URGE SOCIAL REBUILDING

CLEVELAND, May 21.—(AP.)—A complete rebuilding of the old American economic structure with organized Christianity leading the way, will be recommended before the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, convening Thursday, in one of the most stirring resolutions it ever has received.

The resolution, prepared by Moderator John McDowell, as secretary of the committee on social and industrial relations, names these "guides" for the rebuilding process:

That new motives besides those of money-making and self-interest be developed in order that we may develop an economic system more consistent with Christian ideals.

That competition as the major controlling principle of our economic life be re-examined and an attempt made to secure rational planning in our economic life.

That our natural resources and economic institutions be considered as existing for the public good.

That it be clearly recognized that both employers and employes have the right to unite in organizations of their own choosing and bargain collectively for their own interests.

That men should be valued, not by their material success but by the services they render to the community, and that the rights of property are conditioned by the functions which its holder is able and willing to perform in behalf of the community.

That as Christians we should endeavor to give fair opportunity and equal consideration to all men in our industrial life, regardless of race or nationality.

We record our conviction that there ought to be a universal system of unemployment insurance for all workers.

FIRES CHARGED TO WATCHMAN

Carl Frank, a night watchman in the Federal Building, faced arraignment before a United States Commissioner today following his alleged confession that he started two of three small fires in the building to obtain an advancement, according to a report.

According to his alleged confession, Frank started two fires in the basement so that he could put them out, thereby attracting attention which, he hoped, would lead to a promotion.

A third fire Friday morning found Postal officials suspicious. The fire got away from Frank, and other employes assisted in extinguishing it. Called before the officials, Frank, it is reported at first blamed the fires on the careless tossing of lighted matches and cigarets, but later admitted starting two of them.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep . . . Vigor . . . Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. They should pour out thru the bladder 3 pints of fluid a day which contains 4 pounds of waste matter.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. KELLY BATTLES AIR MAIL LINE BLACKLIST

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Further disruption of the air mail service is threatened by the administration's support of the "blacklist" and demand for immediate permanent air mail legislation, Representative Clyde Kelly (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, declared today.

Adoption of the principal features of the McKellar Senate bill apparently supported by the President, would force cancellation of some temporary contracts given to established companies, he asserted.

A possible loophole appeared in the decision of Democratic members of the Senate-House Conference Committee to write a provision for an eight-months' period in which "blacklisted" companies can reorganize.

DEADLOCK BROKEN

The President, it was stated, favors the McKellar bill provision prohibiting contracts to companies connected with holding or manufacturing companies, and having interlocking directorates. The McKellar bill makes this prohibition effective immediately.

Kelly declared:

"If this becomes law, some of the old companies who removed officials attending the air mail conference during the Hoover administration in order to qualify for temporary contracts, and obtained them, will have their contracts cancelled.

"They are connected with holding and manufacturing companies and cannot divorce themselves immediately. I favor this principle, but time should be given to bring about the change. Otherwise the service will be demoralized again."

ROOSEVELT'S ATTITUDE

Mr. Roosevelt is understood to have told the conferees he opposes holding companies, interlocking directorates and manufacturing tieups and believes it should be written into permanent law. The House Postoffice Committee favored a study of the question by the proposed aviation commission.

Proposals made by the Democratic House conferees included:

The department would be permitted to extend a contract indefinitely.

The Interstate Commerce Commission would be allowed to reduce air mail rates, but would not be allowed to increase them. It would have no other authority over contracts.

CROP CONTROL FIGHT LOOMS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—By a vote of nine to three, the Senate Agriculture Committee today reported favorably amendments to the Agricultural Administration Act which give Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace greatly increased powers.

The amendments enable Wallace to control crops raised on land which has been retired from cultivation of commodities listed as basic under the Agricultural Administration Act and also to regulate processors more closely than at present.

A storm of opposition had been raised against the amendments by a number of processors who met at Chicago and their fight will continue on the Senate floor, according to all indications.

The committee also approved the Smith bill to appropriate $100,000,000 to enable the Secretary of Agriculture to hold stored cotton. Senator Smith (Dem.), of South Carolina, author, said the measure would facilitate an orderly cotton market.

BILLION LENT CLOSED BANKS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Loans to closed banks for the purpose of liquidating their obligations will amount virtually to a billion dollars, Chairman Jesse H. Jones, of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, said today.

So far 2,703 loans to 2,110 banks have been made. The total authorizations amounted to $788,000,000 of which $510,000,000 has been paid out. Jones estimated that $250,000,000 would be furnished to the closed banks.

It was believed that about 65 per cent of the deposits would be paid.

In a considerable number of cases loans have been authorized to receivers and conservators but have not been drawn by the banks. Jones urged that all authorized loans be taken by the closed institutions.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

Veteran Muckraker Back of Darrow NRA Report

WASHINGTON, May 21.—The man behind the Darrow report is Mr. Charles Edward Russell.

It was his invisible hand which guided the aging pen of the Chicago iconoclast. In fact, Mr. Russell seems to have had at least as much to do with the report as Mr. Darrow. He likewise served as Darrow's ear; Darrow's hearing is not what it used to be and much of the open testimony escaped him.

These facts are important because of Mr. Russell's background.

Mr. Russell was one of the original muckrakers of "Everybody's Magazine" years ago. He was a member of that troupe of Upton Sinclair and Lawrence Richey, detective-journalists, who exposed the meat packers and nearly every one else. He once ran for Governor of New York State on the Socialist ticket. Recently he has been living here quietly as a writer.

Mr. Russell was really the inspiration for Mr. Darrow's recommendation for socialized ownership and control of industry.

The truth is, Mr. Darrow knows little about industry, but Mr. Russell is a specialist in that subject.

Where the administration put it all over Darrow in the backstage scuffle was on publicity.

No one can beat him in a criminal case before a jury, but he was a babe in the woods when he came up against the skilled White House publicity men. He knows it now.

Darrow made his report to the White House May 4. If he could have handed it to the newspapers the same day his charges would have been a national sensation. Any good publicity man would have advised him to have given copies of the report to press associations, at least confidentially. He thought of that himself, but decided that the report was made to the President and the President should handle publication of it.

The result was that the NRA spent the following two weeks preparing a complete answer to his charges. Its report was sent to Mr. Roosevelt May 14.

By publishing the 9,000 word answer simultaneously, the 9,000 words of charges were at least partially smothered.

The effect was to create the impression that two good haters like Darrow and General Johnson were just throwing 18,000 words at each other.

The White House inner clique is quite angry at Darrow, but not administration left wingers. They really like the recommendations of the Darrow report, although they cannot say so publicly.

In this crowd are the young liberals of the administration who have been hoping from the start to direct the NRA into socialization of industry. They have never liked Johnson or his tactics. During the last few months they have been passing around the poison on him.

The result of this may be the lopping off of a few liberal heads, because the White House apparently does not side with the liberals on this subject.

At least the biggest liberal heads have literally become uneasy, and one has already made preparations to go back to the private practice of law.

HEAT

The White House has turned its furnace blower on Chairman Steagall of the House Banking Committee.

Apparently, President Roosevelt is none too well pleased with the fact that Mr. Steagall is handling three important administration bills—housing, loans to industry and deposit insurance. In a recent private conference at the executive mansion, Steagall's loyalty to the administration was discussed.

That question arises because Mr. Steagall, and his alter ego, Mr. Goldsborough, have more advanced ideas on banking than Mr. Roosevelt. For instance, Messrs. Steagall and Goldsborough have been playing with the idea of tacking the bank payoff bill or a more liberal deposit insurance scheme on one of the administration measures now in Mr. Steagall's custody.

The White House heat is being privately applied in various ways to keep Mr. Steagall a simon-pure administration man.

All of which bothers Mr. Steagall not at all. He stepped aside from such pressure last Thursday and went to the circus not once, but twice.

The lion's jaws interested him most, but he made no effort to test them personally.

NOTES

Experts in bitter words seem to agree that Darrow lost his long-worn crown to Johnson this time. Darrow scored with such phrases as "insane practice" and "grotesque absurdities" but Johnson blanketed his adversary by questioning his good faith. Comptroller O'Connor of the currency amazed a Texas audience recently by coming out strongly in the fourth paragraph of his speech and asserted flatfootedly that "Texas is the largest state in the Union." The real bon mot of Mr. O'Connor's speech, however, was his assertion that Mr. Diggs, of Dallas, "has in a brief period won a high place in Washington. Mr. Diggs is my assistant."—Senator Glass was explaining to a friend the other day his anger at being left out of the stock market conference committee along with Senator Bob Wagner. Said Glass:

"Bob says he is a philosopher, but he got just as mad as I did—well, almost."

WHITE HOUSE DELAYS SILVER MESSAGE

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—President Roosevelt today completed and prepared to send to Congress a special message sanctioning mandatory establishment of silver as 25 per cent of the nation's metallic currency reserve.

In addition to this, the message will recommend permissive provisions authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to nationalize the white metal when and if he sees fit, taking over free silver stocks at 50 cents an ounce.

Most important of all, from a long-time standpoint of view, the communication is expected to restate the administration's monetary policies, and chart the course for the future. Previous steps, in connection wtih both gold and silver will be reviewed, and their effects in the light of subsequent developments analyzed. Sources close to the executive described the forthcoming message as one which would outline Mr. Roosevelt's ideas for broad improvement of the nation's currency policy.

Mr. Roosevelt expects to send the silver message to Congress tomorrow. It had been planned to transmit it today, but for some unannounced reason it was decided to send it up Tuesday.

Delivery of the silver message to Congress will leave but three scheduled messages yet to go to the legislative bodies from the White House during the present session. A message on foreign debts, one recommending repeal of the 3 cents a pound tax on cocoanut oil contained in the recently enacted revenue bill, and a message on social legislation will complete the program.

M'LEOD BACKER TO ASK AID IN RADIO TALK

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—In a race against time to get action before adjournment, House advocates of the McLeod bank depositors' relief bill will campaign vigorously on two fronts today.

Among members of Congress, Representative McLeod (Rep.), of Michigan, author of the measure, will drive for completion of the petition calling for discharge of the committee and immediate vote on the floor.

Taking to the air, Representative Douglass (Dem.), of Massachusetts, will call upon the people in a radio address at 7:30 p. m., eastern daylight saving time, to throw their whole support behind the bill and urge their representatives to put it on the statute books.

Douglass, who has represented a Boston district for 10 years, will call on the electorate to proclaim a "new declaration of independence" and insist that Uncle Sam pay his debt to depositors whose funds are still tied up in closed banks.

The McLeod petition lacks only 18 of the 145 signatures required to bring it to the floor for action, and its chief sponsors are confident that the required number will soon be inscribed.

The next discharge day on which the petition would be considered, however, is June 11, and administration leaders have announced their intention to adjourn before that date.

Against this premature adjournment, with its elimination of bank payoff legislation for this year, the McLeod forces are opposing every parliamentary strategy in order that millions of depositors may not have to wait indefinitely for their money.

Congress Leader Backs Hearst Road Plans

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—A strong stand in favor of the proposed Pan-American highway and the establishment of a national system of super-roads is taken by the chairman of the House Roads Committee.

Complimenting the Hearst newspapers for their advocacy of these two projects, Representative Cartwright (Dem.), of Oklahoma, declared he would do everything in his power to insure the beginning of the undertakings through action by this session of Congress.

In his recent message asking for 1,322 million dollars more for relief and recovery, President Roosevelt made specific request of five million dollars for commencement on the inter-American road starting in Texas and running eventually to Buenos Aires and Chile. Cartwright said:

"This is a magnificent idea. It would provide employment for thousands and go very far in linking the interests of the Americas.

The total amount of roads money requested by the President is only 100 million dollars, but Cartwright is confident he can have this at least doubled in order to provide funds for a survey of a broad national highway system.

MORITZ ALTERS LIQUOR STAND; MAN HELD

Police Magistrate Theodore L. Moritz today had executed what will be regarded by many as an about-face of his and Mayor McNair's stand on enforcement of the state liquor laws.

Moritz, sitting in Penn Avenue Police Court, held for court a defendant charged with violating those laws.

This was in direct contrast to the action of Mayor McNair, who eight days ago discharged three such defendants — and was defended for so doing by Moritz in a heated hearing before Alderman Ray E. Schneider.

Moritz, however, insisted that he had been misrepresented. He explained that he and the Mayor were not opposed to legitimate enforcement of the liquor laws, but were against the practice of police invading possible offenders' places without search warrants.

The magistrate, who is also the Mayor's secretary, explained himself when one Joseph Wessel, of Garnet way, was arraigned.

Police Inspector Elias Wentzel testified that before the raid the search warrant had been recited to Wessel, that an information charging him with the violation had been made. Wentzel added that a gallon and a half of moonshine and a few cases of beer had been seized.

'SITTERS AROUND' FREED

Moritz announced:

"We have to protect the people who buy licenses. They thought I was against that at Schneider's hearing, but I was only against going into private dwellings without a search warrant. The papers got that wrong. Now here we have a perfect case for the state."

Inspector Wentzel sympathized:

"Yes, I know. The papers misquoted you."

So Wessel was held for court and five young men who Wentzel testified had been "sitting around" in Wessel's kitchen were discharged.

When the three alleged violators of the liquor laws were arraigned before the Mayor, sitting as magistrate, eight days ago, His Honor discharged them after hearing little, if any, of the evidence.

COVERED 3 HEARINGS

Aroused, agents of the State Department of Revenue filed charges against the same three before Alderman Schneider, who held two for court and fined the third—a woman—$25.

The Mayor didn't appear to conduct any of the police-court hearings yesterday, but Moritz covered three of them and followed his boss' example in handling drunks.

At Oakland three were let go.

In one case a drunk was sent up for 60 days because he wrecked the homes of his in-laws.

"Go 'head."

And off they'd go.

CAN'T JAIL TEN, M'NAIR 'SORRY'

Mayor McNair, sitting on the bench in North Side police court today bemoaned Council's failure to pass an ordinance providing a 30-day sentence for drunks.

At present only a state law carrying a penalty of $2 fine or two days in jail is effective. The Mayor told 10 men arraigned charged with drunkenness:

"Well, boys, I can't do anything with your cases. Council won't pass the ordinance to let me send you to jail. If Council should happen to wake up today and pass the ordinance and you are back in tomorrow I will send you away for 30 days."

The Mayor fined Vincent Zelinski, of 7 Belmont street, $10 and discharged his neighbor, John Noweski, both arrested on a disorderly conduct charge following a fight. Both had been drinking, police testified.

MUSICIANS SET FOR CONTEST

Winners of the recent statewide high school orchestra contest, the Bellevue High School Orchestra will leave Pittsburgh Wednesday to participate Friday night in the National Orchestra Contest, to be held at Ottowa, Kansas, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The orchestra, directed by Robert H. Ruthart, won second honor rating in the national competition last year at Elmhurst, Ill. The 1933 contest marked the organization's first try for national laurels.

Other honors won by the orchestra include capture of first place in the 1933 state contest. The group is composed of 46 players, 28 boys and 18 girls. They will be accompanied on their trip westward by Mr. Ruthart, C. N. Schenkel, school principal, and several mothers and faculty members.

STEEDLE JUDGE FREES FIVE AT VOTE TRIAL

William Schwartz, Stowe policemen.

The defense then began to put in its case.

Dr. Steedle was called as the first witness. He denied that he had hatched a plot to steal the November (1932) election and scouted the testimony of Robert K. Boyer, government star witness.

The veteran McKees Rocks political boss admitted that two days after the election he and Boyer had had a meeting in Squire Westwood's office.

But, he added, at no time did he invite Boyer, who was a defeated candidate for the Legislature, to contribute $200 towards expenses for altering ballots in Stowe and Scott townships and Carnegie.

Steedle testified that he had called Boyer in to discuss a report that Steedle should have been credited with 197 votes in Mt. Lebanon instead of the 97 indicated in the returns.

The defendant related that he had asked Robert S. Haus, another defendant, to pick up Boyer, who is a Mt. Lebanon Township Commissioner, and bring him to Westwood's offict.

Haus did, then left, Steedle said, adding:

"We went to a rear room and discussed calling in boxes for a recount."

Steedle said that he also asked Haus to see the minority inspector in the Mt. Lebanon district and obtain a correction in the vote.

In his opening argument to the jury Steedle's counsel, Attorney John A. Metz, promised to show that Steedle took no part in changing any ballots, that both official and unofficial counts indicate he had been elected.

U. S. RESTS CASE

Before the government rested its case Prosecutors James I. Marsh and Louis E. Graham produced as their last witness Nelson Zimmerman, an agent for the Department of Justice, who has made a count of the disputed ballots i nthe courtroom since the trial started.

Zimmerman told of counting the ballots for the November (1932) election from the First Ward of Carnegie, First and Third districts of Scott Township and Third and Fourth districts of Stowe Township.

In his count, as against the original count by election boards, Steedle gained 836 votes, Robert K. Boyer gained 649 and 'Squire James J. Westwood added 868. All were candidates for the Legislature, but only Steedle was successful.

DAVIS GAINS 119

Zimmerman's count showed that few changes were made in the presidential vote (the Roosevelt-Hoover) fight or in the vote for other federal offices. United States Senator James J. Davis' gain was 119.

Former Congressman Guy E. Campbell, who testified for the government, gained only 40 votes in Zimmerman's count.

The defense's opening move was to ask that Boyer be recalled for further cross-examination but Judge F. P. Schoonmaker refused the request.

Trial of five members of the election board in the First District of the Fourth Ward, scheduled to begin this week, was postponed indefinitely because of the time needed for the Steedle trial and the trial of State Senator James J. Coyne and others, which is slated for Wednesday or Thursday.

Vas Sharlie Dere? For Once the Answer's Yes

NEW YORK, May 21.—The next time Jack Pearl asks "Vas you dere, Sharlie?" about the State Supreme Court, his partner, Cliff Hall, should answer in the affirmative.

For trial of the separation action brought by Mrs. June Porges Hall is scheduled to start today.

Mrs. Hall charges that "Sharlie" beat her, called her names and abandoned her.

But "Sharlie" says he was locked out of his home.

War Days Recalled In Play By Vets

Recalling their war-time experiences in France, members of the Sergt. William H. Carney Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will present "Veterans' Memories," a three-act comedy drama in the Roosevelt Theater on Sunday, June 3, for the benefit of needy war veterans. The play was written and produced by Richard M. Martin and Voyle Parker, members of the post.

Reading Nominee Found Dead in Room

READING, Pa., May 21.—(AP.)—MacCormick G. Moore, iron and steel broker, nominated by the Republican party last week for city councilman, was found dead yesterday in his room at the Wyomising Club. Coroner S. G. Glick said death was caused by heart trouble.

Moore was graduated from Westminster College.

A CERTIFIED INTERVIEW WITH CONSTRUCTION ENGINEER FRANK VIOLETTE, PANAMA CANAL ZONE

"We punish cars in this tough spot. But let me tell you how my Plymouth takes it."

"Up in the States, you test cars in man-made sand pits," he told us. "In the Canal Zone, our everyday driving proves how a car takes punishment. I've found that of all low-priced cars, Plymouth stands up best."

And Mr. Violette isn't surprised that Plymouth proved to be the strongest. As an engineer, he knows that steel reinforced with steel is the safest form of construction.

"I've given my Plymouth some terrific beatings," he says. "But its Safety-Steel Body is still as quiet and tight as the day it left the factory."

Some people who read this story will stop right here. They are the people who think that a Safety-Steel Body isn't necessary for ordinary driving.

It isn't . . . all of the time. But nobody can forever trust the "other fellow's" driving. That's why Plymouth engineers built extra safety into Plymouth . . . and equipped it with the safest kind of brakes . . . the Hydraulic Brakes you'll find on trucks and taxis.

It takes Plymouth to give you complete protection in every driving emergency. And it takes Plymouth, too, to give you complete comfort under all possible driving conditions.

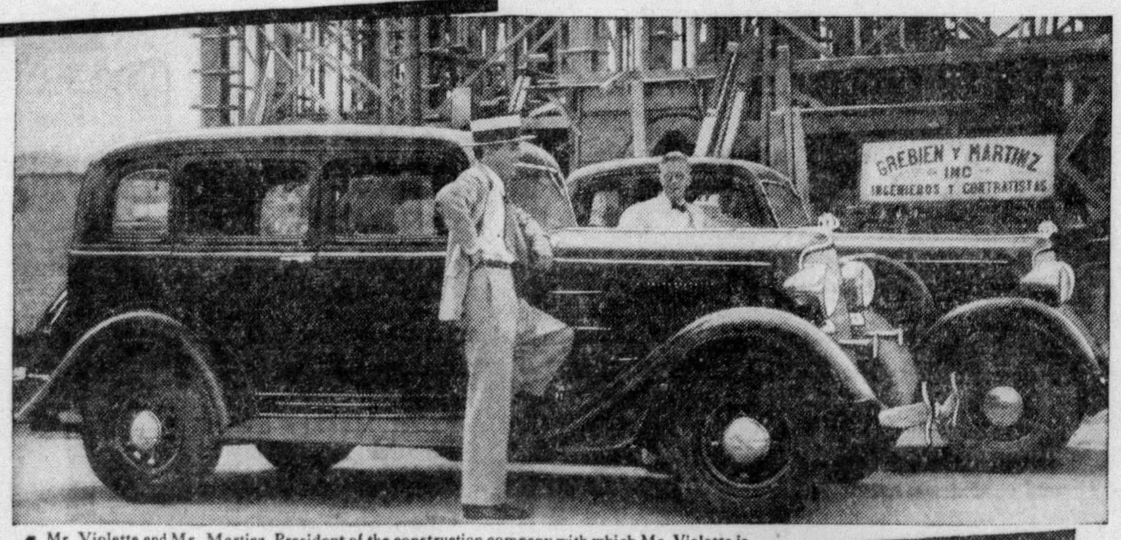
• • •

EVEN AT HIGH speeds, its patented Floating Power engine mountings deaden motor vibration. Even on the ruttiest roads, its Individual Wheel Springing carries you smoothly.

Try the other low-priced cars. And then ride in Plymouth. Any Dodge, De Soto or Chrysler dealer will arrange it.

1 "Ten years in Panama have taught me to take precautions that many people overlook. I have to be prepared for all sorts of emergencies. That's why I wanted an extra tough car."

2 "We depend on steel for safety in the Canal and in our buildings down here. We've found it's positive proof against everything from earthquakes to termites. So I knew that, in a car, a Safety-Steel Body would be the very strongest. That was one of Plymouth's features that sold me the hardest."



3 "Some of our roads weren't built for comfort. But my Plymouth was. Its Individual Wheel Springing levels off the bumps. And its Hydraulic Brakes keep me out of many unexpected mud holes. In fact, there are no anxious moments for me even when I drive off the roads, 'cross country."

4 Mr. Violette and Mr. Martinz, President of the construction company with which Mr. Violette is associated, each with his DeLuxe Plymouth. Plymouth prices begin at $530 at the factory, subject to change without notice. Time payments to fit your budget. Ask for the Official Chrysler Motors Commercial Credit Plan. FEWER DEATHS HERE LAID TO PNEUMONIA

A substantial decrease in Pittsburgh's pneumonia death rate in 1933 as compared with 1932 has been reported by Health Director Ray P. Moyer.

An analysis of health conditions, compiled by Dr. Moyer after a study of 1933 statistics recorded in the Bureau of Infectious Diseases, shows the pneumonia death rate at 103.3 per 100,000 population in 1933 compared with 172.1 in 1932.

The lowest typhoid fever death rate in the history of the city was attained with a record of 0.1 per 100,000 population as compared with 1.3 for 1932. This is particularly of interest because 30 years ago Pittsburgh recorded a typhoid rate as high as 66.

The general death rate in 1933 was 10.9 per 1,000 population compared with 12.7 in 1932.

The infant mortality rate was 54.3 per 1,000 live births in 1933 compared with 67.1 in 1932. The birth rate itself, however, declined, being 17.2 per 1,000 population in 1933 compared with 19.1 in 1932. There were 1,267 fewer babies born in 1933 than in 1932.

Tuberculosis deaths continued to decline, the rate per 100,000 population in 1933 being 46.8 as compared with 55.2 in 1932.

The cancer rate was 116.2 as compared with 110.8 in 1932. The violent death rate dropped in 1933 to 95.5 from 106.6 in 1932.

Measles	0.4	2.2
Scarlet fever	2.7	4.7
Whooping cough	4.2	3.5
Diphtheria	2.9	4.2
Influenza	16.9	35.9

GRID STAR HELD IN PARTY DEATH

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, May 21.—As a consequence of a gay party climaxed by a fight, Clifford Keane, 21-year-old star football player of La Salle College, languished in jail here today, charged with "homicide by fist."

The fatal fight was staged in front of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pedeken early yesterday during the waning hours of merry festivities. The victim was Daniel Quinn, 18-year-old senior at Roman Catholic High School.

Felled by a blow, allegedly delivered by Keane, the high school youngster died a short time later in a hospital from a fractured skull.

Police announced that Keane, whose home is in Valley Falls, R. I., has confessed striking the blow. The Quinn boy, according to witnesses, dropped to the sidewalk. His head struck the concrete.

Havana Lawyer's Residence Bombed

HAVANA, May 21.—(AP.)—Bombers struck today at Manuel Sainz Silveira, defense attorney for policemen charged with murder during the regime of former President Gerardo Machado.

A woman was wounded gravely when a bomb did considerable damage to the lawyer's residence. It was the second bombing at the home in four months.

Weir Named Trustee Of Charitable Body

E. T. Weir, head of the Weirton Steel Company, has been chosen a member of the board of trustees, Pittsburgh Association for the Improvement of the Poor. He succeeds the late George D. Edwards. Daniel M. Clemson is president of the association.

Prof. Simpson, Noted Scot Educator, Dies

EDINBURGH, May 21.—(AP.)—Prof. James Young Simpson, eminent educator, author and world traveler, died today. He was born in Edinburgh 60 years ago. He married Helen Huntington, daughter of T. C. Day, of Indianapolis, Ind.

This is the eleventh of a series of Safety Cartoons drawn by a CWA artist for the Better Traffic Committee as an educational aid in reducing the growing number of traffic accidents in Pittsburgh. The artist, Frank McFeaters, was one of 100 CWA workers assigned to the Better Traffic Committee and his art ability was an accidental discovery.

Sleep-walking pedestrians gamble with Death. In these days of heavy traffic, pedestrians are numbered either among the "quick or the dead."

It is true that a pedestrian has the right of way over autos making turns; it is also true that traffic should slow when a pedestrian is crossing at a crosswalk. Yet after an accident, reflection on these well-known rules is little compensation.

SUSPECT DENIES RACKET SLAYING

Sought in the racket slaying of Joseph Mortillaro in New York, December 17, 1932, a man claiming he is Joe Grasso, 21, of 5 Higden street, Hazelwood, is under arrest by New York police today.

They said he was identified as Joseph Gerbino, 22, of the Bronx. The suspect denied the identification and said he knew nothing of the Mortillaro murder or the killing of Margaret Piletsky Criochock, strangeled in her New York apartment last December 13.

The prisoner was arrested in a chase following a holdup by three bandits in New York recently. Police said Bertillon records revealed his true identity. August Napolitano, of 5 Higden street, said Gerbino had never lived there, police alleged.

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W.: Some letters from Chicago over the sympathy for Insull . . . They argue he yelled over the $250,000 bail bond which would have cost him $5,000—which he has . . . And how about the huge moneys he spent to charter boats to escape—and this and that? . . . Alvin Hamburg phoned. Said that Dillinger's real first name must be Elmer . . . Must I draw pictures for that one?

Jack Arthur has a thumb-nail description on you—The Broadway Robinhood . . . Earl Carroll is making a swift trip to various cities—Making as many as three daily for guess what? . . . To meet the movie critics because his first picture debuts soon . . . I thought he hated critics so much he wasn't going to invite them any more to his attractions? . . . Knowing how crazy you are over Gordon and Revel's latest "With My Eyes Wide Open I'm Dreaming"—Wait'll you hear Etting coo it . . . I hear Runyon's "Little Miss Marker" is better than his "Lady for a Day."

L. E. Janney called. Said he hoped you would help him clear up a matter—that it wasn't his fault that Milton Berle was embarrassed at that Ambassador Theatre benefit, causing Berle to walk off . . . You must have had a honey of a time in Detroit—to read the reams of stuff . . . They sure went to town for you . . . Only blunder you had in the Detroit pillar was about the tunnel being the only one of its kind . . . There is a crazy rumor around Broadway that Federal sleuths have agreed not to arrest Dillinger . . . What rot! . . . Did you know that a child was arrested again for disturbing the Central Park grass? . . . One headline in a Washington paper was very gay—It ran a picture of the child and its parents—And the headline was: "New York Fights Crime Wave!"

Capone will have plenty of company at the Atlanta place in the Autumn, I hear . . . When the Internal Revenue Department begins prosecuting the celebs who went in for the big-time gyppery in filing their returns . . . Martin Mooney has written a bang-up yarn by the way, entitled "Special Agent"—revolving around the Department of Justice . . . The Eton Boys thought you'd like Oscar Wilde's nifty: "I choose friends for their good looks, my acquaintances for their good characters, and my enemies for their intellect!" . . . Clyde Beatty has engaged an attorney to collect money he thinks is due him for granting a magazine an interview . . . Donald McMurray, the architect, will marry Alberta Schneider, the dancer, in August . . . The coast critics panned "Memory" but hailed Helen Morgan as a star.

Tell me something. When are those smart guys in Hollywood going to wake up and insist that Hellinger write movies for them regularly? . . . His next "On the Nose," according to reports, is a pippin . . . Damon Runyon would like you to do the foreword to his next book . . . I assured him you would—Knowing what you think of Damon . . . Have I news for you—Wheeee! . . . About that certain phoney . . . He's around town hysterical, threatening to kill himself, etc., and the usual blah . . . Don't they always scream when they are trapped, though?

The Authors' League has taken over the Casino De Paree for May 22nd . . . They would like you to join them that night—So now let anybody say you ain't an author, by heck! . . . You ought to see the mail I'm saving from Chicago over the boosts you gave that town . . . St. Louis will be interested in this: Emil Strauss, millionaire, and his divorced wife, had dinner together in the Manila Hotel (Philippines) on March 25 . . . It was a sensation when they melted and she got plenty.

Ganna Walska pays Frances Alda $50 daily for voice lessons and Walska will take Alda to Yurrop with her, paying all fees. It was Alda who persuaded Ganna to give up her New York concert until her vocalizing was good . . . Byron Gay, I hear, who made the trip with Byrd to Little America, returned—and made a talk in Los Angeles . . . He is supposed to have said in a speech: "I do not believe Admiral Byrd will return alive" . . . He didn't amplify that statement—and people are wondering . . . Me, too . . . Nothing else much that can't wait till you get home.

Players and Plays

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Reports from the Center avenue theatrical district are to the effect that there have been two Simon Legrees raisin' thunder around the Irene Kaufmann Settlement. One, of course, would be that old meanie created by Harriet Beecher Stowe for the express purpose of making a black-snake whip sing its menacing tune for poor old Uncle Tom in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," to be staged tomorrow night in the Theresa L. Kaufmann Auditorium by the Settlement Players. The other slave-driver, our Hill scout reports, is Louis Isaacs, who is directing the play. Lou, of course, is a perfect gentleman, and it must be that, in telling the player of Legree how fiendish he should be, he forgot to become himself again after giving the demonstration, and just kept on snarling at the 40 members of the cast in order to make them letter perfect in their parts for the presentation of this great moral play. Even the bloodhounds have been cowed by him, it is said. But, alas, it also is claimed that it has been harder on himself than anybody else, as in the case of all daddies, and that he has shed 20 pounds during the course of his labors. Hence, he qualifies both as a slave and a slave-annoyer.

A week of performances of Galsworthy's "The Skin Game" by the drama department of Tech will begin tonight in the Theater of the College of Fine Arts on the Tech campus. E. W. Hickman is the director.

Doris Kenyon, who is one of the triple-plated artists of Hollywood, will desert the studios to open a concert tour in Detroit one week from Tuesday. Other cities to be visited by the actress-writer-singer are Lansing, Chicago, St. Louis and Terre Haute.

You can believe it or not, but, if it's true, Will Rogers is prepared for all emergencies when he goes to the studio. Ordinarily he wears either a blue suit or a brown one unless the script calls for some other garb. It is reported that during the making of "Handy Andy" Director David Butler stopped him.

"That's the wrong suit, Bill," Butler said. "You wear the blue one this morning and the brown one this afternoon."

"Okay," replied Rogers, and peeled off the brown suit, revealing the blue one beneath.

While working in "Grand Canary," in which he is starred, Warner Baxter has been making week-end pilgrimages to the ranch of a friend where he is directing a film being made with his niece, Betty Bryson, and Frank McGrath, his stand-in, in the lead roles. Silver King and the other horses once owned by the late Fred Thompson are being used for the picture. The picture is being made for a souvenir and to give dramatic experience to Miss Bryson and to McGrath.

Jones Exposition to Open Tonight

Yesterday the special train bringing the hundreds of performers, wagons, tents, etc., necessary to operate the big Johnny J. Jones Exposition pulled into Pittsburgh. The show will open tonight in Exposition Park, and will continue each afternoon and night for two weeks.

One of the features of the show is Vera Spriggs, "America's greatest sensational lady aerialist," whose exhibition on an 110-foot slender steel tower is a series of acrobatic, gymnastic and balancing stunts. This is the fifteenth consecutive year the Johnny J. Jones Exposition has showed in Pittsburgh.

Girl From Society Gets New Chance

Five years ago Francis Hamilton, then a society debutante of Pasadena, Cal., was offered, and accepted, a $350 a week contract by a Hollywood studio. Caring little for the $350 a week, Miss Hamilton married and forgot the screen. The marriage was short-lived. Then her father died, their fortune started to crumble, and today the one-time daughter of great wealth is working as an extra in a picture with Jack Oakie.

Early Birds Spotted on Boulevard

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, May 21.—Hello! It was one of those warmish, misty-like mornings . . . Hollywood blvd. at 7 a. m. was practically deserted — certainly no time to seek celebs . . . But there was Tony Moreno scurrying into a coffee shop for breakfast, and there was Gus Shy, sleepy-eyed, following close after him.

A store's burglar alarm sounded, but nothing to get excited about. Just the janitor in a forgetful mood . . . Arthur Klein, the agent, awaited his motor in front of the Knickerbocker Hotel . . . Jerry Mayer waddled by . . . and a flivver overloaded with extra girls, skidded around a corner . . . Harry McCoy, the gum-chewing gagman, was window shopping, and stopped to chin with Billy Bevan, ex-Sennett comedian, and his mamma . . . It was early morn and Hollywood Blvd. . . .

* * *

Bright sayings with brighter youngsters: When a pupil in a Waldo, Kan., public school handed in her arithmetic examination paper, the teacher was somewhat surprised to notice that she had signed it "Mae West." Asked why she did this, the replied: "Because I done 'em wrong!"

Latest news notes: Things have been happening to Ginger Rogers. Shortly after pocketing the TIDY sum awarded her out of court in a suit in which she charged a diet expert, radio sponsor, etc., with impersonating her without permission, Ginger was signed to a 52-week contract (without layoffs, mind you) by RKO.

* * *

Although I certainly DO NOT agree with her, I can't help printing Gloria Stuart's simple but direct statement: "Hollywood is without a 'best-dressed' woman!"

Knowing publicity-seekers as I do, the crack will undoubtedly start a verbal war. Anyway, it's Gloria's story — and she's stuck with it!

Wanderings around Hollywood SURPRISE! According to one of my shoppers, Evelyn Davidson, ward of the late William Wrigley, Jr., is supposed to be SECRETLY married. If true, it's her FOURTH leap . . . That screen stars frolic at the Gilmore Stadium is REALLY going to be sumpin.

* * *

Joan Gale, one of the many, well—four, if you want to count 'em—Gale sisters, gets her BEEG cinema chance in "Blind Date" for Columbia. The second lead, no less . . . Casey Robinson, the script writer, is moving his typewriter from the Charles R. Rogers outfit to Warners' . . . Sam Wood, the megaphonist, is on the dotted line for another season at M-G-M . . . Little Dickie Moore, the kiddie performer, who has been recovering from a siege of scarlet fever, made a VERRA WISE remark. He asked his mother which was most important—health or wealth, and she replied that health was by far the most important. He thought a moment, then said:

"Yes, I think you're right, mother—considering that I've had those $2 in the bank all these weeks, and they didn't do me a bit of good!"

Heggie to Do Role In 'Monte Cristo'

O. P. Heggie and Sidney Blackmer have been signed by Reliance Pictures to appear in support of Robert Donat and Elissa Landi in the forthcoming new production of "The Count of Monte Cristo." Mr. Heggie was seen in New York this season in the stage play, "The Green Bay Tree." He will play Abbe Faria and Mr. Blackmer will play Mondego in the new version of the great romantic classic, which is to be released through United Artists. Mr. Donat, who will play Edmond Dantes, is the English actor who played Thomas Culpepper in "The Private Life of Henry VIII."

B'NAI B'RITH TO MEET

The eighty-second annual convention of District Grand Lodge No. 3, B'nai B'rith, will open with special services in Temple B'nai Israel, McKeesport, Friday night.

The meeting, which will be addressed by Senator William King, of Utah, and Dr. Abram L. Sachar, of the University of Illinois, will continue through Sunday.

Hundreds of delegates from more than 50 lodges in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and West Virginia are expected to attend. A feature will be the installation of Attorney Frank R. S. Kaplan, of Pittsburgh and McKeesport, as president of the organization.

Mike Fright Nothing to Camera's

By IRVIN S. COBB

Written Exclusively for Universal Service

HOLLYWOOD, May 21. — I thought I was case-hardened in this game of making public appearances.

For years, I was one of those lowest forms of animal life known as after dinner speakers who, from behind the breastwork of their starched shirts, geyser forth bad oratory and worse jokes. I cured stage fright in that field of misguided endeavor until I became widely known as the old faithful of the banquet board (spell board either way).

Then, for my sins, I went on the lecture platform and the lyceum bureau came to know my plaintive flute-like notes, and the great open spaces of the summer Chautauqua—average temperature 112 in the shade and no shade—reverberated to the echoes of my home-brewed eloquence.

Next, when radio came along, I tackled radio and, facing the cold unresponsive dish face of the microphone, found it reasonably hard to be comic in a cuspidor.

So, I thought, in my ignorance and my vanity, that I was proof against the qualms of stage fright, but, when making tests for that intrepid adventurer, Hal Roach, I put on make-up and grease paint and walked out on a stage cluttered with props to face glaring kleig lights and perambulating sound devices and owl-eyed cameras, and other instruments of torture left over from the Spanish inquisition, and beheld, in the background, a mixed congregation of cameramen, directors, assistant directors, second assistant directors, second assistant directors' assistants, technicians, stage carpenters, a supervisor or two and a considerable number of persons still unidentified, who probably were there because they enjoy morbid spectacles—well, then it was that I blew up like an overgassed captive balloon.

All my vital organs moved up in my throat so that I could taste them, and one of them—I think it was my liver—didn't taste so dog-goned good.

My tongue clove to the roof of my mouth and my knees gave way under me and my teeth chattered until an auditor might have been pardoned for believing that this venture of mine was opening with a castanet solo.

And now, when I think that through the months I must go on day by day enduring that ordeal, I am sorely tempted to seek out a steep declivity of your golden Southern California, so much of which seems to stand on end, and just leap off and end all.

Still Hal Roach says that he can stand it and I guess, for a price, I can stand it, but the great problem of whether the public can stand it remains, for the moment, one of the unsolved mysteries of this whole mad business.

Colman to Return As Drummond

"Bulldog Drummond Strikes Back," is being edited for release early this summer. This picture not only marks Ronald Colman's return to the screen after an absence of several months, but the story itself is a sequel to "Bulldog Drummond," in which Colman played the handsome, amateur detective who helped solve one of England's strangest mysteries. With Mr. Colman in the cast are Loretta Young, C. Aubrey Smith, Halliwell Hobbs, Warner Oland, and Katherine Burke.

All In A Day

By MARK HELLINGER

An Average Day.

8 A. M.—Arises with a snap, feeling full of pep, vim and vigor. There is a new day ahead; a new day to be filled with many pleasant and exciting episodes.

9 A. M.—Hits for the dining room, after having enjoyed a cold, invigorating shower and a brisk rubdown. He finds his wife awaiting him and they sit down to a tasty breakfast of orange juice, cereal, bacon and eggs and coffee.

9:30 A. M.—Pats his huge Russian Wolfhound an affectionate goodby, kisses his wife tenderly, nods to the butlers and maids, and goes downstairs to his new Rolls-Royce roadster.

10 A. M.—Arrives at his office and is cordially greeted by everyone. Enters his office to find that his highly efficient secretary has already opened his huge mail for him.

10:30 A. M.—Offers. Offers. Offers. The Gristle Oil Corporation wants to give him $10,000 for a small testimonial. The Dumhead Picture Corporation wants to know if he'll take $150,000 to star in a new film to be written especially for him by George Bernard Shaw. The columnist tosses the letters into the waste basket with a smile. He can't be bothered with insignificant things.

11 A. M.—The phone rings. President Roosevelt calls from Washington, D. C., with a new gag he heard at a dinner the previous night. Columnist tells the President he regrets his inability to use the gag, as it has already appeared in his column.

11:30 A. M.—Writes his column. As he writes, all motors in the building are stilled and other workers walk around on tip-toe. As the copy goes to the composing room, the editor calls the columnist to congratulate him on his sparkling material. Columnist has his secretary take the message.

11:50 A. M.—The column is finished. The columnist arises, dons his other coat, tells his secretary to phone Earl Benham and order five new suits, and goes to the Waldorf for luncheon. He is met there by Mayor La Guardia, Greta Garbo, Joan Crawford, Billy Rose, John Dillinger, Judge Crater and Marlene Dietrich, all of whom have been waiting anxiously for him.

2:30 P. M.—Attends a matinee. He sits in the front row, thereby making the actors so nervous they are unable to work. But he encourages them by smiling warmly—and they work as they never worked before.

7 P. M.—Dines with his wife at Dinty Moore's. Is continually interrupted by producers, screen stars, radio artists, comedians and agents who fight to give him gags and offers. Situation finally gets so bad that the gentle, soft-spoken proprietor throws all the other customers out of the place and orders the waiters to serve no one but the columnist.

8:59 P. M.—Arrives at an opening night. Autograph hunters desert George Raft, Clark Gable, Peggy Fears and Tammany Young, and swoop down upon the columnist.

12:30 A. M.—Crosses the Washington Bridge with a motorcycle escort to attend the premiere of Ben Marden's Riviera, one of the world's finest night clubs. Takes a bow, is accorded a 20-minute ovation—and departs.

2 A. M.—Home and in bed. A bit tired, but happy in the knowledge that his life is extremely pleasant . . .

* * *

1 P. M.—Arises blearily, staggers into the bathroom and swears violently when he accidentally turns on cold water.

1:30 P. M.—Trembles into dining room, learns his wife has gone out, so kisses maid instead. Has breakfast consisting of one cigaret, one aspirin, one coffee and one Bromo-Seltzer. Dog growls at him as he puts on his 1929 overcoat.

2 P. M.—Taxis to his office where nobody speaks to him but a porter to whom he has promised a pass to Minsky's. Finds that his secretary hasn't arrived yet. Sits down at his dust-laden desk and opens his mail listlessly.

3 P. M.—Bills. Bills. Bills. Chain letters. Mail from youths who have written songs but won't send them to song publishers, the crooks. More bills. Poetry from aged spinsters. Old gags from press agents. More bills.

4 P. M.—Sends out for luncheon consisting of a fried egg sandwich, one aspirin, one coffee and one Bromo-Seltzer. He does not eat the sandwich.

5 P. M.—Stumbles upon an acceptable contribution from Fred Koszalka and begins to write feverishly. Editor calls up to say copy is late again—and that next time it will stay out altogether. Columnist apologizes humbly.

7 P. M.—Columnist leaves office for dinner at the Corner Coffee Pot. In that place, he finds his secretary, who has been there all afternoon. Secretary says he thought it was Sunday.

9 P. M.—Goes to a double feature movie house to kill a couple of hours. Finds that he has seen both pictures before.

11:30 P. M.—Begins to wander from night club to night club. Breathes stale air and listens to even staler gags. Gets a headache and takes two aspirin tablets.

7 A. M.—Alarm rings violently because wife is getting up early. Columnist can sleep no longer. He arises, stumbles into the living room and begins work on his new book, "101 Ways to Commit Suicide." . . .

PITTSBURGH'S ORIGINAL BARGAIN BASEMENT

COAL, STEEL MEN HERE DENY NRA CRUSHES LITTLE FELLOW

agencies connected with the larger coal companies, it was pointed out that small companies have equal representation with the large on the authority.

J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company and chairman of the authority, said the content of the Darrow report made it "worthless and undeserving of serious consideration."

Other members of the Code Authority are A. R. Budd, Hillman Coal and Coke Company; J. T. M. Stoneroad, Carnegie Coal Corporation; W. W. Keefer, Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company; Ralph E. Jamison, Jamison Coal and Coke Company; Harry F. Bovard, Keystone Coal and Coke Company; Ralph H. Kanode, Westmoreland Coal Company; John G. Hoffstot, Lincoln Gas Coal Company, and Charles F. Hasford, Jr., Butler Consolidated Coal Company.

Morrow denied specifically the finding that the price of coal was fixed without regard for its sulphur content, and described as a "deliberate untruth" the statements that railroads were supplied with coal below prevailing prices in Western Pennsylvania.

MINE CLASSIFICATION

He said:

"Speaking generally, it can be said the position of the small coal producer in Western Pennsylvania today under our code is far better than it was a year ago without the code."

MONOPOLY DENIED

J. B. Brunot, vice president of the Irwin Gas Coal Company, of Greensburg, said:

"The charges of monopoly are absolutely not true in Western Pennsylvania. Business is better under the code in the respect that labor conditions are better; and the big companies are not preying on the little ones. Our company produces about 30,000 tons a month, and we are therefore comparatively a small company. We think the code is sound, and bound to benefit the whole industry, and that it has been handled eminently fair."

Harry Bovard, of the Keystone Coal and Coke Company, Greensburg, a company with a production of about one and a half million tons a year, said:

"I think that if the code is enforced, it will be a very good thing. I never heard any complaint from any small operator, and I cannot see that it could hurt the small business."

STEEL MAN SPEAKS

Harry E. Sheldon, president of the Allegheny Steel Company, said the steel code has benefited the small producer of steel rather than the larger.

Denying the implication of the Darrow report that the steel code was administered by the big steel men and for their interest, he declared:

"Our company is one of the larger of the independent companies. Judging from my own experience, the steel code has rendered a great service for the small steel producer.

"The smaller companies can produce steel more cheaply than the larger ones and the so-called 'arbitrary fixing of prices' reacts to the benefit of the small producer."

E. T. Weir, chairman of the board of the National Steel Corporation, said:

"The report clearly indicates the state of confusion which exists in Washington. There is nothing constructive in the report. I do not see how any board headed by a man like Darrow could make a report on industry which would be worth while."

THEATER MEN'S STAND

Two independent representatives of the motion picture industry upheld the findings of the Darrow board which assailed the theater code as "monopolistic and oppressive."

Bennett Amdur, 6109 Stanton avenue, and Albert J. Weiland, 238 McKinley avenue, hailed the Darrow report as "remarkable." Amdur said:

"It's great stuff. The report reveals what the independent theater owners have complained of for years."

Weiland said:

"The report is absolutely true, for we've been struggling against the worst sort of monopoly in our industry, forced to take whatever the big chains and producers will give us."

John P. Harris, of the Harris theaters, said the code provides protection exhibitors need.

Among the ice dealers, George Amsler, 1112 Penn avenue, complained against present business, but said the ice code was not responsible for existing conditions.

Text of Darrow Report to Roosevelt Putting NRA Codes 'On Spot'

'Big Fish' Destroy Small, Probing Board Finds

WASHINGTON, May 20.—(AP.)—Following is the text of an official synopsis of Clarence Darrow's report from the National Recovery Review Board to President Roosevelt, criticizing the National Recovery Administration:

The National Recovery Review Board, created by your Executive Order of March 7, 1934, begs leave to report herewith its findings to date.

The duties and functions of this board were described in your order as follows:

"1—To ascertain and report to the President whether any codes or codes of fair competition approved under the authority of Title I of the National Recovery Act are designed to promote monopolies or to eliminate or oppress small enterprises or operate to discriminate against them, or will permit monopolies or monopolistic practices, and if it finds in the affirmative to specify in its report wherein such results follow from the adoption and operation of any such codes or codes.

"2—To recommend to the President such changes in any approved code or codes as, in the opinion of the board, will rectify or eliminate such results."

Pursuant to the executive order, the board assembled on March 7, began at once to receive complaints, and held its first hearing on March 15.

Complainants Heard

The board now has 304 complainants awaiting hearings. Their complaints concern 104 codes. One hundred and thirteen complaints have already been heard, against 18 codes. Of these which have been heard reports are included herein concerning the following:

Electrical manufacturing.
Footwear division, rubber manufacturing.
Motion pictures.
Retail solid fuel.
Steel.
Ice.
Cleaning and dyeing.

The following codes have been held, but drafting of the recommendations has not been completed:

Petroleum.
Lumber and lumber products.
Wood case lead pencil.
Asbestos.
Motor vehicle retailing.

Many Witnesses

At the hearings every opportunity was afforded for the presenting of every phase of the subject under inquiry, the interests involved were notified through the code authority, many witnesses were heard, counsel was allowed to present arguments. Only one industry, that of motion pictures, declined to avail itself of these facilities until after the hearing had been concluded.

The board respectfully begs leave to submit the following synopsis of reports in connection with codes indicated:

Electrical Manufacturing

FINDINGS—The monopolistic conditions existing in this industry do not result from the code, but from the control of patents and other longstanding factors. Ninety-three per cent of the incandescent lamp division of the business is, and long has been, in the hands of one corporation. No evidence was presented that would justify the board in formulating any decision in regard to the possible oppression of small enterprises.

It is, however, true that the code authority, or what corresponds thereto, is composed of members of the National Electrical Manufacturers' Association; and no provision is made for the representation of manufacturers that are not members of that association. We deem this to be wrong, and recommend that it be corrected.

Motion Pictures

FINDINGS—Monopolistic practices in this industry are bold and aggressive and its small interprise is cruelly oppressed.

The industry includes the making, the distributing and the exhibiting in theaters of film pictures. The producing and distributing is chiefly in the hands of eight powerful companies, commonly known in the business as the "Big Eight."

There are in the country 18,321 theaters, of which 4,800 are designated as circuit or chain theaters. Of these circuit theaters, 1,954 are affiliated with the Big Eight companies and 2,846 are not so affiliated. There are left 13,571 theaters that are classified as independent.

It appears that the code for this industry was made by representatives of the large producing companies. It contained, with other unusual and unjust features, provisions that named the members of the code authority to administer the code and other provisions to make the authority so constituted self-perpetuating.

Retail Fuel

RETAIL SOLID FUEL—The dominating power in this industry is the National Retail Coal Dealers' Association. The code was made and the code authority chosen by members of this association without due representation of coal dealers that were not members. The operation of the code thus made and administered tends to oppress the small enterprise.

The code requires certain confidential business information to be disclosed, which constitutes a perilous practice and one liable to abuse. Power is given to divisional code authorities to prohibit the marketing of "blends," a prohibition that seems unnecessary and is the occasion for complaint.

It is in these particulars that the small enterprise seems most oppressed. The evil can and should be remedied by amending the code and by giving fair representation to the dealers not members of the association.

Steel

STEEL—Monopolistic conditions have long existed in this industry, due to its absolute control by the larger companies. This control is assured through the American Iron and Steel Institute, supposed to represent both large and small enterprises, but wherein as a matter of fact, the voting arrangements really leave the small enterprise at the mercy of the large.

Each member has one vote for each $500,000 of invoiced product for the year. The total number of votes is reported to be approximately 15,000, of which the five largest companies have 7,668.

By this system of voting the board of directors of the Iron and Steel Institute is chosen. Since this same board of directors was constituted the code authority for the steel industry, and this authority made the code and now administers it in the interest of the larger companies in control of the Iron and Steel Institute, it is obvious that we have here a body not only perfectly equipped to exercise monopolistic control but is endowed with extraordinary powers incompatible with the ideals heretofore entertained in a free country.

Harmful Conditions

One of these powers, exercised in a way that has produced many and bitter complaints from small enterprises, is that of arbitrarily fixing prices for the advantage of the large companies. Another is a rule that forbids the enlarging of the producing capacity of any unit in the industry.

Both of these conditions seem to us harmful, monopolistic and oppressive, and in both respects the code has operated to augment the evils previously existing.

The Federal Trade Commission recently made an exhaustive study of the steel industry and presented a report that held it to be essentially monopolistic and unfairly conducted. At the outset of the hearing by this board, April 4, this report of the Federal Trade Commission on the steel industry was offered in evidence and admitted.

On April 17, the chief counsel of this board was called on the long distance telephone from New York by the chief counsel of the code authority (directorate of the Iron and Steel Institute) who protested against the inclusion in our evidence of the Federal Trade Commission report on the ground that it was "a tissue of falsehoods," and demanded opportunity to appear before this board and demonstrate the falsity of the commission's findings.

Hearing Accorded

This was accorded and the board held hearings on April 19 and 20 for the purpose of allowing counsel for the code authority (directorate of the Iron and Steel Institute) to disclose wherein the commission's findings were unfounded.

The first day was consumed by counsel in reading from the code, a copy of which lay before each member of the board, in explications of the obvious and in dissertations upon the insignificant. No witness was examined nor evidence presented. At the second day's hearings, this course being pursued through an apparently endless maze of verbiage, counsel for the board objected and asked that some facts be presented.

The chairman ruled that every opportunity be given to counsel for the code authority (directorate of the Iron and Steel Institute) to present the case for the industry but that at the rate of progress so far achieved, years would be consumed in apparently fruitless discussion. Counsel for the Code Authority protested at each step but finally called a witness that he questioned.

Dilatory Answers

The nature of the questions and their long drawn out and dilatory answering strengthened the impression that the code authority was merely seeking to consume time. When the hearing adjourned at 5 p. m., the only witness summoned by the counsel for the authority was still on the stand and his cross-examination by the counsel for the board was hardly begun.

It was agreed that the hearing should proceed on Tuesday, April 24, but on April 23, the counsel for the board received a letter from the chief counsel for the authority (directorate of the Iron and Steel Institute) saying that as the board was manifestly unwilling to grant to the authority sufficient time to make a proper presentation of its cause, his clients had instructed him to withdraw from the case.

Further hearings have been held in this industry. The board requested the counsel for the authority to allow the cross-examination interrupted on April 20 to be resumed and contined, but this request was not complied with.

It also sent a representative to the office of the authority in New York with a request that this representative be allowed to examine the minutes and records of the authority but this effort again was unsuccessful.

Call It Play-Acting

No conclusion was left to the board except that the industry (which is controlled by the Iron and Steel Institute, the directorate of which in turn constitutes the code authority) did not answer the charges of the Federal Trade Commission because no answer was possible and the dilatory proceedings before this board were but play-acting for the purpose of creating the impression that the board was unjust.

At the hearings held by the board, it was impossible to escape the conclusion from the testimony offered that the misfortunes of the small enterprise in this industry were multiplied by the grotesque absurdities of what is called the "basing point" system or phantom freight rates.

The origin of this huge evil was the insane practice of the railroads in wrenching freight rates out of their normal relations to obtain competitive shipments or favor competitive enterprises, but the present extent of the disease is far beyond railroad medication.

Plague of Industries

It plagues many industries and from the testimony before us we conclude that the people of the country must be paying annually many millions of dollars for pretended freight rates that are purely fictitious.

Illustration: The case of Mr. Otto Swanstrom, of Duluth, Minnesota, we cite here as pertinent and instructive.

Complainant was a blacksmith that had invented an improvement in horseshoes. He founded a small company and a factory to put his invention upon the market and until the automobile came into common use, he seems to have prospered steadily.

When the automobile had replaced the horse, Mr. Swanstrom turned to the making of tools and particularly of tools used in automobile repairing. This necessitated considerable purchase of steel which he obtained at first in Chicago but upon which he paid the freight from Pittsburgh to Duluth, which was twice the freight from Chicago to Duluth.

Tax, Not Freight Rate

In 1918, he conferred with high officers of the United States Steel Corporation and obtained from them a concession of $5 a ton in these so-called freight charges, which in reality were not freight rates at all but an additional tax levied by the steel company.

By this time a steel mill had been established in Duluth, a mile and a half from the Swanstrom factory and was supplying him with all the steel he consumed. Nevertheless, the freight charge had continued to be exacted.

In 1924, after the final decision in the famous "Pittsburgh plus" case, Chicago was made, in the steel trade, what is known as a "basing point" and in consequence the myth that Swanstrom's steel had been shipped from Pittsburgh was exchanged for the myth that it was shipped from Chicago.

This shift in fictions resulted in a still further reduction of his ghostly freight charges and under this stimulus his business further expanded.

Original Investment

The original investment had been $3,000. In 1918, the amount invested had become $165,000; in 1933, a code designed and made by and for the great companies, the beneficence whereby the Swanstrom factory had been charged only $1 for fictional transportation was abolished and the company was notified that thereafter it must pay the full "basing point" rate from Chicago on steel moved only a mile and a half. The order increased the cost of his steel by $6.60 a ton.

Mr. Swanstrom testified that as a result his factory, since October 1, 1933, had been operated at a loss and unless the fictional charge could be removed the factory must soon close.

The steel upon which this charge is levied is made in Duluth from iron ore mined only 60 miles away. The actual charge for transporting Mr. Swanstrom's steel is 50 cents a ton for switching. It never saw Chicago nor anything near Chicago. Yet the factory must pay $6.60 freight charges upon it, which is the rate from Chicago to Duluth.

It is part of the evil wrought by the "basing point" madness that it has produced hot-house industries in localities where they have no natural right to exist, and that any attempt to return now to the mehods of sanity would be greeted with an outcry from the vested interests thus artificially planted and nourished. Yet is it equally true that so long as these conditions exist they will work hardship, bulwark monopoly, and crush the small man as here indicated.

At one of the hearings upon this industry, recourse was had by the steel interests to the familiar defense of this great evil that it is necessary as a means to promote competition and prevent local monopoly. The manifestation by a great corporation of a tender solicitude concerning monopolies is not without a certain suggestion of humor to those well acquainted with American economic history, but the defense of the citizenry against monopolistic menace is the business of the state, not of private agencies; and in this case the menace seems chiefly imagined for propaganda purposes.

Prevent Normal Laws

There can be no more just reason to prevert the normal laws of exchange than those of physics, and as clearly demonstrated before us, the practical working of this anomalous and preposterous device is once more to hasten the exit of the small enterprise and foster the always growing autocracy of the greater.

FINDINGS—It is the opinion of this board that the code adopted for this industry should be amended in accordance with the attached brief.

Cleaning and Dyeing

FINDINGS AND RECOMMENDATIONS: The above entitled matter came on to be heard before the National Recovery Board on the 9th day of April, A. D., 1934, at 10:30 o'clock A. M. upon the complaint of numerous parties representing small, medium and large size enterprises who were represented by several witnesses at the hearing, and appearing at the hearing were several persons representative of the various sizes of the trade in support of the code, and N. J. Harkness, chairman of the code authority.

Findings Submitted

1—That the trade is divided into two classes based on the service and not on the size of the entrants, to wit:

A—Cash and carry.

B—Call and deliver.

2—That there has been an utter disregard of the price provisions of the code since its inception making it impossible for the board to determine the effect of the provision of the code setting the same price for the two services set out above.

3—That the small enterprises are represented in both classes of service.

4—That the price provision in the code does not take into consideration cost.

RECOMMENDATIONS: 1—We find no monopolistic practices in this industry. If there is any oppression of the small enterprise, it does not result from a control by monopoly, but is a result of excessive competition.

2—This industry is composed of many small units with no means of integration or affiliation with one another. The nature of the business is local.

3—The status of the industry and the condition of the code with reference to its enforcement are such, that the board feels no appreciable results could be obtained by amending the code.

Coal

BITUMINOUS COAL: Monopolistic practices are marked in this industry because the code was made and its operation directed by agencies connected with the larger coal companies to their advantage and the disadvantage of the small enterprises.

Testimony was presented to show that the same price had been fixed for coal that contained a large percentage of sulphur and for coal that contained but a small percentage of this same substance; whereas the practical value of the coal was diminished in proportion to the presence of sulphur.

Before the adoption of the code, coal containing a considerable or large percentage of sulphur had sold at from 25 cents a ton less than the better qualities of coal. It was represented that small operators whose mines produced sulphured coal were unable to sell their coal at the prices fixed under the code.

Coal Ouster Urged

It appeared also that small enterprises generally produced raw or unwashed coal; that the difference in price allowed between washed and unwashed coal was much below the actual cost of washing the coal and this arrangement was an added advantage to the large producer.

A further allegation, which was not controverted, was to the effect that before the code was adopted, railroad companies had been supplied with coal at 15 cents a ton under the prevailing prices; that this price was now made 20 cents under the prevailing prices; that the larger coal companies, whose representatives on the code authority made this reduction, obtained from it a large increase in orders from the railroad companies, which seemed to be a business that the small enterprises did not share.

We urge that no time be lost in dismissing for malfeasance in office the entire sub-divisional code authority now in control of the Northern West Virginia and Western Pennsylvania regions, and replacing of them with persons that have a higher conception of social obligations than an impulse to seize every opportunity for personal aggrandizement.

Consumer Pays

We further recommend that the code be amended so that due allowance shall be made in determining prices for difference in quality of coal and for the cost of processing it. Also, that the code be amended so as to prevent price changes without at least three days' notice and that if a member protest the price change to the divisional authority it shall be held in abeyance pending the determination of the appeal.

In conclusion it is evident that when monoply utilizes its power to increase prices, it is the consumer alone who must pay for the increases.

While under the codes the cost of living increases, wages have not risen accordingly. The prices charged for some articles the poor should have, as much as the rich have been in some instances prohibitory.

According to the bulletins of the Department of Labor, taking the average cost of all foods in 1913 as 100, their cost in April, 1933, was 90 and in April, 1934, it was 107. Fifty-one cities showed in this year an advance in food prices of from 10 to 27 per cent.

'Chiseler' Defended

Rent, fuel, light, house furnishings and other items showed at the end of the year, after the codes had begun to operate, a marked upward tendency.

The fact is generally overlooked or obscured, but the small business enterprise has often a social importance out of proportion to its size, since it is often the consumer's sole barrier against complete, grasping, and irresponsible monopoly.

What is called a "chiseler" likewise may not always be the public enemy he has been represented. Instances arise where he is seen to be struggling to prevent the total absorption of an industry or interest into a monopolistic organization or chain against which the public has no other protection.

The opinion, therefore, is forced upon us from what we have heard so far that "fair competition" is merely a resounding and illusory phrase. There is, in fact, no such significance of general acceptance, and under existing conditions there can be none.

Savage Competition

What the powerful producer calls fair, his weaker rival fiercely denounces as most unfair; and there is no way to reconcile the difference. All competition is savage, wolfish, and relentless; and can be nothing else. One may as well dream of making war lady-like as of making competition fair.

Big business begins by making it impossible for the small man to survive; and, after he is eliminated, it turns upon the weakest of the common aggressors.

We are reminded of some remarks made by Senator Vance, of North Carolina, many years ago, who said that:

"At oen time the question was up in the State Legislature as to what sort of fish should stock their straems. One enthusiastic member suggested the carp, for the reason that they drove out al other fish, and ended up by eating each other."

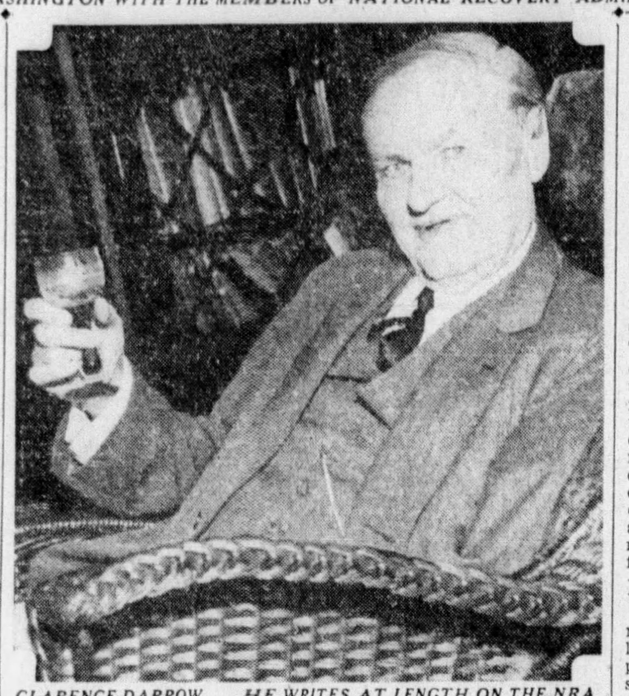
MR. DARROW SITTING AT WASHINGTON WITH THE MEMBERS OF NATIONAL RECOVERY ADMINISTRATION REVIEW BOARD



CLARENCE DARROW . . . HE WRITES AT LENGTH ON THE NRA

on testimony, the conclusion is inescapable that the board is not proceeding in good faith to fulfill its public obligations.

"Its continuance as an agency of government would enable it to promote private purposes at the public expense, and in my judgment would impair seriously the usefulness of the NRA.

"The board is clearly incapable of supplying fair and constructive criticism, and, therefore I recommend it be abolished forthwith."

While Johnson leveled his attack against the entire board, Darrow and Thompson were the only members of the board of six who signed the report advocating "socialized ownership."

Three of the members with Darrow and Thompson signed a report on eight of the 400 codes, and found them monopolistic with the exception of the cleaners and dyers' pact. The six member of the board, John F. Sinclair, refused to sign either report, but submitted an individual minority report.

CREATION OF BOARD

The board was created three months ago by President Roosevelt upon the demand of Senators Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, and Nye (Rep.), of North Dakota. The Darrow board was instructed to investigate charges the NRA tends toward monopoly and is working extreme hardships upon the "little fellow."

In addition to pointing to the monopolistic trends of the NRA, the Darrow board asked for the removal of the code authority now in control of the Northern West Virginia and Western Pennsylvania regions on the grounds of malfeasance, and the divisional authority of the rubber footwear division of the rubber industry on grounds of undesirability.

Asking for the removal of the board, Johnson confined his attacks, however, to the report of Darrow and Thompson, with particular emphasis upon their advocacy of a socialistic setup.

MONOPOLY AND CONTROL

In this document the two attorneys declared:

"The choice is between monopoly sustained by government . . . and a planed economy which demands socialized ownership and control, since only by collective ownership can the inevitable conflict of separately owned units for the market be eliminated in favor of a planned production . . . . The hope for the American people . . . lies in the planned use of America's resources following socialization."

Dwelling upon this paragraph, Johnson retorted:

"Stripped of shadowy verbiage, this means that the choice of the American people is between Fascism and Communism, neither of which can be espoused by anyone who believes in our Democratic institution of self government; nor can any public official who has taken an oath to defend the Constitution of the United States adopt or officially advocate such a program. The supplementary report demonstrates completely the propriety of my recommendation that the review board should be abolished."

Donald R. Richberg, chief counsel for the NRA, charged the review board in its original report "was simply seeking to justify a preconceived opposition to the fundamental theories and purposes of the National Industrial Recovery Act."

The members of the board which Johnson wants abolished include, besides Darrow and Thompson, Fred P. Mann, Sr., of Devils Lake, N. D., directing official of an independent retail grocers' association chain; W. W. Neal, of Marion, N. C., operator of a hosiery mill; Samuel C. Henry, retired wholesale druggist of Philadelphia and Chicago.

MINORITY REPORT

Sinclair, the sixth member of the board, who refused to sign the majority report, in his minority document, declared:

"Price fixing, limitation of production and other factors of monopolistic control approved by the NRA lead us to believe that in some situations they tend to strangle the independent businessman in various ways."

He recommended a "series of review boards be set up to take care of the numerous cases which raise no fundamental issue," and "a review board of appeal . . . independent of the NRA to pass upon those fundamental and important cases which are appealed not only from the NRA review board, but also arise from original complaints to the board itself."

Sinclair found 20 per cent of the complaints against the NRA to be fundamental and important.

NRA Denies Oppression By Local Coal Code

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(AP.)—Charges that bituminous coal code authorities of the Pittsburgh and Northern West Virginia subdivisions oppress small enterprises and represent only large producers are denied by NRA.

Recommendation for immediate dismissal of the authorities, made by the National Recovery Review Board on the ground they were guilty of "misfeasance" and "malfeasance" is opposed by NRA in an answer to the Darrow report submitted to President Roosevelt.

In formulating its report, the Darrow board heard three small independent operators complain against the code.

In the NRA reply to the charges, Wayne P. Ellis, NRA deputy in charge of the coal code, characterized the board's charges as misstatements and unverified conclusions."

NRA Denies Steel Code Holds 'Chiseling' Peril

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(AP.)—The assertion that the steel code, if permitted to remain in effect, is "likely to lead to widespread 'chiseling'" is contained in the Darrow report submitted to President Roosevelt.

In the report, presented by the National Recovery Review Board headed by Clarence Darrow, the board charges the code with being "discriminatory and monopolistic."

In a reply to these assertions, NRA officials commented sharply not only on the Darrow report, but on a study of the code formulated by the Federal Trade Commission at the request of the Senate.

The Darrow report dealt largely with the multiple basing point system of price fixing contained in the code. The report declared:

"It establishes an unfair competitive practice because it is discriminatory and monopolistic."

The report added that three courses were open in the industry's price question, namely that the industry could be permitted to agree on non-competitive prices; the government might fix prices, or prices might be the result of competition. The report went on:

"Price agreement is the alternative which the industry has chosen. It is embodied in the code in unmistakeable terms. If the steel code remains in effect it is likely to lead to widespread chiseling."

RICHBERG FLOUTS DARROW REPORT IN NRA'S REPLY

BOARD FLAYED AS GROUP OF 'ANARCHISTS'

Donald R. Richberg, NRA'S Legal Adviser.

The general observations and detailed recommendations of the review board, following a haphazard, one-sided investigation, would be incomprehensible without an understanding that the board was simply seeking to justify a preconceived opposition to the fundamental theories and purposes of the National Industrial Recovery Act. This is plainly revealed in two statements of the board, which are in hopeless conflict with each other.

On Page 24 (B) the board proclaims:

"All competition is savage, wolfish and relentless; and can be nothing else. One may as well dream of making war ladylike as of making competition fair."

On Page 67 the board proclaims:

"A return to the anti-trust laws for the purpose of restoring competition we believe to be one of the great needs of the times."

Thus the board flatly advocates that a modern, civilized nation should abandon any effort to promote fair business practices and should "return" to a "savage, wolfish" struggle for individual survival.

Cites Contradiction

Then the board immediately repudiates its own expressed convictions in the following utterly inconsistent recommendation:

"We believe the competitive system is compatible with regulation as to hours and wages."

The board does not explain how hours and wages—that is, labor costs—can be regulated by valid federal law except through codes of fair competition. The board ignores, or is ignorant, of the elementary economic fact that if it were possible to regulate (and presumably to increase labor costs) while maintaining otherwise "savage, wolfish" competition, large enterprises, financially able to lower costs by increasing machine production and to undersell competitors in savage price wars regardless of cost, would drive all "small enterprises" out of business and obtain monopolistic controls of production.

The business records of the last 50 years show clearly what would happen if the nonsensical program recommended by the board could be made effective. The board also fails to suggest how hours and wages can be regulated by valid federal control except through codes of fair competition.

The explanation of the contradictory nature of the board's conclusions may be found in its selection of a noted socialist, who advocates complete government control of business, to write a report for philosophic anarchists who apparently oppose any government control of anybody, including criminals.

The result is a report which on one page recommends a return to the law of the jungle and on the next page recommends that business be subjected to more detailed government control.

Prejudice Charged

A careful examination of the hearings shows that in order to arrive at its previously determined verdict, the board took and reported any testimony that would serve its prejudice without regard to the competence or bias of the witness or the palpable falsity of his statements; and declines to avail itself of abundant sources of accurate information which were open to its investigation.

The detailed analyses of the argumentative conclusions and "briefs" filed by the board, which are attached hereto, justify a sweeping condemnation of the methods and mental processes whereby the board arrived at its unsupported and insupportable conclusions.

A few examples of the manner in which the board accumulated misinformation in order to arrive at false findings of fact will be presented.

ELECTRICAL MANUFACTURING—The board gave no notice to the NRA and made no request for information although every complaint presented had been covered during months of extensive work upon this code. After three days of fruitless hearings the board was forced to its conclusion that any "monopolistic conditions in this industry do not result from the code, but from the control of patents and other long-standing factors."

The board then recommended additional members for the code authority—a matter brought up by NRA two months before the hearing and agreed to by the industry.

Hits Probe Method

MOTION PICTURES—The record of this hearing by the review board is a revelation of its methods. The board reports that the deputy administrator "was invited to testify but refused to do so." The record, including a letter from the deputy administrator, shows that he not only offered to testify, but to make all his records available to the board.

The code was assented to in writing by 9,039 members of the industry. Twenty-one complaining witnesses were heard by the board, including 15 out of 7,500 theater operators. In contrast to 14 hours and 20 minutes of "hearings" by the board, NRA spent over 1,200 hours on the drafting of the code, heard 206 witnesses and obtained a code acceptable, not only to the industry, but approved by all the advisory boards of NRA representing industry, labor, consumers, economic research and law.

The board acted solely on the basis of a disorderly mess of unsworn and largely false testimony of a few malcontents (many of them discredited by previously illegal practices), covering only eight out of 288 subdivisions of the code, and arrived at sweeping conclusions upon the entire code founded on obvious ignorance of the code, of the industry and the law.

RETAIL SOLID FUEL — In regard to this industry the board received a protest in behalf of a group of associations from metropolitan New York not affiliated with the National Retail Coal Merchants' Association, who were sponsors of the code. The protesting groups admitted they had representation; admitted no unfair action had been taken to date, but they were protesting in fear of what might happen.

In the absence of any evidence of any oppression and in view of the effort of the NRA to set up a truly representative code authority in an industry only partially organized, the criticism of this code is trivial and captious.

Hasty Mistakes

STEEL—The report of the board is based largely upon a report made by the Federal Trade Commission in partial compliance with Senate Resolution 166 concerning the operation or possible effects of a few provisions of the steel code. The attached commentary on that report of the Federal Trade Commission answers almost entirely the rehash of the views of the Federal Trade Commission presented by the review board.

In addition, however, attention should be called to some of the typical mistakes of the board in its hasty review of a complicated code and a highly technical industry, regarding which the members of the board had no previous knowledge and acquired no perceptible understanding.

At the outset the board sought to prove a control of the code authority, the Iron and Steel Institute, through voting arrangements, which, in the language of the board:

"Leave the small enterprise at the mercy of the large."

Inaccuracy of Facts

The utter inaccuracy of the facts and conclusions of the board concerning this comparatively simple matter is shown by the calculation of the board that out of 15,000 votes 4,362 would be cast by United States Steel.

As a matter of fact, the total votes officially tabulated are 1,332, of which the subsidiaries and affiliates of the United States Steel cast 335. On the basis of the review board's calculation the invoiced value of the United States Steel products would be over $2,000,000,000, whereas for 1933 they were $167,500,000.

The board complains that the board of directors of the Steel Institute constituting the code authority "administers it in the interest of the larger companies in control of the Iron & Steel Institute."

Only 13 Per Cent

The fact is that on the board of directors the representation of United States Steel is 13 per cent (although it is entitled to 25 per cent voting power). The representation of Bethlehem is 7 per cent, although entitled to 9 per cent voting power and the remaining 80 per cent of membership is distributed among 21 companies.

The inaccuracy of the board's report is indicated in its statement that there are "many and bitter complaints from small enterprises of arbitrarily fixing prices for the advantage of the large companies." The fact is that there are 252 companies members of the code, including he great majority of all the small enterprises in the industry and the board does not report a complaint from them.

The board may be abel to maknify a very small volume of consumer complaints against the code into evidence of monopolistic oppression, but by no stretch of the imagination can it produce evidence of "many and bitter complaints from small enterprises" within the industry that they are subjected to monopolistic control.

Small Firms for Code

As a matter of fact, the small enterprises within the industry have deluged the NRA with protests against changing the code and with arguments in favor of its continuing operation.

The NRA has been from the beginning critical of the price provisions in the steel code, including the set-up of the basing point system, the inclusion of transportation charges in quoted prices, the wating period of 10 days before prices are made effective and other provisions of the code which have been criticized by the Federal Trade Commission, criticisms which are re-hashed and garbled in the report of the review board.

The board adds nothing whatsoever to the information available to the NRA and previously publicly discussed by the NRA concerning these provisions. But the board in its ignorancee of the complicated operations of this industry has produced a certain amount of misinformation which will not help in working out an intelligent revision of the steel code in the public interest.

The NRA has been giving an extended trial to the provisions of the steel code under close observation with continuing recommendations for their improvement, based upon accurate knowledge of the facts and expert advice as to measures desirable to protect the public interest.

The review board afforded no opportunity to the NRA representatives who had been working for months upon the steel code and who had participated in its administration to furnish the review board with the vast amount of information available, which had been gathered by the NRA, which had been expressly omitted from consideration by the Federal Trade Commission in its report, and to which the review board paid, no attention whatsoever. A government investigation and report of such a character simply makes a mockery of public service.

BITUMINOUS COAL—The findings of the Revied Board based on trivial and unreliable testimony result in conclusions of pathetic triviality or sweeping inaccuracy. Prior to the adoption of the code the processes of "savage, wolfish" competition was beautifully exemplified in this industry, wherein wages were reduced to starvation levels, as prices were forced down below any reasonable cost of production through the savage competition of coal producers to sell their coal in diminishing markets.

In order to relieve these conditions somewhat, marketing agencies have been formed by some producers, the validity of which have been sustained by the Supreme Court on the ground of economic necessity in the face of attacks upon their alleged monopolistic character.

Salaries Raised

Under the provisions of the code, it was made possible to raise the wages of 300,000 miners by an average approximating $1 a day and to eliminate in many regions the starvation wages which had prevailed, through wage increases which in many instances exceeded 100 per cent.

The possibility of paying these wages and stabilizing the industry depended wholly upon the establishment of fair prices in different producing areas, leaving, however, these areas highly competitive with other areas, thus assuring to the consumer protection against exploitation.

The immediate result of this improvement of prices was the financial rehabilitation of hundreds of small producers and also the opening of actually thousands of small mines that had been unable to sell coal under the previous cut-throat competition.

Petty Complaints

In the face of these actual results the petty complaints presented in the report of the board exhibit either complete ignorance of law and the important facts, or a fixed determination to find monopolistic practices and the oppression of small enterprises, without regard for the facts.

The bituminous coal industry has been one of the perennially sick industries of the United States. The bituminous coal code, with all its difficulties of adoption and administration, has improved the health of the entire industry to a remarkable degree in the few months of operation.

The review board, on the basis of a trifling amount of ex parte testimony, has undertaken to urge the dismissal of the subdivisional code authorities in Northern West Virginia and Western Pennsylvania. This recommendation is made upon the basis of mis-statements and misunderstandings of facts, which are conclusively demonstrated in the detailed memorandum attached to this commentary.

Agreement Reached

The review board criticizes a reduced price of cial for railroads without the slightest knowledge of the basis upon which this reduced price was reached at a joint meeting between representatives of the railroads, the coal producers and the government.

The board is evidently also ignorant of the fact that the federal co-ordinator of railroads has urged every possible effort to protect the railroads against price increases necessary for the payment of decent wages, but difficult for the railroads to bear in a time when all railroads are suffering from a heavily reduced traffic, resulitng in the insolvency of a large number of railroad systems.

The criticisms by the review board or price increases under the coal code furnish a perfect demonstration of the illogic of the board's recommendation that hours and wages should be regulated by government, but that those paying the hours and wages shall be denied any opportunity to protect themselves from cut-throat competition.

3,000,000 Jobs

Under regulated hours and wages in the coal industry and "savage, wolfish" competition, the result would be the survival only of highly mechanised, low-cost-production mines, throwing out o femployment thousands of miners, closing down every small enterprise which is struggling to survive and, in the eventual day when only a few great coal producers survived, the practical monopolization of coal production by these few powerful survivors.

In a great national emergency the National Recovery Administration has through the establishment of codes of fair competition made possible the re-employment of over three million workers with increases in wages exceeding three billon dollars.

This accomplishment has been possible only through obtaining the voluntary co-operation of great industrial enterprises in raising wages and shortening hours, and this co-operation has only been possible because at the same time these employers could be assured of the elimination of cut-throat competition by those enterprises which profit out of the labor of underpaid and overworked men, women and children.

Under the codes of fair competition in industry after industry, small enterprises, facing imminent extinction under previous conditions, have been given a new lease of life and saved from impending bankruptcy.

If the review board had pursued diligently the facts freely available for its consideration, it would have been forced to find that in every major industry protections had been extended to small enterprises, and monopolistic practices had been curbed to a degree hitherto unknown and to a degree utterly impossible under the conditions prevailing before the adoption of the codes.

Sinclair Labels Darrow Report 'Inconclusive and Unreliable'

Controls Approved By NRA Strangle Small Man, He Says

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—In a minority report, John F. Sinclair, resigned member of the Recovery Review Board, assailed the majority report of Clarence Darrow and the other four members as "inconclusive, incomplete and at times misleading and unreliable."

Sinclair said:

"This board has taken up in a critical way some of the most important codes that have been approved. We have heard, largely, one side of the controversy—that of the complainant. We had no power to subpena witnesses and thus all hearings have been largely exparte—with no power to command both sides to appear. Naturally this has been a great disadvantage in bringing out all of the testimony that the board should have had in arriving at conclusions.

TEND TO STRANGLE

"Price fixing, limitation of production and other factors of monopolistic control approved by the NRA lead us to believe that in some situations they tend to strangle the independent business man in various ways. Of course, approved codes can be amended or modified by administrative order.

"The fatal weakness of our work up to this time—and this matter cannot be emphasized too strongly—centers in not having secured at the very start of our investigation, a thoroughly competent professional staff of men—experts in code law and economic research—to assist the Review Board in digesting a great mass of testimony that had been presented before various NRA and federal trade hearings, bearing upon the effect of the various completed codes upon the small business man.

CONCLUSIONS INCOMPLETE

"But the majority of the board has not seen fit to approach this investigation from the point of view of careful research and analysis. As a result, the conclusions of the board, based as they are upon only a very limited amount of direct testimony—and that very largely giving only one side of the situation—must necessarily be inconclusive, incomplete, and at times misleading and unreliable.

"We have received several thousand complaints coming from distressed complainants in nearly every state in the union, from small business men who claim that they are being strangled under the various codes as administered.

"We had no time to examine into the problems of credit for small business, but considerable testimony was presented to show that credit for the independent business man has been very difficult to secure since the beginning of the depression. The inability to secure credit has been the major cause in many cases of extreme hardship.

URGES SERIES OF BOARDS

"In conclusion, therefore, Mr. President, we recommend, as the result of our five weeks of preliminary explanation and intensive work:

"1—That within the NRA series of review boards be set up to take care of the numerous cases which raise no fundamental issue but in which the time factor is so vital; and

"2—That a review board of appeal be established by executive order, independent of the NRA, to pass upon those fundamental cases which are appealed not only from the NRA Review Board, but also arise from original complainants to the board itself. We suggest that this board be a full-time one, ably staffed, non-political, with power to pass finally upon all such questions dealing with monopoly and monopolistc practice and oppression of small enterprises as arise under Section 1 and 11 of your executive order of March 7, last, and to continue during the life of the NRA itself."

Abolish Darrow Board, Johnson Tells Roosevelt

NRA Chief Assails Report As 'Intemperate'

Following is the text of a letter to President Roosevelt from Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator, in reply to the Darrow report:

Attached hereto are the reports of each divisional administrator replying to the strictures of the Darrow report, and a summary of the latter by our general counsel, Donald Richberg—all of which I have carefully read and with all of which I agree. A more superficial, intemperate and inaccurate document than the report, I have never seen.

In the hope of an impartial forum to which "little fellows" might complain, I agreed with Senator Nye on the creation of the board and, as the record demonstrates, nobody could have shown more good faith than I in its composition.

But this board is not in good faith. It asumes, after a few hours of cavalier inquiry and prejudiced and one-sided testimony, to pass on codes upon which we have spent days and weeks of inquiry and negotiation.

It impugns the motives of the divisional administrator in the motion picture code because he formerly worked for an attorney who has clients in that field, and it asks his removal. Nobody here has rendered more public-spirited, disinterested and intelligent service than this divisional administrator.

In my judgment, this board has missed a great opportunity for a real public service. As it is now acting, it is of no service to anybody—it is a political sounding board. In view of its fixed prejudices and partisanship and its unfair methods of taking and reporting on testimony, the conclusion is inescapable that the board is not proceeding in good faith to fulfill its public obligations.

Its continuance as an agency of government would enable it to promote private purposes at the public expense, and in my judgment would impair seriously the usefulness of the National Recovery Administration.

The board was established at my suggestion to supply fair and constructive criticism. It is clearly incapable of fulfilling this function and, therefore, I recommend that it be abolished forthwith.

Time Limit Nearing on Rushmore

The days are growing fewer for participation in the Mount Rushmore National Memorial Inscription competition.

Remember that no text received through the mails with a post mark later than midnight, May 30, will be considered. It will be the wise entrant who gets his or her 600-word version of America's epic into the mails as early as possible, either to the Pittsburgh Rushmore Committee, care the Sun-Telegraph, or to the special committee chairman if a member of one of the many organizations actively co-operating with the local regional committee.

As the entries pour into the Sun-Telegraph, which with associated Hearst newspapers are conducting the competition, it is regrettable that so many texts will be eliminated through failure of the participants to read the daily hints and explanations published in the paper. While all entries are not being opened until May 30, some are read to learn what mistakes are being made.

One such entry opened Saturday revealed a well written, thoroughly studied inscription. Yet, the entrant had failed to remember that all dates and subtitles, even if only a numeral is used between episodes, count as words. As a result, that text counted a total of 608 words. If you are one of the entrants who have made this mistake, there is time to rectify the error. Write a second copy and submit it. There is no limit to the number each participant can submit. It will save many good texts from being discarded.

List of Prizes For Competition

Following is the complete list of prizes and awards for the competition inaugurated by the Hearst newspapers in connection with the inscription for the Mount Rushmore National Memorial.

These awards will be made by a national committee of which President Roosevelt is chairman, in accordance with the rules of the competition.

Adult man or woman not an enrolled student—First prize, $1,000.00; second prize, $500.00.

Best in any college—$500.00 yearly scholarship for balance of his or her college four-year course.

Second best—$300.00 scholarship for balance of his or her course.

Third best—Gold medal.

Fourth best—Silver medal.

Fifth best—Bronze medal.

Best in each college—Certificate of merit.

Best in any high school—Four-year scholarship at $250 per year or $500 in cash.

Second best—Gold medal.

Third best—Silver medal.

Fourth best—Bronze medal.

Best in each high school—Certificate of merit.

Best in any grammar school—$250.

Second best—Gold medal.

Third best—Silver medal.

Fourth best—Bronze medal.

Best in each school—Certificate of merit.

Each school or college reporting 25 competitors—Certificate of merit for patriotic co-operation in Rushmore memorial campaign.

ATHLETE SLAIN BY BOY BANDIT

HARLINGEN, Tex., May 21.—(AP.)—William Osborne, 16-year-old Fremont high school boy, was charged today with the holdup slaying of J. M. (Jack) Brinck, member of the 1928 United States Olympic rowing team and former University of California athlete.

Osborne, arrested as he finished a long sleep in a wooded section near Falfurrias, where Brinck was slain late Saturday night, was said by W. W. Musgraves, custom officer, to have admitted the slaying and the robbery which netted $70.

Brinck, en route here from Falfurrias, had picked up the lad as he hitch-hiked along the highway. Brinck had been seen alone a short time before in a Falfurrias gasoline station.

15,000 WATCH HOME FROG WIN

International News Service.

ANGELS CAMP, Cal., May 21.—Honor of winning the famed annual Calaveras County frog-jumping contest rested today on "Gen. Grant," leaping amphibian, born and reared in this historic mining camp.

"Gen. Grant" hopped 12 feet 5 inches to win the international frog derby, immortalized in the early 70s by Mark Twain. The fullfrog's leap was witnessed by 15,000 spectators, many of whom placed heavy wagers on the outcome. Home town rooters celebrated the victory with six-shooters.

"Gen. Grant's" jump did not equal the world record established in 1931 by "Budweiser," who failed to place in this year's competition. More than 150 bullfrogs participated.

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Now to get behind the scenes of big business. Confidentially, but not too seriously, I understand that one of Frank Chesterman's (the telephone boss) pet peeves that he can't get more than a nickel apiece from Thomas Fitzgerald on the car checks he turns back to the street car company.

When he complains about not getting 8 1-3 cents, he is requested to use the tokens on the street cars.

G. P., past three score and ten, had two surprises on registration day.

One surprise was meeting at the polls one of his old friends he thought long deceased, and the other was that he registered incorrectly.

His story is that in the excitement of his reunion with his friend of many years, he and his friend registered as independents, although one is a Democrat and the other a Republican.

The error was not discovered until the day of the primary election when each was handed an independent ballot.

Of course that will not affect their votes in November but in order to be permanently registered in the correct party they will have to go to the Registration Commissioner's office, new County Office Building, and report it.

The Registration Commission will be glad to make the change.

NAZIS CURTAIL RADIO OUTPUT

Universal Service.

BERLIN, May 21.—The Nazi promise to protect small capital firms was made good in the radio industry today when Minister of Economics Schmitt banned establishment of new concerns manufacturing receiving sets and other radio equipment. He also forbade increased production by existing radio firms.

Schmitt stated the order would remain effective "until the government has worked out a new licensing method to safeguard smaller firms from powerful domestic and foreign competition."

Although it is reported there are 1,000,000 more radio listeners in Germany than there were last year, and the demand for radio sets is increasing each month, authorities pointed out that large capital groups here and abroad are invading the German market and forcing the smaller manufacturers to the wall.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

JAMES L. JUNK, SURGEON, DIES

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., May 21. — (AP.) — Known as a physician and surgeon throughout Southwestern Pennsylvania, Maj. James L. Junk died in a hospital yesday from internal hemorrhages 20 minutes after he was stricken. He was 54.

Dr. Junk, who towered six feet four inches, starred on the Penn State and University of Pennsylvania football teams about the turn of the century.

A native of Fayette County, he returned here after completing his medical education. During the World War he served at a base hospital at Aberdeen, Md., and was later made chief medical officer of the 110th Regiment, Pennsylvania National Guard.

He was a member of the staff of the Connellsville State Hospital, the institution in which he died.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS

:-: Glances into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-:

By MARION BRUNOT

Over-Tyrannical Father Ruining Girl's Life

BUFFALOED by her father, so her friends say . . . Left motherless at 8, her father has taken his custodianship of her too strenuously. He has made a termagant out of himself. Far worse is he than an OLD WITCH.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am 22 years of age. Was left motherless at 8, and live with my father and brother.

Miss Brunot

I've never had a Sunday or an evening out or even a few hours during the day.

Father chances to be at home most of the time, and I've got to sneak out when he happens to be working. Sometimes he works at night. But I always feel uneasy for I am afraid he will suddenly appear, and then there would be the devil to pay. I am not allowed to have boy friends call. Nor even my girl friends. When they chance to call and he is at home, he always sneaks around and listens to every word that is said. If they visit a few times, when they go away he always says: "What did they want? Don't let me see them here again."

THREATENED BY FATHER

It makes me feel so bad that I seem COOL when they call again. I am so disgusted I don't know what to do. He says if he sees me on the streets, he'll have me jailed.

My friends say he has me buffaloed. That I'm yellow or I'd tell him that I intend seeing things, anyway.

He says I ought to marry. But why do so, when I haven't met the man I care for yet? I never will if things keep on this way. I often cry myself to sleep. But when my father gets something into his head, you can't tell him different. I always pick very nice company, and people above criticism. Please answer me, and help me, dear Miss Brunot.

H. B.

If you were an artist, sister, you couldn't have drawn a much better picture than you have of a disagreeable parent. I sympathize very much with you. But stick to your guns, and do not marry the wrong man.

"SNEAKING," ONLY WAY

It would be "out of the frying pan into the fire" for you . . . I have known the type of man who could not be reasoned with, and alas! it does seem SNEAKING upon such a person is about the only thing possible. Not that I ever approve of such actions. Yet, on the other side, I disapprove of such a father.

You are a good girl, I know, and it is a great pity your mother died so young or that your father did not marry again. Either of these happenings might have made your life happier. Yet one can't cry over spilled milk. So all I can say to you, H. B., is either try and find a job away from home, and support yourself, or just go on as you are doing.

The fact that you choose friends wisely is in your favor. You evidently have plenty of friends, which indicates you are made of the right stuff, so keep your head high and all will come out right some of these days. Prince Charming will appear if the old ogre does await him.

PROBLEM OF DEPRESSION

Dear Miss Brunot:

I have been going with a young fellow for five months. He seems very much on the up and up with me. He is one of the unfortunates caught by the depression. He has neither car nor money. Once in awhile he takes me to a dance. About a week ago, he asked me to go steady with him. I said we were both pretty young at 19, to settle down. Yet now that I have given him my time and affection, I expect him to go with only me.

He and his boy friend who has no particular girl, like dances and "stag it." I think he should not do this. I have lots of pride, so much maybe that I fear people will think he has a better time without me than with me. I don't believe he is a cheap-skate, and yet it looks that way. I do like him, and yet he humiliates me in this way in my neighborhood.

What shall I do? I have other offers to go places.

A REGULAR READER.

Well, sister, this boy friend had no right to spend the little money he has going stag to dances. Especially when he takes up your time otherwise. Accept the other invitations to go places, and see what the result will be.

I believe in sympathy where the unemployed suitor is concerned, but not the maudlin type that allows him to waste the little he has to spend other than on the one girl.

There is enough selfishness in mankind, and it is not wise for any one of us to abet it.

AFRAID OF DAD

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am a constant reader of your Speak Up, Sisters and want your help. I am 17, and like a fellow real well. He always asks me for dates and I never give him a break because I am afraid of my dad. My mother has met the boy friend, and allows me to have him around.

I am afraid to bring him up to the house, for my dad has a mean look in his eye. Even if he isn't so mad when the fellows are about. Father wants any man I go with to be the same nationality as we are. Since I am working, I cannot see why I can't do as I please.

Last week when this fellow was leaving he said he'd be back on Sunday. He did not arrive Why didn't he?

CATHERINE.

He didn't visit you Sunday, Catherine, on account of the remark you made. You had said it didn't matter. Personally I am broad-minded like your mother, and am not a stickler on nationalities. So I can't agree with your father in that. Maybe the mean look he has in his eyes is not so deeply rooted as you think. You are only 17, and dad may be right in not wanting the same fellow around his daughter all the time.

Miss Brunot will be glad to answer letters submitted to her by readers.

SHE DOES NOT SHINE AT LARGE PARTIES
SHE SAID HARDLY A WORD ALL EVENING
SHE'S REALLY A DEAR, BUT QUIET AND SHY!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

Just as some brilliant men cannot make a good speech at a banquet, so some charming girl cannot shine at a large party or ball.

Some personalities seem to expand and excel when they have an audience, while other personalities grow more shy and retiring among a great number of persons.

The man who may grow confused when he is called upon to say a few words is probably an expert at eloquence when conversing with a few important men.

The girl who seems so quiet and obscure all evening at a large gathering may be the most animated and entertaining person you could meet among a few of her real friends.

Crowds stimulate some and stifle others. The spotlight workers often shrink in lamplight!

A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Thought Death Would Give Madge to Hugh

Something in Lillian's inflections and in the expression of her face, as she said she could see the "Chief" did not altogether agree with her that Lee Chow was shamming insanity, found a response in my own brain. It was a conclusion to which I already had come, as I saw my father's fingers begin to drum more quickly upon the arms of his chair and I waited breathlessly with her for his reply.

He waited a full half minute before answering, while the drumming fingers perceptibly slowed their motion. When he finally spoke there was a puzzled inflection in his voice which I have rarely heard in my father, essentially a man of clear-cut decisions and fixed opinions.

"Frankly, I am more puzzled even than I was a few hours ago, when Hugh first consulted me about the matter," he began.

My pulses leaped at this confirmation of my own theory that Hugh had warned my father against Lee Chow, but I managed to keep my face from giving any index of my belief.

OBSERVED ACTIONS

"I know I shall not be betraying a confidence," my father went on, "when I tell you that Hugh for several days has observed that Lee Chow has been acting and talking in puzzling fashion. I think Hugh would have attributed the change in him to insanity at once, had it not been for the extreme lucidity with which Lee Chow approached the subject which appeared to be obsessing him.

"To put it baldly," my father went on, "Lee Chow has been saying to Hugh that anyone could see Richard's treatment of you was so cruel that you could not be expected to stand it much longer."

"What?" I gasped indignantly.

My father put up a protesting hand.

"Remember that this theory is only a product of Lee Chow's brain, either actually disordered, or twisted by his affection for Hugh and his Oriental viewpoint of the status of women, unchanged despite his Occidental education. No one else puts the slightest credence in such balderdash."

FIGHTS EMBARASSMENT

"I can't bear that even an insane person should hold such a theory," I said emphatically, and my father nodded comprehendingly.

"It is disturbing," he said, "but we must face it; and the corollary, which Lee Chow also stated to Hugh."

He paused, and I fought to keep my cheeks from crimsoning, for the remembrance of what the old wounded henchman of Lee Chow had said to me had prepared me for the words which I was sure he was about to utter.

"Lee Chow also told Hugh that he believed if you once were taken away from your husband and delivered into Hugh's keeping, you would realize that Hugh and not Richard was your real mate."

REGAINS COMPOSURE

I sprang to my feet with eyes aflame as well as my cheeks.

"And Hugh listened to such ravings, and dared to repeat it to you!" I cried.

"Steady, girl!" Lillian's cool hands were upon mine, pushing me back into my chair, and her equally cool voice, holding no note whatever of indignation, was calming me in spite of myself.

"I cannot blame you for your reaction, my darling," my father said slowly, "but I think in justice to Hugh you ought to remind yourself that never since we have known him has he been guilty of crassness, such as this disclosure would be had he not the gravest reasons for revealing it."

I fought myself back to sanity, and reminded myself that though I had not expected so bold a declaration, this proposition of Lee Chow's was not a total surprise to me. But I found myself still resenting Hugh's voicing of Lee Chow's proposal to my father.

"I know," I said contritely. "I do not wish to misjudge him. But why should he have thought it necessary to tell you this?"

Make This at Home

What You Can Do With This Design Is Amazing

Pattern 1842

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

If you wish to see what a very interesting design this is, look at the little sketches along side! No one on earth would ever suspect that all those charming things had been made from the same pattern—but they have! You may make it leaving off the capes and another time the reverse. One time you may make it of a print and at another of a plain fabric—and then the whim may seize you to combine the two as in the large sketch. Any way you make it—it will be smart and delightfully slenderizing, and a thoroughly satisfactory thing to wear.

Pattern 1842 is available in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 takes 3⅞ yards 39 inch fabric, and ⅝ yard contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

The smartest warm weather fashions, the newest fabrics, and the summer season's outstanding accessories are illustrated and described in the NEW PATTERN BOOK FOR SUMMER. ORDER YOUR COPY OF THIS HELPFUL NEW SUMMER BOOK. PRICE OF BOOK 15 CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER, 25 CENTS.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Arthritis Is a Curable Ailment

Contrary to a popular belief, arthritis is a curable affliction. It is true that this change of opinion is only of recent date. This will be good news because many sufferers from arthritis accept their disablement as a permanent condition, with little hope for relief or cure.

Dr. Copeland

May I assure you that modern science now offers a means of relief and cure. Unfortunately, the cure can be accomplished only after a prolonged course of study and treatment. This probably accounts for the hopeless attitude of many sufferers from arthritis.

Too many victims of this disabling affliction resort to home remedies and salves. They may obtain some relief in this way, but certainly never permanent cure.

Another common mistake is to confuse arthritis with rheumatism, neuritis and other similar afflictions. They are not the same. In arthritis a joint or several joints may be inflamed. The knee or shoulder joints are usually involved, though any joint may be the seat of the trouble.

The victim first complains of an inflamed and painful joint. It becomes swollen, tender to the touch and painful upon the slightest motion. As a rule, the sufferer has difficulty in walking and in climbing stairs.

If the condition is neglected, certain changes occur within the joint. There may be actual bony changes and alteration in the structure of the diseased joint. This leads to impaired movements.

I am often asked what causes arthritis. Arthritis may be caused by an infection, or a fall, blow or injury. It may be the result of sustained faulty posture, faulty elimination, unhygienic living, absorption of pus from a center of infection, such as diseased teeth, nasal sinuses, tonsils, adenoids or other structures of the body. Correction of the underlying conditions leads to cure of the diseased joint.

To determine the underlying cause, it is necessary for the patient to undergo a careful and thorough examination. This should include blood examination, urinalysis, X-rays and other tests known to medical science. It is only by a thorough check-up that the real cause can be determined and the necessary steps taken to effect a cure.

Within the past few years, great emphasis has been placed upon diseased and infected teeth as a source of arthritis. It is true that infected teeth may lead to this condition. But do not be discouraged if after careful dental care you still suffer from arthritis. Continue in your efforts to eradicate all underlying points of infection and disturbance. Until these are removed, no cure can be expected.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By Josephine Culbertson

Solving a Playing Problem

When a player holds some such combination as K 10 3 of a suit in one hand and nothing but small cards in the other, he does not need to worry about losing more than two tricks in that suit, provided he is not compelled to lead the suit at any time. This statement can be substantiated to the satisfaction of any student who will take the trouble to deal out the cards, giving the remaining honors as he pleases to the two opposing sides.

It was an appreciation of this fact that permitted Walter Malowan in a recent Duplicate game to be the only one to make his contract. The hand was:

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ K Q 6 ♡ K Q 5 4 3 ◇ K 8 2 ♣ 9 3
♠ 9 5 4 ♡ 8 ◇ 9 5 4 3 ♣ A 8 6 5 4	West / North / East / South	♠ 8 3 ♡ A 7 6 2 ◇ Q J 10 6 ♣ Q J 2
	♠ A J 10 7 2 ♡ J 10 9 ◇ A 7 ♣ K 10 7

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding is accurate enough. South's Knave-Ten-Nine of hearts is practically adequate support, and he must certainly find another bid in response to his partner's Takeout. The Raise of hearts is a better choice than the bidding of any number of notrump or a Rebid of the spades. When South bid three hearts, North quite rightly bid three spades, and South's Rebid to game is perfectly obvious.

Most players on the bidding made an Opening lead of a spade, and the ordinary line of attack, after winning the first spade in the closed hand was to lead a heart and establish that suit before drawing trumps. This line of play proved a losing one, as East won with the Ace, returned the club Queen, and later was able to give his partner a ruff in hearts for the setting trick.

The safe line of play was to draw the adverse trumps and then establish the hearts. With the combination of clubs held, not enough leads could then be made to keep South from fulfilling his contract, and if the opponents could be held to one trick in the club suit, the Declarer would make five.

Tomorrow's Hand

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ 9 2 ♡ 9 4 3 ◇ 8 6 5 4 ♣ J 8 4 3
♠ — ♡ A K Q 8 2 ◇ A K J 10 9 7 ♣ A 10	West / North / East / South	♠ J 8 6 5 4 3 ♡ 10 5 ◇ Q 3 2 ♣ Q 7
	♠ A K Q 10 7 ♡ J 7 6 ◇ — ♣ K 9 6 5 2

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be hostess at a banquet to be given in honor of the basketball team of our school, and as this is my first experience as hostess, I do not know just how to go about it and I hope you can help me. There will be priests at the table, the basketball boys and 30 invited guests.

1—Just when should I introduce the toastmaster and what should I say?

2—Just how should the invitations read to be up to the minute? E.

1—You should introduce the toastmaster very early in the dinner, perhaps just after the first course, so that he can carry on with his plans for the calling for other toasts and for the rest of the program as planned.

Your introduction should be very simple: "I want to say just a word of enthusiastic and cordial welcome to our guests this evening and to the members of our basketball team. You have done us great honor to come and you have given us great happiness. And now it gives me special pleasure to introduce to you the toastmaster of our dinner . . . Mr. Edward Latham. He does this business of toastmaster-ing so perfectly that I am not going to take away a minute of his time . . . Mr. Latham."

2—Your invitations would be written as notes, and this is the way you, as a hostess, might word them:

Dear Mrs. Anderson:

We are planning to give a dinner in honor of the basketball team of our school, in the auditorium of our school on Friday, the first of June, at eight o'clock, and we are very eager to have you and Mr. Anderson be with us for the dinner. Please do say that you will come . . . will you? We are all looking forward to greeting you and to welcoming you.

Cordially yours,

On the Fly-Leaf

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have given two very dear girl friends books as gifts. Each has asked me to write something in the front of the books, and I don't know just what to write that will be friendly and appropriate. Will you help me?

A.

Perhaps something like this may appeal to you: "With dearest love, and the wish that you may enjoy this book," or "With this book come my love and my friendship," or "May every sentence of this book tell you how dear you are to me," or "This book is just a hint of my love and devotion to you, Mary dear."

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

No need of mistakes when finding gloves since Vionnet the dressmaker started the fad of initialed gloves. The initials are in patent leather in various colors, as well as in gold and silver kidskin. In some cases, the initials are placed over the knuckles of the right hand glove. Other gloves have them on each gauntlet cuff.

Just a look at any smart gathering will show more than one woman wearing one of the new ermine capes. These have tuxedo fronts which can be closed back on either side with big rhinestone buttons. These capes are fitted at the shoulder, and an inner band at the waist assures a snug fit.

Dressed in layers is a good idea for traveling. One such outfit consists of a gray woolen top coat worn over a matching skirt, with a Russian jacket of gray and red flannel. Under the jacket is a crisp white pique blouse with a tucked front and tiny studs.

Go to dinner wearing one of the new tucked chiffon suits. A charming model has the skirt with vertical stripes, and the jacket made with horizontal tucks. The blouse is of flesh-colored chiffon made with a huge chiffon tie-scarf with fringed edges.

-:- JUNIOR PATROL MAIL BOX -:-

Archery is a swell sport, fellows!

We know some fellows make themselves bows and arrows and then shoot the arrows at each other. That is mighty dangerous, fellows. One of the arrows may hit a boy in the eye and blind him, maybe even kill him. No matter how careful you are, when you shoot things at a playmate you may hurt him badly.

But there are plenty of other ways to have fun with bows and arrows. To begin with, you have all the fun of making the bow and the arrows. To do this you may need some help from your dads or older friends, but you can do it if you try.

And don't forget that in the library there are books telling how to make bows and arrows and how to shoot them. Or, if you want to, you can buy a good bow and straight arrows.

Once you have your bow and arrows, you are all ready to have plenty of good fun. Pulling the bow, and bringing back the arrows, is good exercise. Your patrol members can take turns shooting at a target on an archery range that you can easily make.

Many good archery ranges have a big canvas or oilcloth bull's-eye for a mark at which to shoot—painted in big round rings of different colors. This bull's-eye ought to be in front of a good backstop like a pile of baled hay or a soft hillside. Then when the arrows miss they will stick into something without doing any harm. It also saves the arrows from being broken on hard rocks and trees.

The target itself should be stuffed with something soft so that the arrows will stick where they strike.

It is plenty of sport taking turns shooting arrows. The bull's-eye should count the most, of course. You could have a prize for the one who makes the best score. And by the way, some of the best archers in the world are women and girls. The girls will find archery lots of fun, too.

KITCHEN TOWELS
PATTERN 740

Who doesn't love elephants? At circus or zoo they always get more than their share of attention. And here are some droll ones that will not only be a lot of fun to embroider, but will be a decidedly decorative asset to any kitchen. Can't you imagine the popularity of any one of these at a bazar? So here is a chance to make your own or someone else's dishwashing a pleasure instead of a task. The embroidery is done in outline stitch with just a touch of cross-stitch and can be all in one color or in a variety of colors.

Pattern 740 comes to you with a transfer pattern of six motifs averaging 5x9 inches; illustrations of the stitches and yardage requirements.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York, N. Y.

CHICKIE'S DAUGHTER

A Thrilling Serial Of Modern Romance

By ELENORE MEHERIN

Pippin, Kissed by Dale, Resents His Advances

CHAPTER LXXV.

Pippin sat in the hammock at her mother's side, tore open a letter from Gregg and pretended an immediate and enormous interest. But she didn't read a word. She waited with bursting heart as Helena turned pages Kevin had written. Finally Helena looked up, her eyes swimming with love.

"It's about Jon. When Kevin was in Boston they spent a great deal of time together."

In a dream, because Chickie was grateful for things Kevin said about her son, she handed the letter to Pippin.

Pippin's glance flew down the page. With hard, reluctant eyes she came to the last paragraph, reading the sentences with dread and longing. She could not bear it that he had not even mentioned her name. He spoke of Dadee and Dadee's plans for entering college and the courses he should take, but in the whole letter there was not one mention of Pippin. As though she did not exist!

"Grand brotherly letter, Helena. Now ain't you proud of your offspring!"

Pippin's careful indifference fooled her mother. She walked up to Dadee and said with a sweetness he could never resist: "Let's take out the boat and ride the surf-board!"

For hours she flew recklessly over the bounding waters. But at intervals she would feel again that cold snap in her heart. Not even her name mentioned!

Walks Up Trail

"I'll get some wild flowers, mother!"

But she didn't look for a blossom. She watched a pink cloud drifting over the black, colossal shoulders of Ralston.

"Like a shower of roses," she thought and felt cold though the whole sky and the clear, beautiful waters now shimmered with flame. It was still; the trees above her made sanctuary.

She sat on a boulder, looking westward to the mountains, looking hard and repeating to herself: "All those colors—crimson, like a wine poured out!"

A boat rounded the crag. She saw Dale. Tears rushed to her eyes and she wanted to escape. But he landed.

He saw instantly she was disturbed. He sat beside her, saying nothing for a while but only pointing to a flash of jade that now swept through the lighted sky.

"The lake looks like rippling mother-of-pearl, doesn't it? All that lovely undertone of fire. I wish I could paint it."

He put his arm around Pippin, but carelessly, as a friendly gesture and not at all a caress.

"Why do you feel so sad on a beautiful evening like this?"

"I'm not sad. I was just thinking I'd go in for a swim. I'd like to float through all those colors. On and on."

Reads Her Mood

"Yes—we always want to escape. Float away from ourselves and the thoughts that beat us down."

She looked out over the waters. "You like to read meanings into idle words, don't you? Just as you read beauty into faces."

"No—but I've been where you are now. I know what it is."

She said dreamily, but not turning, because she felt his eyes glowing on her face: "Aren't you romantic!"

"No, but you are. Climbing desolate mountains alone and longing to float out of life on a sunset sea. You make a marvelous picture, that I can't help longing to paint."

"Oh—so that's it!" said Pippin, laughing and jumping quickly to her feet. "You want to use my imagined sorrows as material!"

He caught her hands: "Don't say that. I want to sketch you—yes." He pulled her a little near and looked seriously into her face.

But she tossed her head and gave a quick, sudden laugh: "But that's all right—that's lovely! I'll come over in the morning and you can sketch me on this crag."

She knew her cheeks were stained; a little flutter of excitement ran along her neck. She remembered the look in Dale's eyes, the black side-burns and the deep red of his lips. She thought of him and said to another image in her mind: "What do I care? I DON'T care!"

Dale Sketches Pippin

Dale sketched her sitting on a rock at the edge of the lagoon. Once he came up and turned her face.

He said, laughing: "Its' morning—every one should smile in the morning."

"I wish you wouldn't be making me out a Lady of Despair."

"But you'll get over it."

"Get over what—and how do you know?"

"From my own experience. I've tried about everything."

"Have you? I suppose you mean you've been in love?"

"Always, more or less. Very much so, at present."

"Nice going!" said Pippin, flippantly. "How is it you never married?"

"I did, of course. But it didn't take. I got through with that error three years ago."

"Is it always an error to marry?"

"Not at all. But few of us use our brains when we start out on the one adventure that requires more common sense and judgment than any other. Can you imagine Byrd going down to the Antarctic in summer flannels? Most of us rush into matters with that sort of hardihood."

Pippin said absently: "But such a pleasant, easy-going person as you are could get along with anyone. I should imagine. Consider the fun you have with Kate Stone and she's so much older than you are."

Good Comrades

"But Kate is a gallant, vital person. We're good comrades because we have similar tastes. That's the most important thing to consider in marriage. Usually, however, an Eskimo falls in love with the hottentot—and expects the poor lady from the tropics to be happy in his igloo."

Pippin watched him, her interest piqued: "Are you an Eskimo?"

"What would you say about that? Well—as a husband I don't think I'm God's gift to a woman. Even Kate, who likes me as a comrade, might find me intolerable as a mate. I don't fit in with conventional social life. I like solitude, the wilder the better. I like to tramp up mountains and live carelessly without watching a clock. I'm no good at getting to meals on time or remembering birthdays or deciding two weeks ahead that I'll go to a dinner on Saturday at 8 o'clock. I'm just a tramp and can't bear to be hedged in with routine. The girl I married happened to like everything I hated and hated everything I like. She could stand this lake and these mountains about two days: I could stand a stuffy little apartment one year. So we parted."

"How can anyone dismiss a great emotional experience like love and marriage so blandly?"

"You don't do it blandly. You fight on and on, hoping to recapture the lost joy. But after a year of unremitting war, you'd be surprised how gladly you welcome peace."

He worked on at the sketch.

She said, musing: "But there must always remain a sadness."

Her voice aroused him. He came over and dropped to the boulder at her feet.

Expression Changes

"Would you be sad if you discovered you'd been in love with NOTHING? No—you'd be humiliated. You'd wonder why you threw yourself out with such fervor. In the end you'd be relieved. I think it's well to love even when we love."

She thought sharply: "Not while we're losing!"

"Look," said Dale, taking her hand and leading her to his easel, "my girl is coming back to life!"

She looked at her face, which had a dreamy wistfulness, but the harsh rage she had seen in his earlier sketches had vanished.

"You gave me that expression."

Still holding her hand, he leaned down and laughed: "I'm not finished, either!"

The color streamed over her face. She bantered with him, yet felt a warm, hidden excitement. He intrigued her. She liked to watch him standing at his easel, absorbed in his work; liked the sound of his rich, deep voice, singing softly.

On the trails she waited for him and was conscious of gladness when he overtook her. Not so lonely now.

She brought Bruce to his cabin. Bruce, blushing furiously but very proud, sat on a boulder and posed for a sketch. Dale took Bruce fishing and had long talks with Dadee on wild flowers.

Then Dadee brought Irene Wheeler, a little brown-eyed gypsy maid—with whom he was now in love—to meet Dale. He hinted naively Dale might like to do a sketch of Irene, which he, Dadee, would gladly accept. Often four or five of them went on a hike. Pippin thought: "I'm happy now!" Tears came to her eyes.

Dale Kisses Her

One morning they got up very early and made the hard, punishing climb up Ralston. Dale and Pippin stood on the crest of the harsh old giant. All about them the black, titanic peaks flung wild against the sky. They were so tremendously still, yet seemed on-rushing with swift, vast rhythm to a far, unreckoned goal. Below them in every crevice, like silver goblets tossed away, were the clear and shimmering mountain lakes. Gaunt pine trees hemmed them round, and the white sheer walls of granite made a chalice to which the streams of water rushed.

They looked a long while in silence. He moved near and put his arm about her. She raised her face and smiled.

"It makes your heart go quickly, doesn't it?"

He said: "Yes," and held her close and kissed her.

She said: "Don't."

But he kept his arms tight about her and laughed into her eyes.

"Please. You mustn't. You can't do this."

He said softly; closing her lips with his: "I can. You know I can."

She said: "No," and turned her head.

He saw her eyes fill and said gently, contritely, taking her hand: "Oh, please don't be angry."

"I'm not angry, but I don't want this and I'm not going to have it."

He said, still holding her hand, his eyes warm and his lips teasing: "Don't you really want it, Pippin? Are you quite sure about that?"

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

By J. JAMES MOORE, Pittsburgh Wing Commander.

Howdy, Junior Birdmen! Here's that story I promised would knock the landing gear right from under your carriage. It's news about the greatest air spectacle—carnival and pageant—that has ever been put on anywhere in Pittsburgh. It is about the big air show to be staged for you members of our Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Wing at the City-County Airport Saturday, June 9.

What a day it is going to be for you local members! And when I say it's going to be the greatest air spectacle ever staged, I say that without any hesitancy or degree of exaggeration!

The Big Show

The Field Day will begin at 12 noon with an inspection of the hangars, the administration building and signal control tower. Hal Bazley, director of the field, told me yesterday that he would have several field dispatchers to show you boys and girls around. The inspection tour will last two hours—from 12 until 2 p. m.

Then the air carnival and pageant will begin. Lieut. Corley McDarment, commanding officer at Rodgers Field, said that he will have several Army planes on hand to show you some formation flying. Besides he will bring along some rocket pistols to show you how the Army fliers do their signaling and an aerial camera.

Al Williams and Roscoe Turner, both famous speed pilots, have promised to show you some stunt and speed flying. Helen Richey, noted McKeesport aviatrix and co-holder of the world's endurance flight record for women with Mrs. Frances Marsalis, will also be there. That should interest the girl members of the Junior Birdmen.

Some 20 famous fliers are being recruited from the pick of the nation's Army and civilian airmen for the day. They will represent the greatest array of talented flying men and women ever gathered in the cause of clean, fast, exciting entertainment. They will use a dozen planes to perform their tricks for you, ranging from a small, speedy racing craft to an Army observation plane.

Among the many air celebrities that will parade before you in the air, to do their tricks on the afternoon of Saturday, June 9 will be:

And others!

That is going to be some air show, believe me! Now I'll bet you will be glad you are a member of the Junior Birdmen. And, if you're not, I'll bet your application for membership will be in the mails within a few hours.

Your Field Day

This gala show is being conducted with the co-operation of the city and county officials and Hal Bazley, the airport manager. Being a municipal airport, nobody will be prohibited from visiting the field on that day. Every person will be permitted access to the Field Day. The show is planned, however, for Junior Birdmen.

Don't forget there will be talks by famous fliers and a host of other events to interest and amuse you. If you have any friends who want to accompany you, who are too old to become Junior Birdmen, or if your parents should want to come along, they are invited.

Lots More To Tell

But hold on, this isn't even the end of the program. There are lots more to tell but we will save the rest of our "wind" for another day.

In the meantime, remember our Field Day isn't so far off and certainly you will want to attend. Every member, wearing his or her wings, will be on hand.

In tomorrow's column we will have the third lesson in our Model Builders' Course, but on Wednesday I will be back again with further startling news about our Great Junior Birdmen Field Day at the largest and most expensive airport in the country—the City-County Airport.

Later on I will give you full instructions, in our column, just how to get to the field.

Hurry and send in your membership coupon if you are not a member!

HAPPY LANDINGS.

Man Killed in Fall Down Stairs

A fall down the stairway of his home was blamed for the death of Adam A. Stoerkel, 861 Lillian street, early yesterday, according to a coroner's report. A broken neck was reported to be the cause of death. Investigating, homicide detectives said Stoerkel apparently had risen in the night and fallen down the stairs in the darkness.

State Educator Homestead Speaker

Dr. D. E. Crosley, state deputy superintendent of public instruction, will be the principal speaker at commencement exercises for the Homestead High School in Munhall Carnegie Library Hall tomorrow night. The Rev. J. H. Douds, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Homestead, preached the baccalaureate sermon last night.

Synopsis

Pippin, pretty daughter of Chickie, falls in love with Kevin McPike. Pippin and Kevin's sister, Kathie, are fast friends. Pippin is thrilled by the first real kiss she ever had—from Kevin. When Kevin goes to Europe to pursue his studies, Pippin meets Bill Lodge, a young ensign. At a friend's home, Chickie meets Barry Dunne, the man who caused her so much sorrow. Pippin goes to a party with Bill, but after returning seems unhappy. She tells her father what she heard about her mother, and that she thought him responsible. David explains to her what really happened and Pippin is again happy. Chickie tells Pippin the real story of her life. Pippin goes on hikes with Gregg McClintock, senior at college. She then returns to college and has Vivian Drake as a room mate. Vivian's love affair with Sherry wanes. Vivian disappears and sends a suicide note. Kevin returns. Edward's family and Pippin disapprove of his choice of a bride. Kevin kisses Pippin while on skiing party. Kevin disappoints Pippin, but saves a man's life. Bill arrives home and takes Pippin on airplane trip. They're forced to land in desolate country, but finally find a house and arrive back in town. Bill leaves. Gregg sails. Kevin goes East. Bill's plane crashes. Bill dies. Kevin's letters stop. Pippen spends much time in walks, alone, through mountains. She meets Dale Owens, an artist.

THREE HOLD UP NORTH SIDE CAFE

Proprietor Struck On Head; Suspect in $60 Robbery Held

Henry Kimanchik, 42, of 1104 Franklin street, was to be arraigned in North Side Police Court today following his arrest yesterday in connection with the holdup and robbery of a cafe at 1201 Juniata street early yesterday, according to a police report.

Robert Sobchak, the proprietor of the cafe, told police three men who came into his place to order beer forced him and his wife into a rear room, struck him on the head and robbed the cash drawer of $60. A quantity of glassware was also reported stolen from the place.

Cap and shoes were stolen from Harry McLesh, of Felicia way, early yesterday by two Negroes who attacked him near his home, according to a police report.

Two youths stole the purse of Bertha Mornin, of 4614 Fifth avenue, while she was walking in Neville street Saturday night.

Dorothy Solomon, of 503 Cato street, reported her purse was stolen by a Negro youth in Stevenson street Saturday night, it was reported. The purse contained $11.

Three Negroes held up and robbed the Rev. Joseph Fedoronko, of 2105 Sidney street, of 75 cents on the South Twenty-second Street Bridge yesterday, according to a police report.

KAUFMAN ASKS G. O. P. CHANGE

David E. Kaufman, of Towanda, a lieutenant governor candidate in the recent primary, today joined the ranks of Republicans who are demanding a change in leadership and a new attitude toward public issues. Kaufman carried Allegheny County, defeating the state organization candidate, Senator Harry B. Scott, by more than 20,000, but lost the nomination.

In a statement today Kaufman said:

"I am indeed thankful to the citizens of this commonwealth for the support which they gave me in the recent campaign. To the people of Allegheny County and the sterling lawyers' committee which there sponsored my candidacy, I owe an eternal debt of gratitude.

"The Republican party of Pennsylvania, as never before, has an opportunity for constructive usefulness. It must unfetter itself from old lines and rebuild anew. It is is to be the dominant party of the future it must consecrate and pledge itself to a broad program of social and liberal legislation."

Former Congressman Edmund F. Erk, nominated on the Republican ticket in the Thirtieth District, today thanked voters. He pointed to his service with the late Stephen G. Porter as an advantage to his record, and expressed appreciation for the votes cast for him in the Democratic primary, though Congressman Twing Brooks won the nomination.

John S. Becker, 74, and his wife, Mary A., 71, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary today with Mrs. Becker's mother, Mrs. Anna B. Drost, 93, among the guests.

A mass was celebrated in St. Wendelin's Church, Carrick, followed by breakfast in the Duquesne Knights of Columbus Hall.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SALINAS, Cal., May 21.

To the Editor, the Sun-Telegraph:

I read statistics every once in a while and it shows maybe how church attendance is sorter falling off on Sunday mornings. But it's not a lack of religious inclination. It's just that you can't beat Sunday morning to get the old car out and ramble. A preacher can have the best sermon in the world, but he just has to deliver it to folks without any gas.

Will Rogers.

I bet you we live to see the time when they will just hold services on rainy days, and days when they are fixing the roads, and they will pack 'em in. Folks are just as good as they ever were, and they mean well, but no minister can move 'em like a second hand car. Yours WILL.

Hopkins Orders Survey Of Unfinished Job On Structure

Hope that the Relief Works Division would begin work anew on the Cathedral of Learning rose here today following the announcement by Allegheny County Director James Lyall Stuart that Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins has authorized a government survey of the unfinished work in the building.

Work was discontinued May 1, while more than $150,000 in a $400,000 federal RWD appropriation remained to be spent. It was not started again when other RWD projects resumed because of a ruling that federal funds could not be allotted to state-aided institutions.

The survey was authorized after union labor protests to Harrisburg and Washington. Deputy Director Philip Lantz said yesterday that if the survey demonstrates the advisability of work resumption an exception will probably be made to the ruling.

OPEN TO PUBLIC

He emphasized, however, that the Cathedral cannot be completed unless the present campaign for $1,650,000 is successful. It is estimated that a federal allotment of $1,600,000 will be needed to complete the building in addition to the money raised by the campaign.

More crowds of visitors are expected to take advantage of an "open house" week to tour the Cathedral of Learning today, part of a campaign to raise the $1,650,000 needed in addition to federal grants to complete the high tower.

ADVANCE GIFTS

University of Pittsburgh officials reported today that more than 2,600 people saw the building yesterday, the opening day, between 2 and 6 p. m. Last night more thousands heard the radio broadcast over KDKA of the two-way conversation between a TWA Douglas airliner and the top of the Cathedral in an attempt to discover how far the lighthouse lens at the building's peak can be seen from the air.

Advance gifts to the building fund total $405,153. The entire organization of 500 volunteer workers takes the field today in a drive to raise the remainder of the money needed. Substantial additions to the fund are expected following tomorrow's report meeting in Kaufmann's auditorium, according to Homer D. Williams, Pittsburgh Steel Company president, who is general chairman of the campaign.

SOME MACHINES FOR FALL VOTE

Only sufficient rebuilt voting machines to supply Pittsburgh districts and a few McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton precincts will be ready in time for the November election, officials said today. Boroughs and townships will probably have to get along with the old paper ballots.

The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company is repairing the 1,100 machines on a cost-plus basis. Final costs are expected to be more than $600,000. It is expected that actual work will start this week.

Steel Sales Officer Dies in Home Here

Services for James Reynolds Smith, 51, steel company official, who died yesterday in his home at 3526 Beechwood boulevard, will be held tomorrow night in the Moreland Chapel, East End.

Mr. Smith, born in Tyrone, Pa., had been general sales manager for the Taylor-Wharton Iron & Steel Company. Before coming to Pittsburgh 10 years ago, he had been in charge of the company's activities in Cleveland, where he was widely known.

He is survivedby Mrs. Gertrude Fleming Smith, the widow, a daughter, Mrs. Laura Patterson, and a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Schoch, of Pitsburgh.

What Do Straw Votes Prove, If Anything, Asks Baer

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

All of the states seem to have gotten their light spring voting out of the way.

That noble magazine held another of its famous hay elections and finds the New Deal is endorsed two-to-one. That shows at least three voted.

We don't know the value of an alfalfa ballot in its ratio to the future. You can't get 1936 here by writing an x in a circle.

Nobody knows what's going to happen any place at any given time. Proof is that when in Athens Sam Insull's mustache was black.

BUS CRASHES AUTO, EIGHT INJURED

5 Women Victims in Collision; Hit-Run Chase Hurts Boy

Five young women and three men were injured at midnight in a collision between an auto and a Pittsburgh-bound Harmony Short Line bus near Millvale.

All but one of the 35 bus passengers escaped injury.

Four of the women were taken to Allegheny General Hospital. They were:

AUTO DEMOLISHED

All four were riding in an automobile driven by Nick Busin, 25, of 1239 Resaca place, according to State Highway Patrolman W. C. Weaver. Three companions were said by witnesses to have received injuries. Busin said two of them were Dan and Bruno Sartorio, brothers, of 504 Sampson way.

The injured bus passenger was Jane Ambrose, of 4720 Center avenue.

Busin was arrested and taken before Squire James Hernon, of Sharpsburg, where charges of reckless driving and aggravated assault and battery were lodged against him. The auto was demolished.

HIT-RUN CHASE

A youth giving chase to a hit-and-run motorist was injured early today when he was thrown from the running board of a pursuing auto.

William Weiss, 21, of 246 Dinwiddie street, was standing in front of his home when he saw an auto being driven away after striking a parked car. He attempted to enter the automobile of Sidney Kaufmann, 245 Atlantic drive, Mt. Lebanon, who was chasing the fleeing driver, and was knocked to the ground when the door flew open.

The driver of the hit-and-run car fled after striking a pole. Weiss was taken to Passavant Hospital with a head injury.

2 HURT IN CRASH

Two persons were injured yesterday when an automobile driven by Frank Gereurich, 41, of 822 Bayridge street, collided with another automobile driven by Thomas Kelley, of 1417 Mervin street, in the 1300 block Pioneer avenue, according to a police report.

Gereurich and Mrs. Sophie Kelley suffered head injuries. They were treated at the Mercy Hospital.

Stanley Stoyek, 22, of Yukon, Pa., was killed and three others were injured in a collision between two autos on the George Westinghouse Bridge, East Pittsburgh, early yesterday.

Frank Carr, 25, Yukon, driver of one of the cars, suffered shock and a possible skull fracture. Joseph Kostello, Jr., 23, Yukon, and Arthur Gillmore, 48, of 5824 Ellwood street, the other driver, received minor injuries.

P. R. R. Sleuth, Man Shot in Gun Duel

HARRISBURG, May 21.—(AP.)—An exchange of pistol shots in the Pennsylvania Railroad yards in the northern part of the city resulted in the wounding of a railroad policeman and a train rider.

The policeman, Thomas B. Eckerd, 43, of nearby Royalton, said he ordered two men from a train as it entered the yards last night, and that one of them drew a pistol and fired at him, wounding him in the back, abdomen and arm. The man who fired at the officer was critically wounded in the stomach.

FAZIO ON TRIAL IN BOMBING

Philip Fazio, reputed big-time racketeer, of Swissvale, and Nick Consolo, 23, of Wilkinsburg, went on trial before Judge Samuel H. Gardner in Criminal Court today charged with the racket-war bombing of the home of Dr. George C. Seitz, member of the Swissvale Council, last April 24.

In his opening address to the jury, Assistant District Attorney Earl R. Jackson outlined a case which he said the state would prove against the two accused racketeers.

The prosecutor said that after the bombing, scraps of a paper bag found near the scene were analyzed and found to be identical with paper bags obtained from Fazio's beer garden in Swissvale. Jackson said Dr. Seitz had received three letters threatening death unless he stopped his war on rackets.

Fazio was acquitted three years ago in the barrel murder of William J. Gregory in Penn Township.

German Federation Elects Pittsburgher

Reinhardt Ulrich, of Pittsburgh, today had been elected vice president of the German-American Federation, which held a week-end meeting in Scranton, Pa., according to an Associated Press dispatch.

Fred Gardner, of Philadelphia, was elected president. The next meeting will be held in Bethlehem.

AGED HEROINE GETS ORCHIDS

Mrs. Mary Conelly, 75, of 2505 Fifth avenue, today prized this week's Walter Winchell orchids, awarded her for her heroism in rescuing three of her grandchildren when a fire destroyed their third-floor home at 2534 Fifth avenue April 17.

Winchell named Mrs. Conelly as this week's orchid winner in his broadcast last night.

Mrs. Conelly had returned from her work at the Pennsylvania College for Women shortly before the fire started in the Exterminating Service Company plant two floors below.

At the first alarm, she snatched up the baby, Peggy Lorraine, 1, and led Edna, 10, carrying Jimmy, 2, down the dark, smoke filled stairway to safety.

Five other children were outside at play at the time. The oldest, Mary Agnes, 16, was visiting her mother, Mrs. Mary O'Connell, ill in Magee Hospital.

Winchell's orchids today make the second bouquet Mrs. Conelly has received for her brave action. Soon after the fire, the Florists Telegram Delivery Association, through the Sun-Telegraph, awarded her the prized blossoms during their orchid week.

Her eyes, filled with the chemical laden smoke during the fire, still hurt her, Mrs. Conelly says.

SPRINGDALE'S DRY--NO WATER

A majority of Springdale's 4,000 residents relied for their water supply today on bathtubs, buckets and other vessels which they filled last night as information was broadcast that a 10-inch main had broken in Colfax street.

Police and borough employes sent out the warning by telephone. Most of the inhabitants laid in an emergency supply. Others had to haul water.

The municipal water system was shut off at 10:30 o'clock this morning to permit a new section of main to be laid. Police said the repairs likely would be completed by tonight.

CAREER BEGUN AS LABORER HERE

Steel Man Veteran School Director, Hero Fund Head

Funeral arrangements were being completed today for Taylor Allderdice, 71, leader in the civic and business life here, who died late last night in his home, 5727 Wilkins avenue, Squirrel Hill.

Mr. Allderdice

Mr. Allderdice was formerly president of the National Tube Company. He retired in 1928, ending a career begun as a laborer in Pittsburgh steel mills. Mr. Allderdice came to Pittsburgh in 1881 from Philadelphia, where he was a $4-a-week bank messenger, and started work with the company he was destined to guide. He was elected to the presidency in 1926.

Mr. Allderdice was one of the first members of the Pittsburgh Board of Education, being appointed in 1911 and serving continuously until his death. He served as trustee for Carnegie Institute of Technology and of the Carnegie Institute. During the later years he devoted much of his time to the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission, of which he was manager and secretary. He attended Lehigh University.

Mr. Allderdice was a director of the American Petroleum Institute, the Dahlberg Corporation of America, Homeopathic Hospital of Pittsburgh, Keystone Sand and Supply Company, Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt Corporation, Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation, the Western Pennsylvania School for the Blind and the Pittsburgh Bureau of Governmental Research.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Ellen Hansell Allderdice; four daughters, Mrs. Edward S. Travers, Mrs. McCook Reed, Mrs. Leonard Mudge and Mrs. S. F. Pryor, Jr.; two sons, Norman and Lawrence Allderdice and a sister, Mrs. Bradford Knight, of Philadelphia.

NUN SUCCEEDS HOSPITAL HEAD

After more than 25 years of service at the institution, Sister Anna Marie today became superintendent of Mercy Hospital.

She was appointed Saturday to take the place of Sister Rose who, after six years as head of the hospital, has been elevated to Mother Superior of the Mercy Order of Pittsburgh.

Sister Rose's headquarters will be at Mt. Mercy College. Sister Anna Marie said no other staff changes at the hospital are planned.

Mr. Omohundro, chief pressure-reader of the Equitable Gas Company, the only 50-year-man still active in the company—and the only man 50 years with the company during its current celebration of its 50th anniversary. One of his chief duties: keeping several hours ahead of the weather to keep up pressure to meet emergency demands for gas. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

Church Benefits Cited In Sabbath Survey

Dr. R. H. Martin, head of the National Reform Association, today announced he had completed a church survey of New Castle, Pa., with the purpose of justifying a Sabbath day free of commercial and business activities.

He placed the value of 45 church plants at $3,399,000, whose expenditures for the last church year were $293,853. He found 2,009 Sunday school teachers, singers and others who received no pay. If paid $1 a day the payroll would total $104,468 a year.

A total of $738,221, including interest on investments, is estimated to be spent in character building activities for which no public tax is levied, Dr. Martin asserted. He added:

"All this is done by contributions of church people of New Castle. Surely they are entitled to the right of way on the Lord's day over commercial interests which have six days."

Dr. Martin recently made a similar survey at Beaver Falls, Pa. He speaks on "The Day," Wednesday night in the Eighth United Presbyterian Church, Perrysville avenue.

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

Many of our weddings this June will be home ceremonies, have you realized? And bridal parties for a home wedding are always smaller. So, although we're having wedding galore, they are nearly all comparatively simple in arrangements.

Mary Irene Ritts, of Butler, who'll wed Albert Taylor Sprankle, of Dubois, Pa., June 8 in her parents' home, will have only one attendant—her sister, Susan Ritts, as her maid of honor. Joseph F. Sprankle, Jr., will be his brother's best man, and Van Tassel Sprankle and John Dickson, of Butler, cousin of the bride-elect, will be ushers.

June 8 Date Of Wedding

Mary Irene is the daughter of the Elias Rittses, of Belmont road, Butler. Her fiance is the son of the late Joseph Fleming Sprankle, of Dubois, Pa., and of Mrs. Helen Van Tassel Sprankle. The bride's father is vice president of the Butler County National Bank and Trust Company.

At the wedding, to take place in the Ritts home Friday evening, June 8, at 7:30 o'clock (eastern standard time), the Rev. Herbert A. Baum, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, of Butler, will officiate.

Thurston School Commencement Near

Thurston School is preparing for commencement. The honor day exercises, always popular, will start commencement affairs. Honor day will open Thursday morning, May 31, at 10 o'clock.

Friday afternoon, June 1, at 4 o'clock, the graduation exercises will be held in Calvary Church. That evening the juniors will entertain the seniors at the annual prom at the Hotel Schenley. Barba Miller, junior class president, is chairman. After the graduation exercises, there'll be a reception at the school, Shady avenue.

And the pretty girl graduates will be Clara Clark, Betty Ann Katz, Sara Howes, Frances O. Graham, Betty Abbott, Evelyn Davis, Louise McCalmont, Patricia Maloney and Lilyas Cox.

The wedding plans of a bride of this evening were only made known Saturday night at an entertainment the bride's parents gave in the Highland Country Club for her Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority sisters and other guests.

The bride will be Miss Dorothy Elizabeth Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Allen, of Lincoln avenue, Bellevue, who will wed Malcolm Boyd Wiseheart, of Miami Beach, Fla., son of Judge Marshall Wiseheart and Mrs. Wiseheart, of Shawnee, Ill.

At 9 o'clock tonight the ceremony will take place in the home of the bride's parents before a large open stone fireplace in the living room. Ferns will fill the fireplace, and pink and white roses will decorate the stone mantelpiece.

The bride will wear a white lace gown, and will carry white roses and lilies of the valley. Her only attendant, Ann Diffenderfer, a sorority sister, will be in pastel pink crepe, and will carry Johanna Hill roses and blue delphinium.

Russell Gay, of New York, who arrived in Pittsburgh yesterday by airplane, will be best man.

Mr. Wiseheart and his bride-to-be plan to leave for Miami, from where they'll fly to Havana. After their honeymoon they will be at home in Bayshore drive, Miami Beach.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Allegheny College, Meadville, and the bridegroom, of Yale University.

Don't Gamble on FURNITURE

If you buy a Chair or a Table because the price is exceptionally low, it is usually a gamble. Maybe the chair doesn't stand up. Possibly the pretty finish of the table is soon dulled as warps and cracks appear.

Buy your Furniture from a store that believes a customer is worth keeping—from a store that knows that honestly constructed furniture is the only kind worth having.

Buy Furniture here and eliminate the gamble.

We value your trade. We respect your judgment of quality. That's why we sell nothing but honest, reliable merchandise, worth every penny of its fair price.

Payments may be made on a budget payment plan—if credit service is wanted.

Isabel W. Frease Bride Of Hugh C. King

At a quiet home ceremony at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Miss Isabel Wilson Frease and Hugh Charles King were married by the Rev. George Taylor, of the First Presbyterian Church of Wilkinsburg.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Frease, of Churchill road, and the bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. K. King of the East End.

The ceremony took place in the Frease home before an embankment of ferns and palms, and the home was decorated with spring flowers. There was a small reception later. The bride chose white taffeta for her wedding dress, made very simply, with a square neckline, puffed sleeves and full skirt. She carried white rosebuds and lilies of the valley. Her mother wore printed silk. There were no attendants.

THROUGH THE SPYGLASS

-:- Viewing the New -:-

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK Or send in a stamped self-addressed envelope for your SPYGLASS. FOR THE reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

* * *

In thinking back over our blitherings for the past few weeks, we come to the conclusion that we have more or less discounted small boys. And being as how there are lots of youngsters that answer to this name . . . we now take typewriter in hand and patter off the news that . . .

While small boys will pay little or no attention to this news of shirts . . . you, their mothers, will probably welcome it with open arms. For there is a new weave on the market . . . broadcloth mesh . . . a cool and airy fabric something like basketweave (and you know how well this wears!) These shirts are made in the polo collar style with a zipper up the front to simplify the sewing-on-of-buttons situation! White, gray, tan, blue, in sizes 8 to 18. And priced at $1.15.

* * *

Which brings us to belts . . . since our mind is running in that direction anyway. There are some new leash belts made of painted rope . . . and particularly appealing to young masculine hearts. They end up with metal links and a snap fastener like you use on Fido's chain . . . and therefore are easily adjustable.

Also . . . see the pigskin belts that are being snapped up by young riders . . . both male and female. These are nicely suede lined . . . 1½ inches wide . . . and end up with a bit and bridle clasp that is in keeping with the picture. Sizes 24 to 32. And both these belts are $1.00.

* * *

One of the town's most "400-ish" shops decides to knock their hat prices in the head and have a sweeping sale of brand new Summer models . . . then there is NEWS!

And it has happened! Just divine luck that we fell upon it whilst it was brewing! Just a miracle that it happened at all! For these are $10 and $15 bonnets . . . and they're going for $3 apiece, if you please!

Such headpieces as starched linen ones, with great spreading brims to do things for your eyes and temples! In black and navy . . . some with belting trims . . . some with patent leather! Such hats as panamas . . . leghorns . . . big and little! Such hats as here a little white pique and there a little crocheted business. And every one of them a distinctive style . . . so much so, that don't expect them to last very long, either in number or styles we mention.

And we mustn't forget to tell you that due to the fact that they're going out at such smallish sums . . . there will be NO CHARGES . . . NO DELIVERIES . . . NO EXCHANGES. Every sale is a closed chapter as far as the shop is concerned.

* * *

Now personally (see! we're getting clubby with you!) . . . we think anything over $12 or so for a daytime cotton dress is SILLY. Unless you're a millionaire. And we aren't!

BUT . . . when you come across a handkerchief linen frock like the one we did . . . that is all handblocked in design . . . then, that is something else again! This one being $15 . . . and one of the sweetest creatures of its kind we've ever seen; Simple . . . oh very simple! But done up knowingly . . . with tiny ball buttons of matching glass twinkling down the front . . . with bits of tucking . . . with a biggish breast pocket on each side . . . with a pleat in the short sleeves . . . and last . . . and BEST . . . with a collar that sort of swells out into a tremendous bow under the chin. This in red, white and blue . . . or yellows and white . . . or brown and white. Sizes 12 to 20.

* * *

They've been sworn to! These slips have an unconditional six months guarantee of wearability . . . promising you a complete new one back if the seams give way or the silk shifts. (The lace is not guaranteed . . . naturally).

This marks the end of your slipping in slips (and if you're like us, you've done plenty). These come in white and tearose . . . tailored or lace trimmed styles . . . adjustable straps . . . shadow panels . . . sizes 32 to 44 . . . and priced at $2.95.

P. S. Save your sales checks. In case of catastrophe, bring them and the worn garment in for a replacement. How's this for a beneficent offer!

—DOROTHY RANDALL.

SPRING REVIVES NEO-CLASSIC GOWNS

By PRUNELLA WOOD

IF YOU ARE the type who admires organza or gingham for other women's evening toilettes, but not for your own, you will be interested in the neo-classic models which invariably make a spring appearance. There isn't a woman in the world who would not look well in them, and as they are dateless, they make a very bright buy for the budgeteer.

Simple as they appear, they must be extraordinarily well-done to be perfect. One has only to look at the cheese cloth and gauze wisps of amateur Pavlowas to see how terrible almost-Greek garments can be. The really lovely classic gown must flow over the figure softly but faithfully as to anatomy, with a darn good dressmaker adding any touches that spell contact with the modern world.

* * *

JUST A FEW of these dressmaker touches will bear demonstration. The girl whose back is inclined to sprout the wings of underweight and whose front is flatter than she would like can see that floating draperies from her shoulder will help along the one deficiency and surplice drapings conceal the other. If it is the woman who feels a bit plump in her clothes who is to be treated, soft diagonal lines for the skirt and toga-like drapings over her too heavy arms will turn the trick.

A tunic line will cut height—though why anyone making a grande toilette wants to cut her height is a Hawkshaw mystery—and a line unbroken from a high bosom to the carpet will add dignity and inches, which goes for tall girls as well as pint-size beauties.

* * *

GREEK CHORUSES are wont to go for white draperies, or feathery gray, but smart women borrowing from the same design source need not confine themselves to the same shades. Ombre effects, in which a pale tint is developed into its most intense shade, are most lovely when treated to a Greek manipulation. Few women can carry a pastel costume without some sharp accent, and the placing of the accent often disrupts the line of the gown for the individual figure. It's simple as pie to shade the accent in a neo-classic gown, whether one goes from flesh to rose color, or from purple to cerise.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Above is another gown which should be seen in motion to be fully appreciated. It is chiffon in flame tones—warm russet and a golden beige tint. The back straps are particularly flattering, and the fan tail skirt dips to a slight train.

CLUBS ORGANIZE MILK SUREVY

Members of the Congress of Women's Clubs were to meet at 2 p. m. today in the club rooms, Penn avenue, to organize a committee to conduct a milk survey in Pittsburgh schools for the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Miss Helen Grimes, past president of the Congress and a member of the Pittsburgh District Dairy Council, received her appointment as director of the survey from Frederic C. Howe, director of the Consumers' Council for the A. A. A.

Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent, has named the Humbolt School, the Moorhead School, and the Brookline School as those in which the survey will be conducted. The women will begin the distribution of questionnaires tomorrow.

Cornerstone Laid For New Church

Construction proceeded today on the new Bethany Lutheran Church, Bethel Township, following cornerstone-laying exercises in charge of the City Mission Society of Pittsburgh. The Rev. George Knauff, pastor of the Castle Shannon Lutheran Church, will become pastor of the new church in July, when the church is expected to be ready for dedication.

MARY PICKFORD FLIES HOME

BEVERLY HILLS, May 21.—(AP.)—Silent on the state of her marital affairs, Mary Pickford arrived home over the week-end and made plans for a personal-appealance tour on the Pacific Coast, to start within two weeks.

Flying back to California from the East, she was met at an airport by her sister, Lottie, and her niece, Gwen Pickford. When the subject of her separation from Douglas Fairbanks was broached, she commented that "this is not the time or place" for such a discussion. Fairbanks is in England.

Helpful Hints of Menus For Commencement Entertaining

May days bring exams, and exams in turn give way to high school commencements. Seventeen-year-old Bill and Mary are already in a fever of excitement over graduation activities.

All you'll have to do is have some light refreshments ready. They won't need to cost you much, either in time or money. Prudence Penny thinks a simple menu like one of the following would do perfectly:

Strawberry Meringues
Frosted Coffee
Chocolate Mints
Nuts

Assorted Sandwiches
Fruit Punch with Lemon Flowers
Small Cakes
Mints

Chicken and Pineapple Salad
Buttered Biscuits
Stuffed Celery Olives
Chocolate Cream Cake
Coffee

Miss Penny, you know, is still awarding one $5 and five $1 prizes to the best recipes received daily. Just send in your favorites to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, remembering that no recipes are returned.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MRS. HARRY W. POKE,
309 Boggs Avenue, Mt. Washington.
MOCK LOBSTER SALAD.

One-half cup diced celery.
One-half cup mayonnaise.

Put fish into pan partially covered with water, add enough salt to taste and cook until well done. Set aside to cool and then flake. Add eggs, celery and mayonnaise, and mix lightly. Put in refrigerator and chill. Serve on lettuce leaves. Garnish with tomatoes.

Five $1 Prize Winners

MRS. R. D. O'DONALD,
6 Soffel Street.
BUTTER SCOTCH RICE

Wash one-third cup of rice and cook until nearly tender in a double boiler, with two cups of milk, scalded, and one-fourth teaspoon of salt. Meanwhile, cook together in a shallow pan one cup of brown sugar and three tablespoons of butter until it gets a very dark brown, but not burned. Add to this the rice and milk, one teaspoon of vanilla, and finish cooking until the rice is tender and the caramel melted. Soak two tablespoons of gelatin in one-half cup of cold water until softened, then dissolve it in one cup of hot milk. Strain into the cooked rice mixture and turn into a cold wet mold. Serve with whipped cream.

ADELAIDE B. LEACH
170 E. Coffey street, Uniontown.
STRAWBERRY SCHAUM TORTE

Six egg whites.
Two cups granulated sugar.
One tablespoon vinegar.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One quart strawberries.
One-half pint whipping cream.

Beat egg whites to a broth. Add sugar gradually, beating constantly. When mixture is stiff enough to hold its shape fold in vinegar and vanilla. Pour into a greased casserole, not too deep, and bake 45 minutes to one hour in a slow oven 225 degrees F. Let stand until cold and fill the center, which splits and forms a hollow, with sweetened strawberries and top with whipped cream, which has been sweetened with powdered sugar and a little vanilla added as flavoring. If baked in two layers put crushed strawberries between the layers and whole berries with whipped cream on top.

ELLA SCHNECK,
265 Brookside avenue, Washington.
LUNCHEON CANAPE

Soften one teaspoon of gelatin in a little cold milk and dissolve over hot water. Add to one-half cup of boiled salad dressing. Now add one tablespoon each of finely chopped chives or onion, and green pepper. Mold in tiny cups. Toast thin slices of bread, cut in fancy shapes, spread with melted butter and place on this a thin slice of tomato. Unmold gelatin mixture, cut in thin slices and top the tomato. Place tiny red pimento stars in the center of each.

MRS. J. M. MOSS,
Cathedral Mansions.
FISH PIE (For Main Course).

One can tuna fish.
2 tablespoons chopped onion.
One pint milk.
Two tablespoons flour.
Three eggs.
Four or five medium sized potatoes (cook and mash).
Lump butter.
Salt and pepper to taste.
Dash of worcestershire sauce.
Grated cheese (one-half cup).

Put fish in deep dish with dots of butter and onion fried in butter. Make a cream sauce with the milk and flour; add the eggs which have been hard cooked. Then over this place a layer of mashed potatoes and over all sprinkle cheese. Bake in hot over until brown.

MISS PAULINE H. KUHLMAN,
1107 Haslage avenue.
CHERRY FLUFF

Two packages cherry flavored gelatin.
Two cups hot water.
Two cups crushed pineapple and juice.
One cup cherries, chopped.
One-half pound graham crackers.
Two egg whites.
One cup sugar.
Two cups cream, whipped.

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Cool and add fruit. Set in refrigerator until mixture begins to thicken. Then beat well and fold in the egg whites which have been beaten stiff with the cream. Butter a large mold and spread with graham cracker crumbs. Pour in mixture and sprinkle top generously with more crumbs. Let stand over night in refrigerator.

Youth Hurt in Row Over Insult to Girl

PIRATE HURLERS IMPERIL TEAM'S FLAG CHANCES

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Best Against Good Clubs.
Hanlon Fights for Life.
Kress May Find Stride.
Turf Test at Latonia.
McLarnin Near Weight.

Any average club, after dropping three games of the first four on a trip, and to the weakest two opponents to be encountered on the journey, would appear to have little chance of escaping a continuance of the disaster while facing stronger foeman later in its travels. But the Pirates are different. A chronic weakness of the Bucs is to lose their spirit and play their poorest ball against the less formidable teams, but almost invariably they are found in top stride again when they go against the more powerful outfits.

Jimmy Wilson

So in spite of the poor beginning, in which the Rovers have lost a series for the first time this season, have been defeated twice in succession for the first time in their last 18 games, have suffered their first Sunday reverse of the year, and have been walloped by Jimmy Wilson's Phils by the largest score of 1934 in the National League, the outlook for the remainder of the cruise is not as drab as it would be in the case of many another club in the same situation. If the Gibsons live up to form, they may be expected to play like a different team against the Braves, Giants and Cubs before returning to the home lot.

OLD FIGHTING SPIRIT KEEPS HANLON ALIVE

The old fighting spirit which carried him and his teams to the pinnacle of baseball fame in years gone by today is keeping alive Foxy Ned Hanlon. Critically ill in Union Memorial Hospital at Baltimore, Hanlon, now 76, lives with his memories. They say he is in the hospital for a rest cure; that he is a little bit tired and needs to be kept quiet. But it's a Ned Hanlon with a mind and a spirit very much active; a Ned Hanlon, the Fox, fighting against a heart ailment that almost proved fatal.

The man who once starred as a player and manager for Pittsburgh, who later put together the famous Orioles to win three pennants in a row for Baltimore and then went on to capture two more flags for Brooklyn, still takes a keen interest in baseball and adheres to the opinion that the old-timers were a harder playing lot than the moderns. Among all the great baseball figures he has seen come and go, Hanlon likes to recall and talk about the late John McGraw more than any other. He says the game lost an aggressive figure, a great ball player and a great manager when McGraw died, a man who was always a hard worker and a fighter from the beginning. Even when asked to name the greatest player he ever saw, Hanlon keeps the late "Little Napoleon" uppermost in his mind. "Well," is his answer, "I think John McGraw was a great ball player—perhaps not the best, but a smart boy, and willing, too."

SHIFT MAY MEAN COMEBACK BY KRESS

Many a slumping ball player has returned to form with a change of environment. Carl Reynolds was a notable example this year, and now there is a possibility that Ralph Kress will be another. Kress failed to benefit by a switch from the Browns to the White Sox, but his latest shift from the Pale Hose to the Senators in the recent trade for Bob Boken may bring better results. There will be no question that Joe Cronin made a helpful deal for his club if he can lift his new infielder to anything like the latter's original standards.

Ralph Kress

Kress looked like the money when he started the 1928 season as the regular shortstop of the Browns. He could field, throw, run and hit. In 1929-30-31 he batted above .300. Then, for some unknown reason, Kress came to a full stop. An all-around slump led to his being traded to the White Sox for Bump Hadley and Bruce Campbell, but he continued to go down hill, and a drop to a batting average of .275 in 1932 was followed by a further slide last year to a mark of only .248.

LATONIA DERBY AMONG REAL TURF TESTS

It's all well enough to rave about a horse which has won the Kentucky Derby or the Preakness, but one race does not make a champion. There are further tests to be withstood successfully before any of the early standouts can be called the 3-year-old king of 1934, and in the opinion of many turfmen one of the hardest is the Latonia Derby. That stake exacts a higher degree of racing qualities than any of the events so far decided, as it is over the longer distance of a mile and a half. The Kentucky Derby is at a mile and a quarter, the Preakness at a mile and three-sixteenths, and the Wood Memorial at a mile and 70 yards.

The management of the Latonia Racing Association offered an extra prize of $5,000 to the Kentucky Derby winner if the latter could also win the Latonia feature, but only infrequently did one horse win both races. Such great ones as Leonatus, Kingman, Halma and Ben Brush did it, but they were exceptions, not the rule. The famous Exterminator took the Kentucky Derby, but ran second to Johren at Latonia. George Smith was a victor at Churchill Downs, but was defeated by Dodge at the longer distance. On the other hand, Ornament and Gowell were defeated in the Kentucky Derby, but won the Latonia fixture because it took the route of a mile and a half to bring out their superior qualities.

REDUCING MAY NOT TROUBLE M'LARNIN

It looks now as though Jimmy McLarnin will not be affected to anything like the extent originally expected in making a low weight for his welterweight championship battle with Barney Ross one week from tonight. Though officially the match is at 147 pounds, the welterweight limit, at 2 p. m., the fighters agreed privately, and backed it up with a heavy forfeit, to weigh in at 145 pounds at noon on the day of the bout, thus necessitating two weighings. Many boxing men figured that McLarnin might be weakened in taking off those extra two pounds to do 145 a couple of hours before the usual scaling time, but it develops that Jimmy already is within such easy reach of the weight that he will have no trouble in making the fixed poundage.

Jimmy McLarnin

McLarnin says he weighed only 145¼ pounds when he took the title from Young Corbett a year ago. Jimmy was down to 147 at at the end of last week, so that instead of there being any difficulty for him in reducing to 145, it would appear that his main problem will be to guage his training work carefully so as to avoid going too low.

QUIMET BOWS IN BRITISH AMATEUR

PAR AT PRESTWICK

Par out	435	434	444	—35
In	435	444	444	—36—71

Length—6,531 yards.

PRESTWICK, Scotland, May 21.—(AP.)—Four of the first seven Americans to play in the British amateur golf championship today won their initial matches in a round featured by the thrilling uphill victory of George T. Dunlap, Jr., United States amateur titleholder, in a 22-hole match.

Dunlap, a British semi-finalist last year, was dormie 5 to G. P. Packenham Walsh, former champion of India, when he staged a remarkable rally with sub-par golf. The slender American captured five holes in a row to square the match on the eighteenth, halved the first three extra holes in par and won on the twenty-second, with a par 4, as Walsh faltered.

WESTLAND WINNER

Other victories were scored by Jack Westland, of Chicago, who was carried three extra holes before vanquishing Robert Harris, a former British champion, 1 up at the twenty-first; Jesse Guilford, of Boston, by 2 and 1, over R. A. Howell, of Willingdon; Johnny Fischer, of Cincinnati, 4 and 3, over K. Graham Patrick, of Stirling, and Gus Moreland, the Texas star, who took the measure of his Walker Cup captain, Francis Ouimet, of Boston, 1 up, 18 holes.

Ouimet's game collapsed after an outgoing 33, which put him 3 up on Moreland. The Texan steadily cut down the veteran Bostonian's margin, squared the match on the thirteenth and finally settled the issue on the eighteenth.

VETERANS ELIMINATED

The two oldsters of the American Walker cup team, Max Marston, of Philadelphia, and H. Chandler Egan, of Del Monte, Cal., were eliminated. Marston fell before D. H. R. Marrin, of Knole Park, 3 and 1, and Egan lost to J. Wallace, of Troon, 3 and 2.

A. W. Brewault, of Detroit, defeated S. Hamilton Gibbs, of Scotland, 5 and 4 while Patrick Valentine, of New York, won by default from Sidney J. Chesterton, of Surrey.

R. C. Van Arsdale, of Boston, became the fourth American casualty, the Bostonian losing to A. J. Peech, of Worplesdon, 4 and 2.

Douglas Grant, a former Californian but now living in London, vanquished W. W. Sharp, of Dunbar, 4 and 3.

W. Lawson Little, chunky Californian, moved up to the second round at the expense of R. W. Ripley, of Banstead Downs. Little, who was 1 up at the ninth, defeated his British rival 3 and 1.

The Hon. Michael Scott, defending champion, announced at the last minute that he would not compete. He gave no reason for the decision.

J. Wallace, Britain, defeated H. Chandler Egann, U. S. A., 3 and 2.

Jack Westland, U. S. A., defeated Robert Harris, Britain, 1 up (21 holes).

D. H. R. Martin, Britain, defeated Max Marston, U. S. A., 3 and 1.

A. W. Bresult, U. S. A., defeated S. Hamilton Gibbs, Britain, 5 and 4.

P. A. Valentine, U. S. A., won from S. J. Chesterton, Britain, by default.

A. J. Peech, Britain, defeated R. C. Van Arsdale, U. S. A., 3 and 2.

JOHNNIES HIT HOT STRIDE IN MID-ATLANTIC

Lame and erratic in the opening clashes, the Johnnies promptly fell into the league cellar and remained there. Then they opened on their home lot a week ago and today finds them in third place and going strong. Dayton is the latest victim, walloped 7 to 4 yesterday.

Meanwhile Huntington, which had the managers all talking by taking six straight games, toppled out of first place due to unfriendly acts of Beckley, a southern West Virginia neighbor. The Black Knights brought down the Red Birds, 6 to 3, yesterday and beat them the day previous. That puts Beckley on top.

Charleston and Zanesville put on a Sabbath battle royal and the West Virginians with 11 hits defeated the Grays, 9 to 8, although the Ohioans rapped out 12 safe cracks.

Wheeling defeated Springfield, 6 to 4, despite a homer by Madura, Springfield's second baseman.

In the Pennsylvania State Association, Washington defeated McKeesport, at McKeesport, 13 to 12, in a free hitting game; Greensburg made it three in a row by beating Jeannette, 9 to 5, and Monessen outhit Charleroi to win, 9 to 5, at Monessen.

WOMEN GOLF STARS CLASH

By TOM BIRKS

The official opening of the women's golf season at the Oakmont Country Club, the Caddie Masters' second tournament of the season at the Highland Country Club, and the semi-annual golf tourney by the Western Pennsylvania Odontological Dental Society at the South Hills Country Club feature today's golf card.

Tonight, at the Fort Pitt Hotel, local Public Links Commissioner J. D. O'Neil holds another meeting of the various committees named to run the National Public Links tourney scheduled here in August.

The dentists of Western Pennsylvania are battling at South Hills today. While the men are out trying to equal elusive par, the women will be sitting around the bridge tables.

The Caddie Masters and Assistant Professionals' Association holds its second tourney of the season today.

Tomorrow the Women's Golf Association team matches will be resumed. Section I goes to Butler, Section II plays at Westmoreland and Section III is scheduled for Youghiogheny.

Results of club events staged on local courses yesterday follow:

Fourteen Qualify For Auto Classic

INDIANAPOLIS, May 21.—(AP.)—Fourteen pilots, their tiny speedsters qualified to start in the annual 500-mile automobile classic at the Motor Speedway, turned today to further testing and tuning of motors for the long grind May 30.

Nine of them Saturday and five more yesterday wheeled their cars successfully through the trial requirements, 10 laps at 100 or more miles an hour consuming not more than three gallons of gasoline. No further trials will be held until Thursday.

France and Switzerland scored clean sweeps in their Davis Cup duels yesterday. France won all five matches from Austria at Paris, while Switzerland blanked India at Lucerne, 5 to 0.

Ellsworth Vines advanced to the third round of the eastern professional tennis tournament yesterday when he vanquished Perry Rockafellow, of Bayhead, N. J., 6-2, 11-9. Bill Tilden and Keith Gledhill also scored triumphs.

Sidney B. Wood, Jr., United States Davis Cup star, is practicing with his chest taped as the result of an automobile accident at Tuxedo, N. Y. An X-ray will be taken to determine whether or not a rib has been fractured.

STEIN PIN CHAMP

ST. LOUIS, May 21.—Winning the final block by a single pin and totaling 16,387 pins for his 80 games, Otto Stein, Jr., of St. Louis, last night defeated Joe Miller, of Buffalo, by 237 pins to wrest the national match game bowling title from his rival. Stein's average game was a fraction better than 200 pins.

PHILADELPHIA, May 21.—Philly fans of the turnstile stripe are as scarce as hen's teeth since Chuck Klein, Pinkey Whitney and Virgil Davis were kicked upstairs, but the few who are left were convinced today that the Pirates have a five-and-ten pitching staff, in view of the happenings at the Baker Bowl yesterday.

The advance sheets handed out on the Pittsburgh entry during the spring training month predicted that the Buccaneer pitching staff might go haywire in the championship race, and the worst seems to have come to pass in this connection.

To be a successful pitcher in the ramshackle home of the Phillies one has to be a combination Matty-Alexander-Grove, so that when the mediocre flingers with the Pirates started to do their stuff in the debacle of yesterday the slab art reached a new low for the season. Only 5,000 fans turned out to see the Sunday spectacle.

BUCS TAKE LACING

The worst beating sustained by any Pirate team in many a long day saw the Quakers making a total of 23 hits off four Pittsburgh pitchers to ring up a 16-to-4 success. Once again Dick Bartell rose in his wrath against his former mates. Daredevil Dick's four safeties were surpassed only by one athlete, his teammate, Don Hurst, nicking the pushover pitching for five blows.

Pittsburgh baseball lovers may be having flag dreams, but the fans of the Quaker City will not be surprised if the dream turns into a bad nightmare before the August stretch is upon the various athletes. The awful exhibition of pitching served by the Pirate hurlers made the whole club look like a second-division entry. The wise men of the sport consider the joke fences here and they make due allowances for same, still they figure the Pittsburgh pitchers as an ineffective lot on their first showing of the season in the Baker Bowl.

The one-sided setback sustained by the Pirates in their inaugural here gave them an unenviable card for the eastern jaunt to date. Gibson's club has won only one of the four battles staged in Brooklyn and here.

PHILS WIN EARLY

The Phillies sewed up yesterday's frolic early by making five tallies in the first two rounds. Hal Smith was the victim of this cannonading which consisted of seven hits. Bill Harris was the next victim of the Wilson Clan, Bill being touched for four runs and four hits in three rounds.

Leon Chagnon, who had been flashing rare form in the relief role, was given the worst beating of the Pirate foursome in the opener. Leon pitched only one round, yet he was solved for seven hits and five runs. Bill Swift reached the scene in time to twirl two rounds and he, too, was bumped, the home boys making five more hits and two more runs as Bill operated.

SWEET PAPA RACE VICTOR

Sweet Papa, to the loft of Joe Clarkson, of the Southern Combine, turned in the best time average in the race from Xenia, O., yesterday. Memory, flying to the loft of H. Ruben, was second.

Boussus Defeats Perry on Court

PARIS, May 21.—(AP.)—Christian Boussus, leading French Davis Cup player, today defeated Fred Perry, ace of the defending English team, 6-4, 2-6, 7-5, in a Franco-English team series played as a prelude to the French championship opening Friday.

H. W. (Bunny) Austin, Perry's English partner, easily defeated Andre Merlin, France's other Davis Cup single player, 6-1, 7-5. Other results:

C. E. Malfroy, England, defeated Pierre Landry, France, 3-6, 6-4, 6-1.

G. P. Sharpe, England, defeated Marcel Bernard, France, 7-5, 6-3.

Antoine Gentien, France, defeated H. V. N. Cooper, England, 7-5, 4-6, 6-4.

35,000 SEE GAME

NEW YORK, May 21.—(INS.)—New York is going strong for Gaelic football. Thirty-five thousand fans turned out at Yankee Stadium yesterday for the first game of the international series between an all-New York selected fifteen and the invading Cavan team, the Irish champions. New York came from behind to earn a 10-to-10 tie.

CARDINALS' SPURT PUTS TEAM ON HEELS OF CHICAGO CUBS

DEAN BROTHERS FEATURE PLAY OF CLUB

Associated Press.

The St. Louis Cardinals, perched proudly in second place in the National League standing, can look back on a fine stroke of business, signing of the Dean boys from Bradenton, Fla., for pitching duty.

In the course of the Card's winning streak which has brought 16 victories out of 20 games and carried them from a seventh-place tie to a spot only a single grme behind the pace-setting Chicago Cubs, Dizzy and Paul Dean have accounted for seven victories between them without a single loss.

DIZZY VICTOR

It was Big Brother Jerome Herman, known as the Dizzy one, who helped the Cards win a 9-to-5 victory over New York yesterday. Up to the ninth inning he allowed only four hits and three runs, accounted for by an error and Mel Ott's eighth homer of the season.

The Pirates took the worst kind of punishment as they dropped to third place under the Phillies' 23-hit assault that piled up a 16-to-4 score. Chicago's Cubs, still on top, saw their lead dwindle when Van Lingle Mungo, of Brooklyn, came back after only two days of rest and limited them to six hits while his battery mate, Al Lopez, led the Dodgers to a 5-to-1 triumph.

The cellar-dwelling Cincinnati Reds put up a great scrap to escape their twenty-first defeat of the season, but finally yielded to Boston, 1 to 0, in the tenth inning of a hurling duel between Ben Cantwell and Silas Johnson. Buck Jordan's triple did the damage.

Only the first, fourth and last places in the American League standing remained in the same hands after a day of keen battling among the closely bunched teams. The Cleveland Indians moved into second place by blasting an 8-to-5 victory over the league-leading Yankees with an early attack on Danny MacFayden.

TIGERS BEATEN

Detroit took the corresponding drop when Bob Burke came through with a six-hit hurling performance against the Tigers and Washington used five doubles off Schoolboy Rowe to gain a 4-1 triumph. The Senators failed by two percentage points to move up from fourth.

St. Louis and Boston moved up a notch apiece by trimming Philadelphia and Chicago respectively, and the defeated A's went down two places to seventh. Three runs in the eighth off Johnny Carum, third Philadelphia pitcher, gave the Browns a 10-to-7 decision. The Red Sox had to overcome a long Chicago lead after Zeke Bonura hit his ninth and tenth home runs of the season, but won, 6 to 5, when Eddie Morgan hit for the circuit with two aboard in the seventh.

American-Owned Horse Wins Abroad

HURST PARK, England, May 21.—(AP.)—William Woodward's Alcazar today won the Penrhyn Cup handicap for 3-year-olds at one mile from E. Esmond's Necker and 15 others.

The American-owned racer was 100-to-7 in the betting and earned the big end of a £1,250 purse.

P. T. A. LEAGUE ON EDGE FOR TITLE RACE

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The district tennis campaign for 1934 gets under way in earnest the coming week-end with start of annual hostilities in all three divisions of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association Inter-Club League on Saturday and an exhibition affair involving players of the champion P. A. A. outfit at Greensburg on Sunday.

Thereafter there will be an almost daily dish of either team or tournament competition here or hereabouts until autumn crowds the pastime off the program.

Realignment of the sections in the P. T. A. loop presages hotter action than ever, especially in Division I, wherein University Club, Belmont Racquet Club, Rockwood, and two crack outfits from Stanton Heights will strive to disengage the clutch of Dr. Dave O'Loughlin's P. A. A. aspirants upon the Davis Keg, which the Winged Headers have held the past two seasons.

TEAMS STRENGTHENED

The loss of Edgewood, archrival of the champions, from the top loop has had the effect of strengthening, rather than weakening, the general setup, for the powerful Suburbanites have scattered among University Club, Belmont, and Stanton Heights and have assured three formidable arrays where but one had previously existed.

Belmont, and right now let it be said that this aggregation looks at least as tough as any of the quintet of squads, really is built around an Edgewood nucleus: Frank Broida, Western Maryland premier; Eddie Alcorn, 1932 Pitt net leader, and John Brown, veteran Connellsville star, whose prowess is known on the Pacific Coast as well as in the Tri-state area. Add to this trio the clever young ex-Shannopinders, Capt. Bob Lampus, Bud Leyda and Irvin Goodman, and the brilliant Penn State products, Paul Barber and John Metzner, and you have a talented and well balanced troupe, indeed.

SMITH AT HEIGHTS

The Stanton Heights No. 1 contingent is certain to include Frank Smith, perennial Edgewood boss, and his erstwhile Suburbanite mate, Stan McCaskey, of Bucknell, and may also list in its line-up McCook Reed, another former Edgewoodman. Wally Arensburg, whose efforts to date have always been exerted in behalf of P. A. A., may likewise be found among the Stantonians.

Rockwood, too, should flash the improvement that a youthful combination can be expected to display from year to year and, though the Lebanon lads may lack the punch at the head of the list requisite for succesfully combating their more experienced rivals, such a sextet as that comprised of the younger Dixon, Henry Ackerman, Ralph Bald, Elmer Artzberger, Bob Grier and Tommy Thompson can make the traveling very precarious for the best of them.

P. A. A. POWERFUL

P. A. A., of course, will rely again for heavy artillery on the O'Loughlins, Dr. Dave, Dr. John, and Billy, Jack Redmond, Peabody southpaw; Art Glaser, once a Carnegie Tech mainstay; Don Snyder, giant Greensburger, and the writer will probably complete the squadron.

Meanwhile of Divisions II and III little is predictable, save that the races will be close.

The playoffs in the interscholastic tennis conference have been set back from tomorrow and Thursday to Thursday and Monday of next week, it has been announced.

Honus Says:

By HONUS WAGNER
Former Star, Now Coach of Pirates

To the Sports Editor:

"Why don't you knock people?" somebody asked me, referring to these little pieces. I guess I must have looked sorta doubtful about what he was talking about because he said, "Oh, you got to knock people to make them talk about you." I said, "Should I knock them even if I don't see any reason for knocking anybody?" "Sure," he said, "knock 'em anyway. That's what makes people talk." Now, imagine that! Here I am, a young fellow trying to make good in the world and I get advice like that. But I haven't knocked anybody yet, and I reckon I'm too young to start anything like that. The only knocking I've done is to knock on wood three times, and I admit I've done plenty of that.

CITY LEAGUE FOES CLASH IN GAMES

Two games are scheduled in the City League this evening, Dormont appearing at Books' and Parmelee traveling to Mt. Oliver. Both games offer plenty of excitement. There is considerable rivalry between Books and Dormont; in fact, it is these clubs that usually fight it out for the league title. The first game, at Dormont, found the Fuchs aggregation winning. Books expect to reverse the score.

Mt. Oliver, with a large following and a pretty good club, will face a test in Parmelee. Manager Dinty Moore has gathered together a strong club. It is one of the most colorful teams in the circuit.

At Greenlee Field the Crawfords and the Philadelphia Stars meet in the fourth game of their series.

Another good attraction this evening finds the Cleveland Red Sox, of the Negro National League, opposing Bellevue, of the North Side Twilight League, at Kendall Field. Johnny Casey, the sensational Bellevue youngster, who has signed for the Charleroi Club in the Pennsylvania State League, will pitch for the North Boro club, with Cavanaugh behind the bat. These games are called at 6:30 sharp. The Homestead Grays play the New Kensington Elks at New Kensington. The Grays defeated Clearfield yesterday, 6 to 2.

In the City League yesterday, the Books defeated Parmelee, 14 to 4, and Mt. Oliver toppled the J. J. Vaughans, 4 to 2.

Sun-Telegraph Tourney Only Sanctioned Event

SOFTBALL ENTRY BLANK

Amateur Softball Tournament Editor,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph:

Please enter my team in your Western Pennsylvania Amateur Softball Tournament.

..... (Team) ..... (Manager).

..... (Address) ..... (Section of City).

(Upon receipt of entry, cards to be filled in with additional information will be sent to managers.)

By PHILIP GRABOWSKI
Softball Tournament Editor

Softball teams in Western Pennsylvania are advised that the tournament being sponsored by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph is the only event in this district sanctioned by the Amateur Softball Association of America. No other tournament can obtain such sanction. The Amateur Softball Association is affiliated with the Amateur Athletic Union.

Incidentally, no team competing in any unsanctioned tournament will be permitted to engage in the Sun-Telegraph event, as all players must be registered and sanctioned. All leagues desiring to play under the protection and sanction of the Amateur Softball Association of America must apply for such sanction. Application blanks are ready now and may be obtained from Harry Keck, sports editor of the Sun-Telegraph, who is the Western Pennsylvania Commissioner of the Amateur Softball Association of America. Such sanction costs $5 per eight-team league, whether or not the individual teams compete in the tournament.

PRINTED FORMS READY

The cost of entering a team in the only sanctioned amateur tournament is $1 per team plus 10 cents per player, in return for which the teams will be assured of competent management of their games under a copyrighted system of play, and will receive official insignia buttons and trophies.

All printed forms for the tournament are ready and will be mailed to the entrants this week. The setup is complete for the staging of a tournament which gives every assurance of paving the way for making this sport the most popular of all for players of all ages and both sexes in the years to come.

Many additional entries have been received over the week-end, among them those of the F. J. Broads, of New Kensington, Ell Crummie, manager; the A. D. S., of East Liberty, Oliver Kenny, manager, and the Bureau of Traffic Planning, of Pittsburgh, C. S. Cunningham, manager.

Clip your entry blank now and enter the real amateur tournament. Be a sanctioned amateur player, with the full protection and guidance of the Amateur Softball Association of America.

COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY OF GREATER PITTSBURGH

EMPLOYE GAIN TOPS GROWTH IN POPULATION

The number of employes drawing salaries from the federal, state and local governments increased more than 19 per cent from 1922 to 1932, according to a report made public by the National Industrial Conference Board. In 1922 there were 2,618,000 persons working for the federal, state and local governments and by 1932 this figure had increased to 3,122,000, the report states.

And while the number of governmental employes was increasing by more than a half million, the total population of the country increased but 13.6 per cent during the same period. The percentage increase in governmental employes was about one and a half times as great as the increase in population.

In 1932 employes of the federal government numbered 952,419, or 30.5 per cent of the total. This number includes the 274,852 persons belonging to the Army, Navy and Marine Corps. The postal service gave employment to 369,866 persons or 38.8 per cent of all federal employes and civil service employes totaled 307,701 or 32.3 per cent of the number of federal workers.

In 1932 the state governments employed 251,813 persons; the county governments 136,996 persons and the city governments 591,505, excluding education. The number of school teachers and other city employes classified under public education was 1,189,168.

REICH MAKES OWN FIBER

By JOSEPH BARBER, JR.
Universal Service Special Wireless

BERLIN, May 21.—Further evidence of Germany's attempts to refuse wool imports was seen today in the announcement of Kammgarnspineri Stoehr and Company, of Leipzig, one of Germany's largest wool spinning concerns, that an artificial spinning fiber had been perfected.

The company claimed the fiber can be made entirely from domestic raw materials. Close secrecy was maintained regarding the manufacturing process.

Following the recent announcement of perfection of an artificial cotton fiber made entirely from German raw materials, today's announcement was regarded as added proof that the reich is out to free the German textile industry from dependence on goods produced in other nations.

World Industrial Production Gains

NEW YORK, May 21.—World industrial production continued to increase in the first quarter of this year, according to the monthly statement on economic conditions in foreign countries, made public by the National Industrial Conference Board. In Great Britain industrial production was higher than in any year since the World War boom, said the survey.

Westinghouse Gets Escalator Orders

Marshall Field is installing Westinghouse escalators in its main retail store at Chicago at a cost of over $500,000.

SPRAY SOLVES PROBLEM

One of the greatest advances made in the paint industry has been the advent of the spray gun. It makes possible the use of lacquers, fast drying varnishes and materials that could not be applied by a brush, as well as greatly speeding up application of paint materials not only for use in buildings, but particularly in manufacturers production lines and all sorts of articles from hairpins to automobiles.

Paint to spray properly must be designed for that purpose and the modern paint laboratory in the development of new spray finishes for production work must use the gun continuously to determine the way a material developed for certain purposes will actually act in it.

Thompson Company, paint manufacturers at Oakmont, Pa., maintain a complete spray booth and all types of guns and accessory apparatus for the spraying of different materials. The long cylinder on the right edge of the booth is an air cleanser to remove all possible traces of moisture and water from the compressed air entering the gun. The presence of the slightest amount of moisture or oil in the air used in the gun is immediately noticeable in the appearance of the sprayed film of paint. The chemist in the photograph is testing out, for its action in the spray gun, a material that he has just developed from an industrial process.

Store-Door Pickup Aids Pennsylvania

NEW YORK, May 21.—Introduction of collection and delivery service for less than carload freight on the Pennsylvania Railroad last December has brought the road more than $400,000 in new business and resulted in operating economies, according to W. W. Atterbury, president.

Southern Pacific Merger Approved

WASHINGTON, May 21.—The Interstate Commerce Commission has issued a formal order authorizing the Southern Pacific Company to consolidate its Texas and New Orleans lines under the Texas and New Orleans Railroad.

WESTINGHOUSE SHOWS GAIN IN SALES

Commenting on the steady improvement in the electrical home appliance business, at the concluding meeting of the Westinghouse Agent Jobbers Association held in Mansfield, Ohio, Chairman A. W. Robertson said:

"This is a year for serious and intensive work. The present is very good and we are off, this year, to a real flying start."

At this five-day meeting of representatives, from every part of the United States, Arthur E. Allen, Westinghouse vice president in charge of merchandising, called attention to the improved trend of his company's business. He said:

"Orders received during the first quarter of 1934 showed a 57 per cent increase over the same period for 1933. Bookings and sales billed in the last two months have been the highest in several years.

"In our merchandising lines, which go into the home, the improvement has been even more impressive. Refrigerator sales have increased every month during 1934 until in April we showed a 158 per cent increase over April, 1933, and the entire four-month period showed an 80 per cent increase over the first four months of 1933. The increase in range sales for this same period has been more than 300 per cent; commercial refrigeration, 242 per cent; water heaters, 252 per cent; vacuum cleaners, 228 per cent; heating appliances, 81 per cent; washing machines, 255 per cent; food mixers, 351 per cent and fans, 20 per cent greater dealer coverage than last year."

This year's meeting of Westinghouse agent jobbers was the first held in Mansfield, O., headquarters of the merchandising division of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company in the 20 years the association has been in existence. It gave the jobbers an opportunity to see at first hand and study the new appliances and their method of manufacture.

Soap Prices Higher, Hint Further Rise

CINCINNATI, May 21.—Effective immediately, Procter & Gamble Co. has advanced prices an average of 5 per cent on all soap products. It was said another price advance is likely unless the present excise tax on cocoanut oil and other oils used in soap manufacture is not repealed soon.

STOCK MARKET MAY RALLY FURTHER

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, May 21.—While too much depends upon "news" from Washington to allow one to undertake a market forecast with any confidence, some of the more reasonable possibilities are as follows:

There is, however, the possibility of mere irregularity without much change. It is even possible that a "secondary" reaction may occur. In the latter case, it would not seem likely to amount to much nor break the recent lows.

Unless the President's silver message leans back strongly in the direction of conservatism and sound money, I would expect a further rise of two or three points before serious resistance and a secondary reaction.

Thus my attitude may be described as leaning moderately to the bullish side, subject to the unfavorable uncertainties of politics.

My reasons are partly technical, and partly broader and more general. As to the "market action," I note the following points:

The volume of trading has fallen to very low levels, after a considerable decline accompanied by some evidence of climax selling. It has declined during the slight weakness of Friday and Saturday.

MARKET STABILIZED

The market has held and stabilized at almost exactly the logical resistance which I considered likely.

The issues in which there was a possibility of technical weakness held well on Saturday. The old "leaders" showed relative strength.

More broadly considered, one may say that the averages are now only at about the general level of the past year, and the question arises, why should they now sell lower than that? To be sure, the drought and abnormal weather conditions constitute a new unfavorable factor affecting some stocks, but the backbone of this New Deal bull market has been inflation, and the drought is not going to weaken that. Rather the contrary.

POSTPONES RETURN

Certainly the move toward silver greatly increases the day when we can hope for a return to a definite standard of value. The whole scheme centers in the idea of paying more for silver than it is worth, in order to cheapen our money.

But as business recedes the urge to "do something" increases, and as government spending and debt grow, the temptation to debase the money grows too. So inflation is still in the picture.

At the same time, we find the new dealers not quite so cocksure about their NRA and other "policies" of regimentation. The President himself shows more hesitation.

The new dealers have run up against three natural phenomena which jolt their idealistic schemes. One is the draught sent by nature. Another is the blight of monopolistic greed shown under many "codes." Still another is the dust storm of organized labor's demands. The last two come from "human nature." Despite all their efforts they see that "the flag is still there"—the flag of American common sense and individual initiative. And they see the fall elections ahead.

My point is that before summer ends, the Washington kaleidoscope may show a combination of (1) inflation and (2) soft pedaling business baiting, which would be quite bullish marketwise.

Ickes Sees Oil Famine in 20 Years

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Secretary of the Interior Ickes appeared before the Senate committee today and urged adoption of his permanent oil bill. He contended that production methods are wasteful and that in from 10 to 20 years at the present rate United States oil resources will be depleted.

WORLD TRADE INCREASES

NEW YORK, May 21.—World industrial production continued to increase in the first quarter of this year, according to the monthly statement on economic conditions in foreign countries made public today by the National Industrial Conference Board. In Great Britain industrial production was higher than in any year since the World War boom. In Sweden the volume of production was larger than the average production in the good years, 1925-1929. In Germany and Canada, a sharp upturn from February to March brought industrial activity to the highest point since the recovery occurred. In Japan the rapid increase in production since the beginning of 1932 was stopped, but the volume remained near an all-time peak. In France the decline that occurred in the last part of 1933 was arrested. In the other gold standard countries—Switzerland, Belgium, the Netherlands, Italy and Poland—production was stagnant, although the volume of business was well above the low points of the depression.

Prices of internationally traded commodities moved uncertainly during the first quarter of this year. Cotton, rubber, tin, jute, wool and coffee moved upward. Copper, lead, hides, silk and rice declined. Increased consumption in the principal manufacturing countries points to higher prices. Uncertainty concerning the outcome of various measures for restriction of production is a disturbing factor.

Wholesale prices in most of the countries that have depreciated currencies continued to increase. In some gold-standard countries prices were stable; in some they moved upward; in others prices declined. During the past 14 months Switzerland has had the most stable price level.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

The most vicious little fighter Pittsburgh has developed in a long time makes a big bid for fame tonight when he goes to the post against Harry Dublinsky, of Chicago, a nationally famous lightweight. The youngster is Dominic Mancini, of the North Side, an Italian lad with championship aspirations.

Mancini is managed by Gus Camp, a former middleweight boxer, who has instilled the killer instinct in him to such a marked degree that Dominic fights with the reckless abandon of a Jack Dempsey and has developed a terrific punch with either fist. His best blow is a left hook to the body, but his last time out he dropped Jimmy Vaughan, of Cleveland, with a right to the jaw in the first round of a bout at Motor Square Garden. He has been specializing in knockdowns in his recent battles, and has made quite a reputation for himself along these lines in Louisville, where he engaged in a series of bouts and impressed the fans so much that the promoters sought to match him with Barney Ross, the lightweight champion, for the Derby Eve date.

HOLT IN SEMI-FINAL

Recently Dominic and his manager made a trip to New York seeking action. They tried to make a connection in Jimmy McLarnin's training camp and were turned down, whereupon they accepted the Dublinsky bout here as a short cut to fame. Dublinsky has a big edge on the youngster in the matter of experience, and Dominic will have to rely considerably upon his great fighting spirit in the battle.

Billy Holt, Negro middleweight, of Homewood, boxes Solly Dukelsky, of Chicago, stablemate of Dublinsky, in the eight-round semi-final, and James (Red) Mason, former dean of local boxing managers, who now resides in Chicago, and has a feud on with Camp, is here with the visitors.

Jack Dalcherone, Springdale middleweight, vs. Steve Levine, who boxed as Steve Levandowski in the amateur ranks; Al Farone, West End featherweight, vs. Ralph Gizzy, of Donora, and Ray Eberle, Aliquippa lightweight, vs. Teddy Movan, of McKeesport.

The show will get under way at 8:30 daylight saving time. It is the initial offering of the outdoor season here and marks the beginning of Hickey Park's fifth year as a boxing arena.

DOMINIC MANCINI

BETWEEN ROUNDS

The King Levinsky-Art Lasky bout at Los Angeles has been re-signed for June 12.

Houston, Tex., is angling for a middleweight title bout between Vince Dundee and Don LaRue for some time in July, which may menace Pittsburgh's chances of getting a Dundee-Ted Yarosz title match for the same month. Texas oil men are willing to back the venture, which is expected to draw upward of $40,000 with a $5 top. San Francisco also wants Dundee for a match with Young Corbett, former welterweight champion, who recently knocked out Young Terry.

Don Taylor, the Cleveland promoter, who is using Joey Speigal against Bucky Lawless there tomorrow night, wants to make a Speigal-Ted Yarosz match. Joey is a good attraction in Cleveland, where he has beaten Joey Glick and Andy DiVodi and knocked out Ray Collins. A match with Cleto Locatelli there also is being considered. In addition, Joey, who wants to fight Anson Green on the Mike Ray benefit card, is paired with Honey Boy Jones, Negro puncher, for a 10-round bout at Akron, O., June 14.

June 4 was set at a meeting yesterday for the benefit boxing show to be held at Hickey Park for the family of the late Mike Ray. Ted Yarosz will headline the bill in a 10-round bout.

Report to Bring NRA Critics Into Open

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor

THE REPORT of the National Recovery Review Board on the NRA, made by the vitriolic Clarence Darrow, promises to bring many quietly smouldering disputes into the open.

The Darrow report has been eagerly awaited for many weeks. It has been known that it might prove embarrassing to the administration. Consequently it is not surprising that an attack on Darrow by equally vitriolic Gen. Johnson as well as a refutation by Donald Richberg accompanied the release of the report to newspapers late last night.

Darrow's stand on the NRA was both eagerly acclaimed and bitterly denounced by business men as soon as its contents were made known. It is quite probable that a long series of disputes will follow the publication of the report which not only charges that the administration of the NRA has been conducted in such a manner that it increases monopoly but also attacks the fundamental theory of the entire New Deal program.

* * *

Opponents Will Come Into Open

THE NRA was launched at a period so trying that almost any criticism of it placed the objector in the position of a traitor. Now that it has been in operation for a year, however, there has been a change in attitude which makes most individuals more willing to weigh the advantages and disadvantages. There is more willingness to value its various aspects and to decide which parts of it have worked well and to determine whether some parts of it should be changed or abandoned.

The Darrow report appears likely to bring much of the undercover criticism of the New Deal into the open. Many who have been whispering in private about phases of the NRA which they thought were objectionable will speak more openly. In short, the New Deal appears due for a thorough public scrutiny. Just what effect this will have on its future cannot be foretold at this time.

* * *

Darrow Raises Basic Point

ONE SENTENCE in the Darrow report raises a fundamental point about the entire philosophy of the New Deal. The ultimate decision of the nation on this point will have much to do with our economic history of the future. Darrow takes the stand that it is futile to legislate or regulate fair competition. He declares:

"All competition is savage, wolfish and relentless; and can be nothing else. One may as well dream of making war ladylike as of making competition fair."

STOCKS PLOD IN TRENDLESS SESSION

NEW YORK, May 21.—(AP.)—Financial markets plodded along sleepily today with most traders and investors apparently lacking energy to make any decisive gesture toward either buying or selling.

Stocks were particularly inert. During the greater part of the session the volume of transactions was the smallest in several years. The ticker tape was silent for minutes at a time. Many of the board rooms were virtually deserted by customers.

Commodities were reasonably steady, although they were not sufficiently active to provide any stimulus for equities. Oats got up about a cent a bushel and wheat and corn improved after early hesitancy. Silver and rubber did beterr, but cotton lagged. Bonds showed no more enthusiasm than stocks. Foreign exchanges were narrow.

The mining shares were about the only ones that showed any life. Homestake got up around 10 points, United States Smelting gained nearly 3, and American Smelting, Howe Sound, Park Utah and Cerro de Pasco firmed fractionally to a point or more. Allied Chemical advanced a point or so, while moderately higher prices were recorded by American Telephone, Johns-Manville, Western Union, Loew's, Continental Can, Chrysler, National Distillers and Union Pacific. American Commercial Alcohol, Santa Fe, Case, National Biscuit and New York Central were somewhat lower. Many stocks were unchanged.

The flurry in the metals was attributed to the announcement that President Roosevelt would send his silver message to Congress tomorrow. Publication of the Darrow report seemingly did not have any appreciable effect upon speculative positions.

Wall street sentiment continued to fluctuate between hope and doubt with respect to the current business picture, on the doubtful side of the ledger were indications of receding steel output, the effects of the drought on farm purchasing power and contra-seasonal declines in freight car loadings due to some let-down in industrial activities.

On the other hand, business, as a whole, was believed to be holding fairly well under the circumstances; chain store sales have failed to record the sharp recession recently anticipated and the bond market has responded to the pressure of idle funds seeking even half-way profitable employment.

Most market observers, while considering prospects of further seasonal recessions, hold the view that any drastic setback in the recovery movement is not indicated by available data. The thought is expressed that, generally, there is no over-supply of goods and manufactured inventories and that production along more normal lines still lies ahead.

COTTON RULES QUIET, LOWER

NEW YORK, May 21.—Cotton futures opened quiet, unchanged to 1 lower with a featureless trade awaiting the President's silver message, may, *11.45; July, 11.49; October, 11.67; December, 11.78; January, 11.83; March, 11.93. *Asked.

There was some liquidation through commission houses and possibly a little selling on a favorable view of weather conditions over the week-end. These offerings were small, but with demand slow, prices sagged to 11.42 for July and 11.74 for December right after the call, making net losses of about 5 to 7 points.

There was sufficient buying on this setback to steady the market, however, and active months were holding within 3 or 4 points of yesterday's closing quotation at the end of the first half hour.

Prices sagged off during the middle of the morning under some July liquidation and scattered selling of later months which appeared to be coming partly from Wall street sources. July declined to 11.38 and December to 11.70 making net losses of about 9 to 11 points on active months.

Corporate Earnings

Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and affiliates report for the year 1933 net profit of $25,084,310 after all charges, equal to 97 cents a share, against $282,865, or 1 cent a share, in 1932.

Savannah Sugar Refining Corporation report for 1933 states earnings after reserves for depreciation, federal and state income taxes, bad debts and payment of preferred dividends, amounted to $9.02 a share on the common stock, which compares with $6.91 a common share in 1932.

Otis Steel Company report for the March quarter shows profit of $852,889, after interest, depreciation, amortization, etc., but before federal tax, comparing with net loss of $700,371 in the first quarter of 1933.

Mountain Producers Corporation including its subsidiary, the Wyoming Associated Oil Corporation, reports for 1933 profit of $1,155,790, after expenses, royalties, and provision for federal and state taxes, comparing with profit of $1,430,532 in 1932.

The Thin Man

By DASHIELL HAMMETT

Murdered Secretary Received $28,500 to Give Wynant, Detective Tells Nick

(Soon to appear on the screen at Loew's Penn Theater as a thrilling motion picture made by Cosmopolitan Production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.)

"So would I."

"That's a bargain then," he said. He hunched his chair around a little. "I don't guess you remember me, but back when you were working this town I was walking beat on Forty-third street."

"Of course," I said, lying politely. "I knew there was something familiar about—Being out of uniform makes a difference."

"I guess it does. I'd like to be able to take it as a fact that you're not holding out anything we don't already know."

"I don't mean to. I don't know what you know. I don't know very much. I haven't seen Macaulay since the murder and I haven't even been following it in the newspapers."

The telephone was ringing again. Nora gave us our drinks and went to answer it.

"What we know ain't much of a secret," Guild said, "and if you want to take the time to listen I don't mind giving it to you." He tasted his drink and nodded approvingly. "Only there's a thing I'd like to ask first. When you went to Mrs. Jorgensen's last night, did you tell her about getting the telegram from him?"

"Yes, and I told her I'd turned it over to you."

"What'd she say?"

"Nothing. She asked questions. She's trying to find him."

He put his head a little to one side and partly closed one eye. "You don't think there's any chance of them being in cahoots, do you?" He held up a hand. "Understand, I don't know why they would be or what it'd be all about if they were, but I'm just asking."

"Anything's possible," I said, "but I'd say it was pretty safe they aren't working together. Why?"

"I guess you're right." Then he added vaguely: "But there's a couple of points." He sighed. "There always is. Well, Mr. Charles, here's just about all we know for certain and if you can give us a little something more here and there as we go along I'll be mighty thankful to you."

Synopsis

Nick Charles, noted detective, who tells the story of "The Thin Man," and Nick's wife, Nora, meet Dorothy Wynant, daughter of a former client, in a speakeasy. Dorothy asks where her father is and Nick refers her to Herbert Macaulay, Wynant's attorney. Macaulay, calls on Nick and tells him Mimi, Wynant's divorced wife, is hunting him.

Next day Nick reads of the murder of Julia Wolf, Wynant's secretary. Mimi found the body when she went to get Wynant's address.

While a Mr. Norman is telephoning to Nick a loud report as of a shot is heard and his words end abruptly.

Dorothy appears at Nick's apartment and flashes a gun which she says she got in a speakeasy. She is drunk and Nora puts her to bed. Morelli, a gangster, is suspected in Julia's murder.

Nick is shot by Morelli. Police find Dorothy's automatic in Nick's apartment. Dorothy, beaten by Mimi, seeks shelter at Nick's, and tells new story about gun. Nick and Nora visit Jorgensens'.

Had to Leave Town

I said something about doing my best.

"Well, along about the third of last October Wynant tells Macaulay he's got to leave town for a while. He don't tell Macaulay where he's going or what for, but Macaulay gets the idea that he's off to work on some invention or other that he wants to keep quiet—and he gets it out of Julia Wolf later that he's right—and he guesses Wynant's gone off to hide somewhere in the Adirondacks, but when he asks her about that later she says she don't know any more about it than he does."

"She know what the invention was?"

Guild shook his head. "Not according to Macaulay, only that it was probably something that he needed room for and machinery or things that cost money, because that's what he was fixing up with Macaulay. He was fixing it so Macaulay could get hold of his stocks and bonds and other things he owned and turn 'em into money when he wanted it and take care of his thing just like Wyant himself."

"Exactly. And listen, when he wanted money, he wanted it in cash."

"He was always full of screwy notions," I said.

Didn't Take Chances

"That's what everybody says. The idea seems to be he don't want to take any chances on anybody tracing him through checks, or anybody up there knowing he's Wynant. That's why he didn't take the girl along with him—didn't even let her know where he was, if she was telling the truth—and let his whiskers grow." With his left hand he stroked an imaginary beard.

"'Up there,'" I quoted. "So he was in the Adirondacks?"

Guild moved one shoulder. "I just said that because that and Philadelphia are the only ideas anybody's give us. We're trying the mountains, but we don't know. Maybe Australia."

"And how much of this money in cash did Wynant want?"

"I can tell you that exactly." He took a wad of soiled bent and dog-eared papers out of his pocket, selected an envelope that was a shade dirtier than most of the others, and stuffed the others back in his pocket. "The day after he talked to Macaulay he drew five thousand out of the bank himself, in cash. On the 8th—this is October, you understand—he had Macaulay get another five for him, and twenty-five hundred on the 6th of November, and a thousand on the 15th, and seventy-five hundred on the 30th, and fifteen hundred on the 6th—that would be December—and a thousand on the 18th, and five thousand on the 22nd, which was the day before she was killed."

Got $28,500

"Nearly thirty thou," I said. "A nice bank balance he had."

"Twenty-eight thousand five hundred, to be exact." Guild returned the envelope to his pocket. "But you understand it wasn't all in there. After the first call Macaulay would sell something every time to raise the dough." He felt in his pocket again. "I got a list of the stuff he sold, if you want to see it."

I said I didn't. "How'd he turn the money over to Wynant?"

"And how'd she get it to Wynant?"

Guild shook his head. "She told Macaulay she used to meet him places he told her, but he thinks she knew where he was, though she always said she didn't."

'And maybe she still had that last five thousand on her when she was killed, huh?"

"Which might make it robbery, unless"—Guild's watery gray eyes were almost shut—"he killed her when he came there to get it."

"Or unless," I suggested, "somebody else who killed her for some other reason found the money there and thought they might as well take it along."

Bullet Smashed 'Phone

"Sure," he agreed. "Things like that happen all the time. It even happens sometimes that the first people that find a body like that pick up a little something before they turn in the alarm." He held up a big hand. "Of course, with Mrs. Jorgensen—a lady like that—I hope you don't think I'm—"

"Besides," I said, "she wasn't alone, was she?"

"For a little while. The phone in the apartment was out of whack, and the elevator boy rode the superintendent down to phone from the office. But get me right on this, I'm not saying Mrs. Jorgensen did anything funny. A lady like that wouldn't be likely—"

"What was the matter with the phone?" I asked.

The doorbell rang.

"Well," Guild said, "I don't know just what to make of it. The phone had—"

He broke off as a waiter came in and began to set a table.

"About the phone," Guild said when we were sitting at the table, "I don't know just what to make of it, as I said. It had a bullet right smack through the mouthpiece of it."

"Accidental or—?"

"I'd just as lief ask you. It was from the same gun as the four that hit her, of course, but whether he missed her with that one or did it on purpose I don't know. It seems like a kind of noisy way to put a phone on the bum."

"That reminds me," I said, "didn't anybody hear all this shooting. A .32's not a shotgun, but somebody ought to've heard it."

"Sure," he said disgustedly. "The place is lousy with people that think they heard things now, but nobody did anything about it then, and God knows they don't get together much on what they think they heard."

"It's always like that," I said sympathetically.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Don't forget that the outdoor life points the way to health and good looks. She who stays indoors too much loses vitality, gets a gray complexion and grouches.

Drink in fresh air, exercise daily, and the whole physical being is the better for it. The worst fatigue that a woman can endure comes from boredom and lack of outdoor fun. Life gets to be a treadmill, and that sort of thing is reflected in the expression of the eyes and mouth, the posture of the body. Out now, with you! Do a bit of hoofing.

WASHINGTON SWORN IN AS FIRST PRESIDENT OF U. S.

Pursuant to the provisions of the fundamental law of the United States, the Constitution, George Washington (1732-1799) was elected the first President of the United States and inaugurated April 30, 1789, in New York City. His two terms (1789-1797), though not free of adversities (rising of opposing political parties: Jeffersonians and Hamiltonians; Whisky Rebellion; Indian warfare) are memorable for the chartering of the United States Bank, establishing of the National Mint, the assumption of war debts by the national government, the admission of Vermont, Kentucky, Tennessee as states. Besides other strengthening measures, Washington's wise guidance kept the country out of foreign entanglements, such as the alliance with France, ravaged by revolution. Setting an example against perpetuation in power, he declined a third term. Retiring to his estate, he died 1799, mourned even by his enemies, well deserving the encomium: "First in peace, first in war and first in the hearts of his countrymen." (U. S. History)

NITRIC ACID MANUFACTURE FROM CHILE SALTPETER

Hydrogen nitrate (HNO_3), the solution of which in water is nitric acid, a colorless liquid, is an important chemical used in making explosives, photographic films, celluloid, dyes, etc. One method of manufacturing nitric acid is by distillation of sodium nitrate (Chile saltpeter, $NaNO_3$) with concentrated sulphuric acid in a cast iron pot (acid vapor does not corrode iron, only the liquid HNO_3 does). Concentrated and weak nitric acid are collected separately in stoneware receivers. (Chemistry)

CLOVIS UNITES GERMANIC TRIBES—HIS BAPTISM—RISE OF NEW KINGDOMS

The fifth century saw the rise of kingdoms of Germanic peoples, swallowing portions of the collapsed Western Roman empire. Visigoths were established in Southern France and Spain; Vandals in North Africa; Ostrogoths in Italy; Burgundians in the Rhone territory. Franks, another Germanic people, were expanding from the Rhine west and south. Frankish King Clovis (466-511) united the independent princedoms under his rule (parts of Germany, France, Netherlands, etc.).

Above: Clovis together with his soldiers embracing Christianity (496). By this he secured loyalty of his Christian subjects and friendship of the Pope in Rome. Clovis' descendants had an important role in protecting Christianity from Moslem invasions in the seventh and eighth centuries. (World History)

DOG VERSUS WOLF

Children searched the woods for their father, a poor woodcutter, who failed to return home that evening. A big wolf attacked them, but was checked by faithful Bichonne, their brave little dog. His barking and the cries of the frightened children brought the father, who meanwhile had returned, to the scene. He killed the wolf.

We are sometimes exposed to attacks of the bad wolf—revenge, excesses, bad habits—even crimes. The faithful dog, our conscience, will always fight them. If we don't suppress its voice, we will be saved.

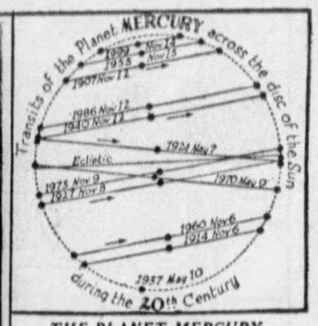
MYRIAPODA—"TEN THOUSAND-LEGGERS"

They form a class of the 12th animal phylum (arthropoda) and include millipedes, centipedes. Former have two pairs, latter one pair of appendages on each body-segment. Millipedes are not poisonous; they do some damage by eating plant roots. Centipedes have conspicuous antennae and poisonous jaws. They live under cover in rubbish, earth. Destroying insects they serve man. Some species of the South and West can inflict serious wounds. (General Science)



THE PLANET MERCURY

Mercury is the nearest planet (innermost planet) to the sun, its main distance from it being 0.387 astron. unit. Mercury's diameter is 3,009 miles, thus it is the smallest planet. Its volume and mass is about 1/18 that of the earth, having same density. Surface temp. is about 600° F. Mercury shows phases, like the moon, but little markings. At transit across the disc of the sun, Mercury appears as a black spot as shown above.

KLEM GOT MY VOTE, HAMILTON— HE'S HARD-BOILED, BUT WE NEED A GUY LIKE THAT TO LEAD US
CLARK CAN BE JUST AS TOUGH WHEN IT'S NECESSARY— HE GOT MY VOTE BECAUSE I KNOW HE'S THE BETTER MAN

I'M 'WAY IN THE LEAD, CLARK, I KNEW THE BOYS WOULD ELECT ME-
YOU'RE NOT CAPTAIN AS YET, KLEM, WE HAVEN'T GOT THE RETURNS FROM THE BOYS OUT ON THE HUNT YET— THEY'RE ALL PRETTY STRONG FOR ME.

The Time Grows Short

McLeod Bill Must Be Brought Before the House By May 28.

Time is of an essence if the New Deal is to give all depositors in the closed banks of the country the square deal that is their due.

A petition to force the Democratic leadership of the House to give its members an opportunity to vote relief for these depositors on May 28 now has 116 of the 145 signatures required to bring the McLeod relief bill before the House.

It ought not to be a difficult task to obtain the additional signatures necessary to rescue this meritorious measure from the grip of the Rules Committee and submit it to the untrammeled judgment of the members of the House.

Representatives in Congress who refuse to sign this petition serve notice on their respective Congressional districts that they are indifferent to the desperate plight of those millions of depositors who accepted the federal government's assurance that the banking system of this country was sound and left their money on deposit in banks that later closed.

The only way in which the present Congress can go to the relief of these depositors is that provided in the McLeod bill.

By the terms of this measure, the federal government would be authorized and directed to purchase the assets and pay off the depositors of closed banks.

The assets of these banks would then be held by the government for a period of 10 years or until the situation improves enough to permit the gradual liquidation of these assets.

The only way in which the McLeod bill can become a law before adjournment is to bring it before the House for a vote on May 28.

Every Representative in Congress is up for renomination and re-election this year. The chain of closed banks extends from Maine to California and from the Canadian border to the Gulf.

By paying off the millions of citizens whose deposits are tied up in these closed banks, every Congressional district would benefit, every state in the Union would share in the stimulus to purchasing power that the release of these deposits would provide.

Twenty-nine Representatives in Congress, by affixing their signatures to the petition to force a vote on the McLeod bill, can make the New Deal a square deal for the millions of depositors in closed banks.

For a chance to vote on the McLeod bill on May 28 will mean the passage of that measure by the House and Senate before Congress adjourns, and the release of nearly two thousand million dollars of deposits in closed banks, North, East, South and West.

Those Costly Machines

The Auditing Expense in Connection With Repairs Raises Some Questions.

Those voting machines for which Allegheny County paid a million dollars wouldn't work. So we had them overhauled. Still they wouldn't work. Now they are to be overhauled again by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company at a cost not to exceed $625 per machine.

We notice that in connection with this work an audit is to be made. The County Commissioners have entered into a contract for the services of a $50-a-day accountant, plus a $25-a-day man, plus additional men at $20 a day as needed.

Here is something that is calculated to make the taxpayers raise their eyebrows in interrogation. Why is it necessary to employ expensive outside accountants? Why can't the County Controller's accountants be assigned to the job?

Safety Week

Temperance Will Help Greatly to Reduce Highway Accidents.

This is "Pennsylvania Highway Safety Week." Encouraged by the great reduction that has been effected in children's traffic accidents by safety education in the schools, the public authorities are undertaking in various ways to impress on adults' minds the need of caution in using the highways, either as motorists or pedestrians.

Pittsburgh gains fresh hope from April's accident report. There was only one traffic fatality, as compared with 12 in April last year. In respect to fatalties this was the city's best month since the compilation of accidents reports was started in 1922. It is in grateful contrast to the startling increase in fatalties during the first three months of the year.

Non-fatal accidents were 66.7 per cent greater than in the corresponding month last year. But this is attributed to improved reporting of mishaps by the police.

A thought-provoking feature of the record is that with the exception of "crossing in mid-block" liquor was the greatest single factor reported as the cause of accidents to pedestrians.

We have here once more the important lesson that temperance will greatly help to reduce accidents. Drunken drivers and drunken pedestrians both take dreadful risks.

Pittsburgh an Oil Center

The American Petroleum Institute Members Should Feel at Home.

Pittsburgh is to be honored this week with an important meeting of the executives and technologists of the oil industry. They will be here tomorrow and remain until Thursday, in attendance at the mid-year convention of the American Petroleum Institute.

The oil men should feel right at home; for, although the great producing sections are now in the West, Pittsburgh is still an oil center. Pennsylvania crude oil, although narrowly limited in output, is for certain purposes the best. There are many refineries in the Pittsburgh district. Some of the largest oil companies have their general offices here. And Pittsburgh produces much of the pipe and other oil well supplies.

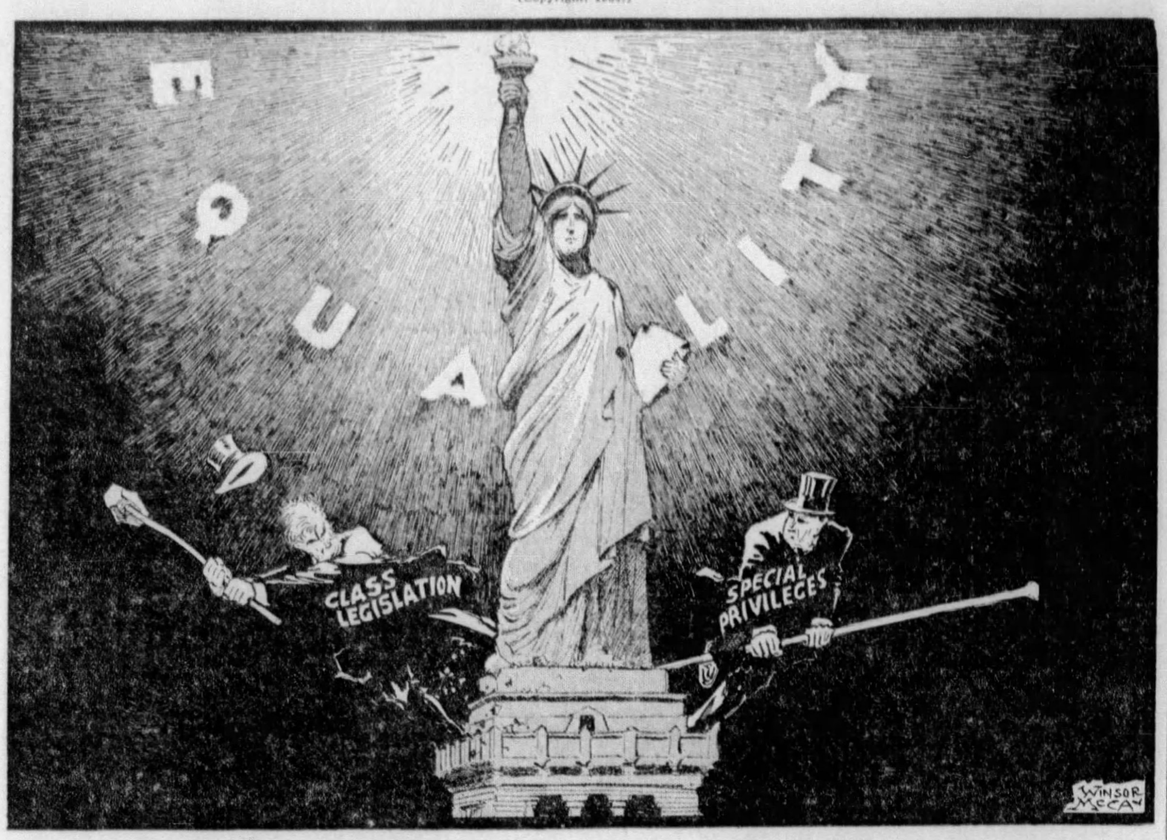
It is not to be forgotten, also, that the great oil industry had its birth in Western Pennsylvania, at Titusville, where the world's first commercial well was drilled in 1859. Oil's "diamond jubilee" will be commemorated on August 27, the anniversary of Drake's success, with the dedication of the Drake Well Memorial Park at Titusville.

Subjects of particular interest to Pennsylvania oil men—deep sand development, the use of ally cast iron in oil production equipment, recent improvements in manufacturing steel for use in the oil fields—are to be discussed at the meeting in Pittsburgh this week, and Western Pennsylvania oil men are to have prominent parts in the program.

It is a convention that Pittsburgh will be especially proud to entertain.

The Wreckers

(Copyright, 1934.)



When Thomas Jefferson wrote "All men are created equal" he meant "equal before the law"—and that maxim has been the very cornerstone of the Republic ever since.

But equality before the law does not exist when some men, or some classes of men, are permitted to enjoy "special privileges."

Congress and the Legislatures have often passed legislation to ABOLISH special privileges benefiting the "big fellows."

On the other hand, the people must guard jealously against the encroachments upon their liberties resulting from legislation that ESTABLISHES special privileges of another kind.

In the words of William Randolph Hearst, published recently on this page:

"As soon as discrimination is introduced it leads eventually and inevitably to discrimination in favor of the big fellow and against the little fellow.

"It may not start this way, but it ends this way, and the ONLY SAFEGUARD against discrimination against the little fellow is freedom from discrimination.

"When the torch of liberty is extinguished our era of enlightenment is ended, and we return to the dark ages of force and fear."

HOLLYWOOD DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

LOS ANGELES, May 21.—On Hollywood boulevard, amid the clatter and banter of a jousting restaurant, is Jewell Schuman, whose brown waitress uniform hides the Olympian soarings of a poet. Like the aproned Masefield in a Bowery grog shop, she tiptoes about, musing her sonnets.

I commended her to Rob Wagner, whose arms—figuratively speaking, of course—are ever open to budding belles-lettres. Jewell is a sparkle from the Texas Panhandle. Lonely nights on the pampas, watching the moon's arabesques on the purple sage, gave her gifts of introspection.

All her girlhood, she tells me, she wielded a hoe. Adding an "er" to the implement in classifying herself provides a naive hilarity. Then Hollywood called. She has no truck with movie stars frequenting her culinary world. Her smile is only for the Keatses and Kilmers of life.

Sudden gusts of the divine afflatus are imprisoned quickly on a scratch pad for customers' orders. Walking toward the kitchen for my navy bean soup, she, eyes heavenward, dashed off this:

there Was a time once in my prime a great personage I did meet
he is Czar in our Bazar, Mr. O. O. Mcintar!

The high life gyp spot of Hollywood is a combination restaurant and gambling house which a geographical freak renders somewhat immune from usual city and county raids. Many wealthy movie stars have been unpursed but come back like proverbial moths to the flame. The famous Purple Gang is said to be in the saddle. Any anyone who doesn't like the tactics gets "a going over!"

Our chauffeur in this hegira is Harry Van Buren, a New Yorker who came out here to drive for Eddie Cantor and took root. His customers before we arrived were Tommy Manville and his bride. While he said nothing, he seemed pleased to get back to day work. He also drove another New York actor whose name escaped him at the moment. "Smokes fierce black cigars," he said. Of course, it was George Jessel.

The alertness of Hollywood for broad effects is illustrated by a photographer on one of the leading boulevards. Two days after Lilyan Tashman's passing, his window displayed an enlargement, several times bigger than life, of the unfortunate actress. It was swathed in a profusion of crepe.

There is a twilight view of Los Angeles from an elevation along Sunset Boulevard, remindful of Paris twinkling below the peaks of Montmarte. The vastness of the community is strikingly emphasized. In the porcelain glow of evening with the fireflies of light the vista suggests dining al fresco at Cafe Coo-Coo and a saunter down the buttes.

The profusion of celebrities is apparent in every eating place, no matter how inconspicuous. Dropping into an out-of-way spot for a snack this late afternoon, we saw John Emerson and Anita Loos at one table. Frank Morgan at another. And Walter Donaldson, the song writer, at still another. There is a brand of celebrity gawkers who have passed the autograph seeking stage. They are called "feelers." They sidle up to importants, run their fingers over a coat sleeve or touch a shoulder. The regulars are used to it and pay no attention whatever. All save Garbo. She is horrified by such contacts, which have driven her into even greater seclusion. She moves almost every month.

Doris Duke, the blonde tobacco heiress, is basking in the sunshine. All the papers speak of her being incognito. And on several movie lots where she was also a visitor dragomen have whispered to me: "That's Miss Doris Duke. She's here incognito." Miss Doris might improve upon the Hollywood version of hiding one's identity by beating a big bass drum. Or having in advance of her arrival a lusty trio of trumpeteers.

Many wandering years I have hopefully searched strange hotel walls, as a countryman scans the web for a weatherwise web, for a bright cheerful picture. Some pastel that would lessen a traveler's longing for home. But no dice. Usually there is a curtseying and simpering shepherdess holding a ribboned crook or a bleak and becalmed seven master. It's not always financial reverses that drive lonely guests to vault over window sills. Sometimes, I'll bet a cookie, it has been the pictures.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Don't Let Yourself Be Shelved at Forty!

Don't let yourself be shelved at forty!

No, I'm not talking about jobs, though there's plenty to be said about those, too.

Nor am I ribbing you about your waist line—not that it mightn't deserve a little attention, darling!

But I'm about to tangle with another situation—a situation which gives most of us at forty a far worse beating than unemployment or overweight.

Meaning what?

This notion is peculiarly American. In other countries men and women of forty are considered in their prime.

Gaston and Oscar may no longer be as agile at tennis as they were at twenty, but neither is tennis considered Front Page News. And Gaston and Oscar are held to be much more attractive as men and valuable as citizens than when their sole service consisted of whanging a racket at a bouncing ball.

By the same token, Matilda and Yvonne may no longer have the rosebud skin of sixteen; but neither—thank God!—have they rosebud brains. And Gentlemen Prefer 'em Ripe in Europe.

Not so in America where, since the war, we have developed a Youth Cult that makes a dose of rabies look like a slight yawn.

In America today, when you once pass twenty-nine, you might as well order your mummy wrappings. For thirty years more, at least, you may be—probably will be—young and chipper and full of Bright Ideas.

Yes, the children will be kind to you, and the Old Folks' Home will welcome you.

But as a red-blooded, two-fisted human being you have ceased to exist!

Which is manifestly tommy-rot. And somebody ought to do something about it. So I'm electing myself.

AND I HEREBY DECLARE WITH SCREAMS, SHRIEKS, HOOTS, YELLS AND BRONX CHEERS THAT THERE ARE GORGEOUS GOBS OF LIVELY LIVING TO BE HAD BETWEEN OUR CRADLES AND OUR DOTAGE!

Take me—I'm fifty.

To the country, I feel I'm just getting my stride. Hitherto I've spent most of my time making mistakes. Now I'm syndicating them—and publishing them in this paper. And if each setting sun doesn't see at least one small rumpus started by li'l Elsie, I'm ready to eat my portable typewriter.

Does that sound like Resigned Old Age?

It does not! Nor is it!

Why the devil should I be resigned about my age when I'm just beginning to enjoy it?

Why should My Face Be Red simply because I'm interested in something besides the latest ping-pong score, or sun-tan powder?

Yet, thousands of my worthy contemporaries are going around with ears dragging, merely because they can't qualify for Wampas Baby Stars.

Well, I adore babies and admire youth. I think young things are diverting—at times. But I'll tell the world—and I don't care a hoot who hears me—that I'M FED UP WITH GA-GA; and that THE CONSTANT ASSOCIATION OF WET-NOSED KIDS WITH WET-NOSED IDEAS GIVES ME THE JITTERS!

"What's more, I do NOT believe that Youth is the hope of the world"—not until it's dry behind the ears.

AND ANYONE WHO THINKS I'M GOING TO APOLOGIZE BECAUSE I CAN'T PLAY AROUND WITH THE HIGH SCHOOL CUTUPS IS JUST-OUT-OF-LUCK!

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Spring Symptoms

At this time of year, you can tell just by the inflection in a woman's voice over the telephone whether she has found a new heart-interest or not.

* * *

Judging from most of the heart-balm cases, the bigger the man, the more there is OF him for the wrong woman to make a fool of.

Marrying a man to reform him may once have been a girl's favorite method of wrecking her life; but the bitterest experience, after all, is to waste your life reforming men for other women to marry.

* * *

The great cause of most of our troubles and heartaches in this world is the human instinct to believe that the "next man" or the "next woman" will be different from all the rest.

* * *

"Some form of polygamy" may be necessary in Scotland if the birth rate continues to fall off, says an authority; but the thrifty Scotch girls may not mind. Half a husband is better than none!

* * *

Of course, every girl is looking for a husband with the right ideals and habits; but she is so apt to get myopic when a man with a good profile, Weissmuller shoulders and Vallee hair gets in her way.

* * *

Never judge by appearances. It often happens that the man who looks like something the bride had won at a raffle, turns out to be the Big Matrimonial Prize of the season.

Sometimes a man doesn't seem to care who trots his wife around to dances and gives her all those little attentions she requires, so long as he isn't expected to sacrifice his golf in order to do it himself.

An Important New Book On Public Schools

By James T. Williams, Jr.

JUST when it is most needed to inform and organize public sentiment in support of the American system of public education, the National Congress of Parents and Teachers has published a book that will be a welcome addition to every American home and welcome aid to every public school.

This little volume bears the title of "Our Public Schools." It was compiled under the direction of Miss C. O. Williams, vice president and director of education of the congress and a past president and field secretary of the National Education Association.

The 14 chapters in this volume were contributed by distinguished educators and leaders in our national life.

Public Education Protects Democracy

"PUBLIC education as a safeguard to democracy" is the contribution of Dr. John H. Finley, for many years Commissioner of Education for the State of New York. Dr. Edgar W. Knight, professor of education at the University of North Carolina, vividly portrays the history of the public school from colonial days to the present.

Of the power of the public school the famous author of "Education in the United States," says:

"The philosophy underlying the public schools holds that in a democracy education must strike its roots freely into the subsoil of society and draw from it new and fresh elements of life and power. It also holds that the diffusion and the advancement of knowledge among all the people should be the first great care of any commonwealth.

". . . The people of this country are settled in the conviction that provision for a liberal system of free education for all the people is the state's most important duty. Under this conviction they have assumed larger educational responsibilities than any democracy has ever undertaken."

"What the public school is trying to do" is sympathetically set forth by Dr. Carleton Washburne, superintendent of the schools of Winnetka, Ill., and the author of many well-known books on education. He emphasizes the importance of teaching the history and geography of the United States and "through such courses" instilling in public school pupils "a strong feeling of patriotism," and "a devotion to one's country that recognizes each person's responsibility as a citizen of a growing and developing nation in a world community."

Among the other entertaining chapters in this interesting book is one by Dr. William John Cooper, professor of education in George Washington University, on public school education, and another by Dr. William G. Carr, director of research of the National Education Association, telling all about the sources from which the public schools derive their support.

The preparation and work of the teacher is discussed by Miss Lucy Gage, professor of elementary education in George Peabody College for Teachers at Nashville, Tenn., and "The Public School Plant as Part of the Total Community Plan" is described in detail by the professor of education at the University of Michigan, Dr. Arthur B. Moehlman.

Federal Government's Responsibility

IN HIS outline of "The Federal Government's Responsibility in Education," Dr. George B. Strayer, professor of education, Teachers' College, Columbia University, in the City of New York, says:

"The founders of the republic were quite clear with respect to the responsibility of the Federal Government for the development of a system of education."

The seal of the Roosevelt administration's approval on this entertaining volume logically comes from the Secretary of the Interior in the Roosevelt cabinet. The concluding chapter by Secretary Ickes contains this warning to those politicians who are so largely to blame for the desperate plight of public education in this country today:

"Our schools ought to be the last to feel the pinch of economy, just as they ought first to experience the return of prosperity . . . It serves no good purpose of economy and it is immensely damaging to our educational system to slash into a budget regardless of whether we are cutting into a vital spot or not.

"The intelligence of the nation is the sum of the intelligence of all of its citizens. Intelligence is the product of education and education is the greatest national asset that we have."

Human Side of the News

George W. Russell, the Irish Sage, Thinks Kipling's "Jungle Book" Will Be Read 400 Years Hence

By Edwin C. Hill

ONE hears with special interest that the Sage of Ireland is contemplating another visit to this land. The Sage of Ireland is George W. Russell, the world-famous "A. E." poet, essayist, agriculturalist — almost anything you like—and a gentleman of singular charm.

It has been the good fortune of this writer to meet him in agreeable chat on several occasions, and fragments and silhouettes rise in the mind. An engaging personality, this burly Irishman from Dublin, who edits the Irish Statesman and stands for all that is best in culture; who paints good pictures, writes good poetry, knows how to design a beautiful dress, is versed in the intricacies of finance and economy, and who even tells the Irish farmers how to get better crops from their stony fields.

There is nothing of the pallid dilettante about him — nothing whatever. He's a beef fed gentleman, weighing 200 pounds in his woolen socks, and he even supports a paunch with grace and dignity. A great massive head, with a shock of brown hair, usually in disorder; Mephistophelian eyebrows, which give an amusingly sinister twist to his benevolent countenance; full cheeks and a sanguine, almost florid complexion, heavy mustache and a full beard that were brown once, but that are rapidly graying and are so stained with cigar juice that the gray is noticeable only around the fringes; big brown eyes—the eyes of a poet, but with a shrewd twinkle in them; clothes worn anyhow—blue four-in-hand tied in a sloppy twist, and coat, waistcoat and trousers rather in need of the tailor's pressing iron; a musical voice, with no brogue and barely a touch of the thing we call the "English accent"—in fact his accent is more like that of Harvard than it resembles the accent of a British university. All of these things mark and picture Russell.

* * *

Thinks Kipling Alone Will Survive

PROBABLY the only English language writer and English language story that will be read 400 years from now are Kipling and his "Jungle Book." This is the opinion, anyway, of George W. Russell. The rest of the modern scribblers that people make such a fuss about nowadays will be forgotten, Mr. Russell rather thinks, even though some of them have written "better" things than the tales of Mawgli and old Kaa and Bagheera, the black panther, and the wise old Baloo.

For it isn't splendid writing that makes a piece of work live, says Russell. It's hitting some note that strikes down to the very roots of human imagination. It's crying a call that touches the heart of all children. And "The Jungle Book," like "The Arabian Nights," strikes such a note and cries such a call.

He likes George Bernard Shaw and thinks he is a misunderstood man. "Shaw likes to have a brass band playing around him," says Russell, "and all that, but he's really very shy, very kind-hearted. Many of his raucous tricks are played to conceal this very shyness. Lots of people are like that."

* * *

Laments Passing Of Chivalry

HE laments the disappearance of chivalry from the world—"chivalry, one of the noblest of human qualities." He thinks it has been pushed out of literature by too much sophistication, and he likes to go back to pagan literature (there isn't so much chivalry in Christian literature) to refresh his soul. He likes to think of Cuhulain, the old Gaelic conqueror, who, when he had his enemies soundly thrashed and was on the very point of wiping them out, would draw back to give them a chance to revive and make a better fight of it.

"There's a lot of that in the Irish," said George Russell. "The Greeks lacked that spirit. No Irishman would have dragged the body of dead Hector around the walls of Troy as Achilles did."

He doubts that the Irish have a real sense of humor. The English have, he says, but not the Irish. The Irish have wit—a ready, flashing, surprising wit—but they have not the h··nor to take a joke on themselves any too well, and they often lack a sense of fun.

His pet avocation is the discovery and encouragement of poets in Ireland. They are raising quite a crop of poets in the Emerald Isle since the revival of the old language, and George Russell hops about industriously and tags this one and that one, and the first thing you know all Ireland is talking about the fellow.

"And sure," he said with a grin, "I have three simmering over there now that are about done."
